MAMMOTH NEW HOUSE AMONG THE OLDEST.

Hotel of Thirteen Stories to Scrape the North-End Sky.

Business District of the Early Days Coming Into Its Own, and One of the Greatest Hostelries This Side of Chicago to Displace Architectural Marvel of Long 'Ago—Syndicate Stirring, Great Development On.

WITH a mass of preliminary details cleared away and with necessary legal and financial arrangements shaping to a successful issue, the plans for the great fireproof hostelry projected by a local syndicate on the old Phillips estate site at the northwest corner of Spring and Franklin streets are assuming a definite form. Working plans for the great "north-end" improvement have been practically completed by the architect, Lyman Farwell, and the final papers in the fifty-year lease under which the builders are securing the site have been drawn up. Other developments, it is announced, may soon be expected.

That the negotiations looking to the erection of this long-contemplated improvement have dragged for months is largely due, it is explained by those directly interested, to the complicated and monumental character of the enterprise itself and to the delay in the closing of the lease. The project is unique and in its very nature has presented difficulties not ordinarily encountered by the promoters of such undertakings.

The syndicate back of the great hotel is an unusual organization, being composed for the most part of building material dealers and structural contractors. Under the plan of operation the various materials entering into the construction of the hotel are to be furnished by the members of the syndicate, in so far as is practicable, and a great deal of the labor provided for in a similar manner. Additional financial arrangements are yet to be made, several plans now being under consideration.

Those connected with the syndicate have been represented in the negotiations by Ira W. Byrnes, who has been working on the deal for over a year. D. F. McGarry of the McGarry Realty Company has handled the real estate end of the transaction from its beginning. O'Melveny, Millikin & Stevens are the attorneys for the Phillips interests and have been represented in the leasing negotiations by Sayre McNeil of that firm. Ex-Judge Bordwell is attorney for the syndicate.

To give the syndicate opportunity in which to perfect certain important financial arrangements, the Board of Public Works and the City Council recently consented to a thirty-day delay in the razing of the ruins of the old Phillips block, which occupies

The biggest thing in the way of a Christmas ever planned in Los Angeles, by Los Angeles and for Los Angeles was started by a little handful of men at Christopher's Broadway place yesterday at noon, but the success of that plan depends upon the persons who read this report of the meeting. There is no doubt that the reader is one of 50,000 whose Christmas festival will be 100 times brighter if they share its happiness with some family in actual need.

Not less than 1200 families in this city are absolutely destitute. In these homes may be found not less than 2500 children who will not only miss the sweet joys of the season but who have no shoes on their bare little feet and who spend whole days and weeks with no other food than a little stale bread.

It is hard for those who have plenty to realize that others may be hungry. As for understanding what hunger means to children, that is not possible to any man. It would not do to go further and question the influence on the lives of these children to have inadequate food and impoverished blood through the long weeks and years. Besides it has nothing to do with this appeal. The point now is that here are 1200 homes without the possibility of Christmas cheer, most of them being in dire need of the simplest necessities, while thousands of others will spend that best of days in selfish abundance.

Two things make such conditions possible in a city. One is that every fellow waits for the other or for some organization of which he is but vaguely aware and which usually exists only in imagination to take care of the case. The other is, that persons who would gladly help do not know which way to turn. They either think of this sad need in the aggre-

Court Finds.

INVESTMENT COMPANY NEEDS NO RECEIVER.

Superior Judge Wellborn Decisively Denies Application of Few Minority Stockholders—Expresses Confidence in New Directorate to Conserve the Interests of the Concern—Sees No Reason for Expensive Step.

JUDGE WELLBORN of the Superior Court decisively turned down the application of a few minority stockholders of the Los Angeles Investment Company for the appointment of a receiver yesterday.

The court said in effect that he has confidence in the new directors to conserve the interests of the company and to aid in rehabilitation until such time as the majority stockholders meet and elect directors for 1914.

The court declared he would have no hesitancy in appointing a receiver if in his judgment such a step were necessary, but that he sees no good cause to take so drastic an action.

"I think the plaintiffs, stockholders in this company, can get all the relief necessary to be obtained from the de facto new board," said the judge. "There is no allegation in the amended complaint that they refuse to do the things you say your clients want.

"Why saddle this corporation with an expensive receivership, when there is nothing to show but what the new board is acting for the best interests of all concerned? I think such a step would be gross injustice."

THE MAIN QUESTION.

The hearing before Superior Judge Wellborn yesterday morning was mainly on the question of a receivership for the Los Angeles Investment Company. The action was brought by Warren L. Withrow and others and against the investment company and the individual members of the old and new directorates.

This was an amended complaint, the court allowing Attorneys Ball and Moore, representing the so-called minority stockholders, to file a fresh complaint setting forth allegations which were left out of the first one filed.

The merits of the case were not gone into yesterday, the issue being joined on demurrer of the defendants, which only brings to a focus the legal propositions involved.

Henry W. O'Melveny was in court as one of the new directors. F. McD. Spencer was there as counsel for some of the old directors, and Nathan Newby represented the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church South, for which the investment company contracted to build its institutional church.

Ex-Judge Bordwell and Attorneys Stevens and Tuller were counsel for the Los Angeles Investment Company and the new directorate.

At the outset Judge Wellborn said that the question of the appointment of a receiver was the important thing to be considered. He said upon the allegations of the complaints from a legal standpoint, there was no question but what the plaintiffs were entitled to some relief if later on they can prove their case.

First, briefly reviewing the history of the growth and development of the Los Angeles Investment Company, the court went on to say that the allegations of the complaint set forth that Elder and his co-directors secured stock for themselves from time to time, by giving notes to the company.

NO REASON FOR IT.

"But, assuming that every allegation in your complaint is true," said Judge Wellborn, addressing himself to the lawyers for the plaintiffs, "yet I see no reason why it is necessary to invoke the aid of this court for the appointment of a receiver. The decisions are nearly all against the taking away of the control of a corporation from the hands of trustees and vesting it in a receivership."

O'Melveny suggested at this point that it were well to bear in mind also that there will be an annual election of officers in January, and that no showing has been made in court that the new directors will waste the assets of the concern.

The court seemed to think this a good suggestion, for he referred to it several times in the course of his remarks from the bench.

Former Judge Bordwell said also that in this election there is no intention of voting the 711,000 shares of stock offered the new board by Elder and his associates. He said the intention of the men now in control is to act solely for the interests of the stockholders and to bring about such business deals and compromises as will add to the assets and decrease the liabilities of the company.

The speaker also referred to the fact that there is on file a petition signed by many hundred stockholders, representing more than 1,000,000 shares, asking that a receiver be not appointed. This petition was not read, as the action of the court rendered it unnecessary.

ARGUES AND SNEERS.

Attorney Ball made a talk which smacked more of a jury argument than a cold, impartial marshaling of law before a court. He, almost weeping, tried to depict the woes of some of his clients, and declared Elder and his former co-directors worse than pirates. He said the company's stockholders need protection and sneered about the wealth and standing of some of the new directors without mentioning names.

Ball forgot to mention, however, that the present board is giving its time to the solving of most perplexing questions without any remuneration, and that the sole object of these men is to subserve the interests of the stockholders and uphold a large corporation from being undermined.

Ball's talk was followed by an argument by Attorney Moore, who kept to the legal questions.

But the court declared that he not only sees no reason for a receivership, but he also does not believe the plaintiffs should be granted leave to file a third amended complaint.

"WON'T YOU LEAVE A DIME?"

Many Do at Entertainment Which Helps the Los Angeles Children's Humane Society.

The Golden Musical Club entertained a large number of friends in the parlors of the Golden apartments at No. 1030 West Seventh street, on Friday evening. A feature of the affair was a Christmas silver offering donated to the Los Angeles Children's Humane Society. The offering was invited through the medium of a decorated basket placed on a table in the reception hall on which was hung a large card bearing these lines:

"There are lonely little hearts so near,
Dreaming o'er this Christmas time;
Won't you leave for them right here
A loving thought and a Christmas dime?"

Those who assisted the club in receiving were Mesdames Frank Gridley, A. H. Jordan, B. A. Davis, Violetta del Mare, Charles Ward, Charles Goodman, W. M. Durflinger, Lillian Stern, Ella Hull, C. Daggy, S. F. Wiles, Ray Cowan, McAnnanney and S. D. Chittenden. INVESTIGATION APPEARS TO CLEAR DEALERS.

Government Inquiries Here and Elsewhere Said to Show that High Prices of Eggs Are Result of Natural Conditions Rather Than of Market Manipulation.

The United States District Attorney said yesterday that he is quietly pursuing the investigation ordered by the Department of Justice on the question of egg conditions in Southern California, with a view to ascertaining whether the present high prices are the result of natural conditions or artificial stimulation. He has already accumulated a large amount of information and data on the subject, gathered at first hand, but does not know when his inquiry will be completed. The investigation will not at any stage be in the hands of the Federal grand jury or agents of the Department of Justice, but he individually will collect the information and transmit it direct to the Attorney-General.

The District Attorney has seen the telegram from Washington to the effect that the Department of Justice is already convinced that the present prices are the result of natural conditions, with an intimation that the inquiry will be called off.

It is understood that the class of dealers known as middlemen are presenting to the District Attorney their side of the egg question, and that the information already gleaned is to the distinct advantage of such dealers.

WILDCAT IN BACK YARD.

Real Wild One, Not a Pet, and It Is Shot After Making an Attack on Small Boy.

Yesterday afternoon Byron Marsh, a carpenter of No. 1401 Waterloo street, shot a wildcat in the yard of a neighbor, after the animal had tried to attack Hollis Harris, a little boy, who, with several playmates, had roused it from a sun bath.

Marsh was working in the yard of Neighbor Pratt, No. 1321 Waterloo street, where the children were playing. He hurried home for a gun and killed the feline. It weighed thirty-six pounds, measured three feet, six inches from tip to tip and was sleek and fat.

Female Health Officer of San Gabriel Is Aroused.

Eyesores in Historic Mission Town Must Go.

The task of improving the health of the historic community of San Gabriel has been undertaken by Miss Ruth Purcell, health officer and member of a pioneer family of the mission town. An investigation conducted by Miss Purcell, under the authority of her office, has disclosed what she regards as a distressful situation.

City Attorney Alfred Barlow, at the suggestion of Miss Purcell, has framed an ordinance which is now before the Board of Trustees for consideration. Unsanitary conditions, especially in the Mexican slum districts, pig-pens and a general lack of plumbing, are responsible, in the opinion of the energetic crusader, for the ill health of the community.

"Seventy-five per cent. of the school children are in bad health and the lungs of many of them sound like rattle boxes," Miss Purcell said yesterday. "There are cases of typhoid fever in town now. The schools were closed twice last year on account of diphtheria.

"Too little plumbing and too many out-houses and the carelessness of the Mexican inhabitants in the slum districts, are responsible for the bad situation. San Gabriel needs a general clean-up or death will decrease the population.

"Of course there are many lovely homes with modern equipment in San Gabriel, but the cheap rent in the slum districts, where there are a large number of shacks and neglected adobe houses and huts, much more than offsets the efforts of the more enterprising inhabitants.

"There are so many things in San Gabriel to be proud of—the ancient mission, the aged grapevine, the historic homes, modern dwellings and mellow memories of the past—that it seems a shame to have it all spoiled by carelessness. So many tourists come to town that the residents should take pride in its appearance.

"It's too bad to tell, but much of the land on which the unsanitary homes rest belongs to wealthy people of Los Angeles. The rents are low and, of course, they will not take an interest in improvements.

"We have framed an ordinance that should result in the renovation of San Gabriel if it is passed by the Trustees. The measure provides for cesspools and plumbing and the elimination of pig-pens and other conditions which now breed ill health."

Miss Purcell is the daughter of Gervais Purcell, a pioneer, who thirty-three years ago bought the historic Las Tunas rancho at San Gabriel. The Purcells live in an elegant old home of the attractive California t[illegible] One adobe wing of the house is almost as ancient as the mission.

LAND CONTESTS DECIDED.

Secretary of the Interior Makes Important Ruling in Imperial Valley Cases.

Affirmations of decisions by the Secretary of the Interior, heretofore rendered by the local land office, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, have been received in two cases, involving matters of interest to desert-land entrymen who have claims east of the Salton Sea, and southwest of Imperial Junction.

The cases were Henrietta Prescott against James R. McNeece and Clarence R. Conover against Edwin C. Paige, both decided in favor of the defendants, which opinion is affirmed by the highest authority in the land department. A half section of land is involved in each case.

The Secretary of the Interior holds that the corners established by Surveyor A. A. Henderson along the third standard parallel in his resurvey of land to the south thereof, cannot be used in extending a survey to land to the north because the land on the north of the parallel is not surveyed land, and further Henderson had no authority under the act of Congress of July 1, 1907, to resurvey any of the land north of the said standard parallel, or to fix or determine any of their boundaries.

Burr H. Lien, who is among the leading candidates to succeed Receiver Robinson of the local land office, lost his case trying to dispossess Katherine E. Baker from a quarter section of land in the Imperial Valley. Mrs. Baker hired men to do the work on her desert entry, and through a mistake on their part the improvements were put in on the wrong piece of land. The equities of the case were so palpably in favor of the woman that the local land officials decided in her favor and this opinion has been affirmed.

PROTECTING INVESTORS.

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association Investigating Alleged Olive Land Swindle.

Action against real estate grafters, who are trying to sell alleged olive land to prospective investors, may be taken this week by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, which has instituted a campaign against fakers in all lines of business.

It was reported to Secretary Zeehandelaar yesterday that a concern is advertising that steady incomes can be made by planting trees on land pronounced by experts to be unfit for the purpose and that large crops can be secured from four-year-old trees. As a matter of fact olive trees have to attain an age of eight or ten years before they become profitable commercially.

"We are in this campaign for the sake of the city," said Secretary Zeehandelaar. "It is not a question of competition. The representative merchants do not fear the competition of fakers, but they do not want our commercial integrity injured and tourists robbed by persons who have spurious goods of every description for sale. Our campaign is directed against all persons whose false representations come within the State law and the city ordinance."

Miss Ruth Purcell,

Health officer of San Gabriel and a member of a prominent pioneer family, who is striving to improve sanitary conditions in the historic mission town. She says seventy-five per cent. of the school children are in ill-health as a result of careless home surroundings, especially in the Mexican quarters.

Mammoth New Hotel.

the greater part of the site of the proposed hotel, and which was gutted by a fire of mysterious origen some months ago. This time limit has expired and F. L. Spaulding, one of the members of the syndicate and the contractor who will in all probability be selected to build the great North Spring-street caravansary, is now pulling down the walls of the antiquated structure.

The Phillips Block was in its day the architectural marvel of the city and has been a landmark for a generation. The old edifice is often referred to as the Hamburger building, having been the home of the Hamburger Department Store for many years prior to the sensational pioneering jump of that concern to the then-remote corner of Eighth and Broadway seven years ago. The Phillips site is owned by the Phillips Estate, a family corporation comprising several individuals, George Phillips of Pomona being the spokesman in all business transactions. The property has been in the hands of the one family since the early days of Los Angeles.

Even as the old Phillips Block was in an earlier day the structural wonder of the growing town, the new building on the same site promises to be one of the architectural marvels of the metropolitan city of today. That it will be the forerunner of other splendid modern improvements in the northern part of the expanding business district is confidently predicted by those interested directly in the project and by observers generally. The old north end is again about to come into its own. Being already the city's civic center, it is now considered as certain that it will again soon be taking an important place in the business and commercial life of Los Angeles.

All this is made inevitable by the assured boring of the First and Second-street tunnels, the lowering and modernizing of the Broadway tunnel and the creation of the magnificent West First-street boulevard. All these projects have been definitely settled upon. In another year or so the north end will have been given adequate outlet to all the rest of the city. Its complete development along the most modern lines will follow. The projected new building will be in the center of all this development and at the same time among the very first hotels built in Los Angeles—the Pico House, the National and several others.

The hotel planned by Architect Farwell is to be of truly mammoth proportions. Thirteen stories in height, it will extend from Spring street to New High street, fronting 120 feet on each of these thoroughfares, by 218 feet on Franklin street. The building will contain approximately 700 rooms. It will be one of the largest hostelries west of Chicago.

The hotel has been given the name of La Casa del Camino Real, and will stand on ground which in earlier days lay along a dusty roadway traveled by the padres. The name will be the only thing about it not strictly modern. Architecturally, there has been no studied effort to incline to any one style, the designing being guided largely by ideas of utility. There is a suggestion of the Spanish Renaissance in the embellishment features. The exterior of the building will be white, the surface being set off with colored tile effects in cornices, sashes and pilasters.

The building will be of the shape of a letter "H" and of reinforced concrete construction, being of the most modern fireproof type. Every room will have direct outside light and air. A twelve-foot open yard along the entire north side of the hotel will give it, in effect, practically four street frontages. The courts will extend in from both Spring and New High streets and will be twenty-six feet wide. Every guest in the hotel will have an unobstructed view of some street.

Designed to meet the requirements of those who want hotel accommodations at a moderate price, the hostelry will have every comfort and convenience found in the best properties of its class in the country. The rooms will average 11x13 feet in size, and will each boast up-to-date facilities. The building has been so planned that every other room will have a bathroom, finished in tile and having a recessed bath tub, together with the regulation appointments. Each guestroom will have its folding wall bed.

The partition walls throughout will be of thick hollow tile construction, making all rooms practically sound proof, after the plan of the most modern eastern hostelries. Every corridor will end in an open loggia and balcony and will give direct access to a fire escape. Each floor will have its own general reception-room, centrally located near the elevators. The second story "parlors" will open upon the east and west courts, which are to be made inviting by the introduction of garden and pergola effects.

The principal feature of the main floor will be a corridor twenty-six feet wide, extending through the building from Spring to New High street and designed to be an inviting short cut for the general public bound from points on Spring street to the Hall of Records and the Courthouse. This corridor is to be faced with marble and made a beautiful approach to the public buildings on New High street. The builders have already tentatively named the passage way the "Galeria Real." Provision is made in the plans for several stores on the main floor, some facing the street fronts and others the corridor itself.

The building will have its own power, lighting, heating, ventilation, refrigeration, vacuum cleaning and water-filtering plants. In the basement will be a tile-finished natatorium with a plunge, 30x75 feet. The plans call for Russian and Turkish baths, showers, barber shops, a bowling alley laundry, bakery and general storage-rooms on the same floor level. Four passenger elevators, a freight elevator and a service elevator will be installed, all running from the basement to the roof. The roof plan itself is of unusual interest, arrangements being made for open-air restrooms, solariums and a roof garden.

GLIDING DOWN PRIMROSE WAY.

UGLY PLIGHT OF SON OF FORMER RAILROAD MAN.

Arrested and Charged With Forgery, Swallows Narcotic and Life Is in the Balance—Has Been in Trouble Before and Is Now a Probationer.

Swallowing a narcotic, so the officers believe, Gerald F. Muir, son of the late John A. Muir, who was a well-known and popular railroad man of this city, became suddenly ill in the County Jail yesterday afternoon and was taken to the County Hospital. The physicians say that the young man is in grave danger.

Young Muir, or "Jerry," as he is known along the primrose way, was under arrest charged with forging a signature to a check. He was arraigned before Justice Forbes and in default of bail locked up.

There, in the immediate presence of Jail Clerk Marcus, Muir pulled a two-ounce vial from his pocket and drank the contents.

The vial is supposed to have contained chloroform, but as he appeared to be in considerable pain, the officers suspect some subtle poison may have been mixed with the narcotic.

Muir has been in trouble many times, declare police and Sheriff's officers. His father was at one time superintendent of the local division of the Southern Pacific Company, and later was connected with the Los Angeles Railway Corporation.

Muir is married and has two children. He is now on probation and the District Attorney says that at least four charges are pending against him. If he recovers he may go to San Quentin, as his violation of parole is sufficient to send him there, irrespective of his last alleged offense.

He is charged with signing the name J. F. Sullivan to a check for $75, made payable to himself and cashed by J. F. Lightholder, a Glendale grocer.

Mrs. Muir works in a department store and her husband is known as a "man about town." When taken to the court and later to jail Muir did not exhibit any special emotion, and his apparent attempt at suicide surprised Deputy Constable Ewing.

Dollars vs. Frost.

PUTTING OUT MILLIONS TO PROTECT ORANGES.

Growers Take Permanent Precautionary Measures Against Possible but Improbable Freezes—Heavy Planting of Young Trees Shows Confidence in Golden Future of Citrus Industry—Plenty of Money.

THREE and one-half millions of dollars to fight frost! This, according to Manager Hutchens of the Fruit Growers' Supply Company, is the expenditure the State's citrus growers have made to date on the safe premise that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. As the value of the State's citrus crop is conservatively estimated at $28,000,000, the exependitures made to extract the sting from old Jack Frost are comparatively small—particularly as $3,000,000 of the total represents permanent, not ephemeral, expenditures in the frost-prevention line.

Figures furnished by Hutchens show that all told the citrus growers have spent $2,500,000 this year in precautionary measures against the willful sprite, Hoar Frost. Incidentally, this expenditure is spot-cash evidence that the little freezing affair of last winter did not by one whit decrease the growers' confidence that the future of the citrus interests in the State is embellished with assured dividends. It also shows, which is more to the point, that the pessimists' howl of "tight money" in the citrus belt is mere vaporings, nothing more.

Another evidence of confidence is adduced by Secretary Wallschlaeger of the Citrus Protective League. He has been busy lately collecting data on the new citrus plantings in the State. So far, Ventura county is the only one to furnish him with up-to-the-minute data. But what a tale of confidence it tells! An increase in lemon acreage from 2733 in 1912 to 5580 acres this year, with the orange plantings in the same time increased by 528 acres. Though Wallschlaeger frankly admits that Ventura county will probably show the greatest percentage of increase, preliminary reports from other counties show that somehow, somewhere, trees were found to add to the citrus plantings.

Naturally, increased plantings mean that precautionary measures against cold must be taken, as young lemon and orange trees evidence their tropical origin by a tenderness which amounts almost to sickliness. This means, further, that, though the chances of killing frosts in the better part of the citrus counties of the State are about 1 to 100, extra measures in the frost-preventive line have to be taken with young plantings.

At the present time, according to Hutchens, there are 3,000,000 orchard heaters in this State primed for action at any moment the frost patrols—which are much in evidence this year in the citrus belts—shall report the possibility of damaging frost. Mounted on motorcycles, generally, though the horse is still in evidence as a carriage in many districts, the frost-patrols ring the orchards of set districts every night there is the least indication that Jack Frost will make a sally from the mountains.

Other nights, in fact, every night of the winter, a head patrolman is busy reading the thermometers in the district stations. He is the commander of the patrols that have been organized by frost protective leagues throughout the State. Most nights he goes his lonely way from thermometer station to thermometer station. But if the mercury shows a sinking spell, he is stirred into activity and the volunteer patrolmen respond to the telephone calls and a most anxious watch is kept for evidence of possible danger.

The danger apparent, and, as Paul Revere of old, the patrolmen spread the alarm throughout their districts and the smudge pots are lighted to darken the skies with the tarry fumes that drive Jack Frost, defeated, back to his lair adjacent to the snow lines of the mountains.

Of the 3,000,000 orchard heaters now available for frost fighting in the State, Hutchens estimates that 1,500,000 have been purchased this year at a cost of approximately $1,000,000. A similar amount, he estimates, has been expended on reservoir tanks and oil-transmission lines, while the supply of oil now available represents an additional expenditure of $500,000. Except for the oil, all these expenditures are made in terms of years. For instance, the Arlington Fruit Company has recently completed an oil pipe line that traverses nearly the entire width of the city of Riverside. It is there to stay, as are the reservoir tanks and the heaters, though these last will eventually be burned out and must be replaced by others.

It is stated that all these expenditures have been made. But, to quibble a bit, they have not, for 20,000 orchard heaters are to arrive here Monday on a special train for distribution to those who may need additional heaters. It is the final distribution, however—the cap-stone to an expenditure in one year of $2,500,000 for frost prevention.

Wheeler's Ordinance to Fo a Wage "Scale."

Would Recognize Walk Delegates, Too.

More Pay, Shorter Hours, Municipal Jobs.

Recognition of the labor unions a walking delegates by the city of L Angeles in the forcing of all contr tors on public work to adopt union scale of wages is the theme an ordinance by Councilman Wheel Socialist, to be presented to the Ci Council tomorrow.

The ordinance prescribes a "scale which would standardize pay in ci departments as well as on all publ work for skilled and unskilled labo and provide a working day of eig hours with half a day on Saturday and no work on all of the legal holi days and Sunday.

The ordinance is indorsed by th Central Labor Union, the Independen Civic League and other Socialistic or ganizations and Socialists. Mayo Rose added his indorsement to i yesterday before he left the city fo a vacation, but President Whiffen opposes the ordinance on the ground that it provides an additional expenditure not arranged for by the budget.

The objection of the chairman of the Finance Committee opened up the underlying reason for the ordinance—a demand that all contractors before the city awards a contract, agree to pay the union scale of wages. The artisans employed by the city ar only a small proportion of the number of skilled laborers engaged in public work. The proposed scale follows:

Brick layers (construction,) $6; brick layers (sewers,) $7; cement finishers, $5; cement laborers, $3; common and building laborers, $3; mortar mixers for masons, $3.50; hod carriers, $4.50; engineers (hoisting and portable,) $4.50; electricians, $4; pile drivers, bridge and iron workers, $4; painters, $4; paper hangers, $4; sign and pictorial painters, $5; lathers, $5; plumbers, gas and steam fitters, $4.50; marble cutters and setters, $5.50; marble polishers and helpers, $3; plasterers, $6; roofers, $3.50; stone masons, $5; tile layers, $5; tile layers' helpers, $3; shinglers, $4; elevator constructors, $4; sheet metal workers, $4.50; hardwood floor workers, $4.50; granite cutters and setters, $5; teamsters, $3; teamsters (with team,) $5.50; millmen and cabinet workers, in shop, $4; carpenters, $4; blacksmiths, $4.50; blacksmiths' helpers, $3.50; boilermakers, $4.50; boilermakers' helpers, $3.50; moulders, $4.50; machinists, $4.50; machinists' helpers, $3.50; pattern makers, $4.50; metal polishers, buffers and brass finishers, $4.50; engineers, stationary, $4.50.

Building Inspector Backus yesterday compared the proposed scale as given above with the standardized pay regulated by ordinance in his department, under which more skilled workmen are employed than in any other department of the city. In many instances his salary ordinance already provides more pay than is asked by the Wheeler ordinance, and in others the ordinance provides less.

The Wheeler ordinance further provides that any contractor or subcontractor operating under a contract with the city on any publi work shall forfeit $10 to the city for each employee worked overtime, that is to say more than eight hours day for five and a half days a week.

The proposed ordinance provides penalty of $500 fine or six months imprisonment upon conviction for a violation.

MUSICAL STAR HERE.

Soprano Long a Pupil in Italy Gives Programme and May Make Los Angeles Her Home.

Thursday afternoon Miss Aurelia Wharry, who has recently come here from Florence, Italy, gave a delightful informal programme of songs at the home of Mrs. John L. von Blon, for a small company of musical friends. Miss Wharry is a superb artist, the possessor of a wonderfully beautiful soprano voice of great power, sweetness and rare emotional quality. She is a star pupil of the great Braggiotti of Florence, having studied with him for six years, afterward coaching with the masters of interpretation in the capital of France and in Berlin, and also with Savage in New Yor. She has sung with the big orchestras in many of the large eastern cities, and also was soloist for numerous prominent singing clubs. Her work while in Europe was approved and lauded by some of the most distinguished critics of the musical centers.

Miss Wharry's voice placement and technique are impeccable, and she sings with that smoothness and surety of golden tone which distinguishes her and places her in the front rank. She will be an acquisition to the musical life of Los Angeles if she makes this city her home. Her programme Thursday was made up of a charming group of French, German and English songs and concluded with several beautiful operatic arias, given with rare understanding and exquisite shading.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Opposition to confirming R. E. Wirsching as a member of the Board of Public Utilities is on the wane in the City Council and he is expected to be indorsed.

The Council passed three of the four ordinances affecting the new Southern Pacific station yesterday, Bryant opposing the grant of the stub end of Fifth street.

The Mayor's veto of the freak election ordinance was sustained by the Council yesterday when an adverse report was unanimously adopted.

WIRSCHING TO BE CONFIRMED.

OPPOSITION TO APPOINTMENT IS ON THE WANE.

New Member of Utilities Board Expected to Be Indorsed by Council When Action Is Called for on Tuesday—Whiffen, Against Confirmation, Cannot Vote.

Opposition to confirmation of the appointment of Robert E. Wirsching to the Board of Public Utilities seems to be on the wane in the City Council, and it is believed when the matter comes up for action next Tuesday that the Mayor's choice will be indorsed. Wirsching was named to serve out the unexpired term of O. O. McReynolds, which ends in January.

Councilman Betkouski yesterday stated that his remarks, made a few days ago in regard to Wirsching, had been misconstrued as placing him in an attitude of opposing confirmation. Yesterday Betkouski asserted that he not only will vote for the confirmation of Wirsching, but that he believes there will be sufficient votes to sanction the Mayor's selection.

President Whiffen will commence tomorrow as acting Mayor, and will not have a chance to vote on the Wirsching appointment. Whiffen is opposed to Wirsching because of the latter's former political alliances, which appear to be distasteful to Whiffen. The president's opposition to Wirsching was really the only serious opposition that the appointment encountered. It is believed that six votes will be found for Wirsching when the time comes.

The Council feels that there should be a Board of Public Utilities on the job to handle the work that is being sent through that department. A. W. Wright, who resigned and then withdrew his resignation at the request of Mayor Rose, has been acting head of the department in the absence of his colleague, Martin Bekins. With Wirsching confirmed by the Council there will be a quorum on the board and regular business may be transacted as usual.

Mayor Rose will leave today for Wisconsin. With him goes Mrs. Rose, whose parents live in Fond du Lac. The Mayor's parents reside at Racine. The Mayor has been given a leave of absence of thirty days but he announced yesterday that he will be home the day before New Year's. This announcement, it is thought, is occasioned by the fact that there is a muddled situation here at home, and that it will be necessary for the Mayor to be on the job before the first of the year to fill vacancies on boards automatically made by expiration of terms, and to attend to other appointments that should be made by that time.

The Mayor leaves with the Council holding up not only the appointment of Wirsching, but the appointment of William J. Variel to the Humane Animal Commission, as well.

DEPOT ORDINANCES.
ONLY ONE IS HELD UP.

Councilman Bryant's negative vote yesterday on the vacating of the stub end of Fifth street without consideration to the city caused a week's delay in passage of all of the Southern Pacific station ordinances. Three others, however, were passed. One is for the acceptance of an easement of the twenty-foot strip on the Central-avenue side of the station, another is for the relocation of tracks on Alameda street, and a third is for the permit to construct the so-called "pine box" spur along Alameda street between Third and Fourth streets.

The passage of these ordinances was effected after a favorable report from the Public Utilities Committee. Councilman Bryant justified his opposition to the "stub-end" ordinance by asserting that the city should get something in return for the property. He considers it worth $75,000. While he did not wholly approve the other ordinances, he believed that the city was getting the best that could be obtained in its contract with the railroad company.

PUT TO SLEEP.
FREAK ELECTION ORDINANCE.

The City Council yesterday unanimously indorsed the report of the Public Welfare Committee, which sounded the death knell of the freak election, sometimes known as the "voteless election" law, sustaining Mayor Rose's veto. So odious had the ordinance become that even Councilman Wheeler turned a deaf ear to his Socialist constituents and let the measure skid into oblivion.

The ordinance was passed by the Council and vetoed by the Mayor. When it came back with a veto tagged to it, the ordinance was referred to the Public Welfare Committee. The measure provided that no one would be permitted to operate autos in hauling voters to the polls; that literature could not be distributed for hire, and that no man could ask how another was going to vote, if he were paid for asking. There were so many unusual features in the ordinance that when it was analyzed and shown in its true light, it appeared like a crazy quilt of election etiquette, and the sentiment of the Council underwent a radical revision, after a brief but effective educational campaign.

More Time to Pay In.

Property owners assessed for the construction of the Hollywood main sewer are again notified that the assessment is due and payable, although today was the date of delinquency, after which all payments would have to be made with penalty attached. The contractor has been forced by the city to extend time for payment thirty days and all those who have not yet paid may do so by going to the City Hall where a force of city employees is busy aiding in the work of collecting the assessments.

How They Voted.

Bairdstown voted 170 for to 44 against annexing to the city of Los Angeles, and Fruitland voted 3 for and 30 against annexation, according to a canvass of the returns made by City Clerk Wilde yesterday. The election was held in both places on December 9. Later an election will be held in Los Angeles to determine whether Bairdstown shall be admitted.

DIDN'T CARE FOR HER, IS DIVORCED.

YOUTHFUL HUSBAND ADMITS LOSS OF LOVE.

Wife Says He Was More or Less Intoxicated All the Time After Marriage, but Does Not Ask Alimony—"White Slavery" in Another Case.

Mrs. Hazel M. Newmark was granted a decree of divorce from Herbert P. Newmark by Judge Works yesterday, on the showing that he told her he no longer cared for her and had deserted her. The youthful husband, who is well connected socially, married his wife at Santa Ana in November, 1911.

It was not a happy marriage. Newmark brought his bride into the Juvenile Court to have her declared a dependent person. Later, he had the charge dismissed. An aunt subsequently sought to have the marriage annulled on the ground that Newmark had married without her consent, he having been left in her charge by his father, then in Mexico. Nothing came of this suit.

Mrs. Newmark, just 18, and four years her husband's junior, testified he was in a more or less intoxicated condition from the time he married her until the separation in June of 1912. She said he would come home drunk and tell her he did not care to live with her and was going to leave. On the last occasion he telephoned her to pack his goods up, as he was going to San Francisco.

"He said he wasn't going to live with me any more," said Mrs. Newmark. "I refused to do as he asked, and he came home and packed up. I remonstrated with him, but he was bent on going. As he usually stopped at the Herald Hotel on his San Francisco trips, my mother and I went north and located him there. I pleaded with him, but to no purpose, and then mother urged him to come back home. He said he did not care anything about me."

As all hope of a reconciliation was past, Mrs. Newmark brought an action for divorce. She did not ask for alimony.

HEAVY BONDS.
"WHITE SLAVERY" IN CASE.

Heavy bonds in two cases were demanded of Abraham Kantrowitz and Ray Gelberg by Justice Summerfield and Judge Taft yesterday. They first appeared before Summerfield charged with a statutory offense. Kantrowitz was placed under $10,000 bonds and Gelberg under $2500.

In the Juvenile Court they were charged with contributing to the delinquency of Rebecca Kantrowitz, wife of Kantrowitz, and $3000 bonds in each case was demanded. They were given. Mrs. Kantrowitz, a bride of a few months, complains that her husband endeavored to make a "white slave" of her. Failing in this he induced Gelberg to get her intoxicated and to mistreat her in his presence. She also accuses him of taking her diamonds, worth $200.

Gelberg is only 18 years old. He recently lost his mother by death, and a day or so ago his sister died. An attempt was made to have him released on habeas corpus proceedings before Judge McCormick, which, however, were dismissed.

CASE CONTINUED.
WITNESS SUFFERS RELAPSE.

The health of Mrs. Delia B. Rawson suffered a relapse in Judge Myers's court while she was a witness in the suit against her daughter, Marie D. Fuller, brought by J. W. Barlow on a promissory note. This note, for $3000, represented borrowed money and was signed by Mrs. Rawson as attorney for her daughter.

Mrs. Rawson's memory seemed to be at fault, owing to her illness, and the court was obliged to excuse her. It was asserted by Mrs. Fuller that a portion of the money to pay the note had been turned over to C. H. Fuller, a brother of the plaintiff, and not credited on the note. The case was continued.

WITHOUT CAUSE?
SUES FOR WRONGFUL DISMISSAL.

Alleging that he had been discharged without justification while under contract to erect the Brockman building at Seventh street and Grand avenue, W. A. Schumacher filed suit yesterday against John Brockman for $11,950.17, balance due, and $1937.50 for use of machinery furnished.

The building was to cost $368,838.35. Schumacher, on a 5 per cent. basis, was to receive under the contract, he alleges, $18,441.92. Of this amount he avers he got $6491.75, and says that Brockman failed to comply with the conditions of the contract, dated November 6, 1912.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

AWARDED DAMAGES. A jury in Judge Houser's court yesterday awarded Nathaniel Ferguson $400 damages in his $5000 suit against C. H. Fuller & Co. for personal injuries. Ferguson was hurt when one of the company's vehicles struck the express wagon he was driving. The accident was caused by the horses drawing a truck becoming scared and dashing down the street.

INCORPORATIONS. First Reformed Spiritualists Church Association, incorporators L. M. Norris, Minnie Atherton, Charles Atherton, Charles Whitehead, Madeline Strief, Emma Fourth; Elysian Spring Water and Bottling Company, incorporators A. D. Pingsley, Mae H. Pingsley, A. E. Bingham, capital stock $10,000, subscribed $400.

ONE-TENTH BASIS. One-tenth of the damages asked for by Mrs. Leah Hammond in her suit against the Pacific Electric company was awarded by a jury in Judge Morrison's court yesterday. She asked $15,000 and was given $1500. Mrs. Hammond was struck by a Pacific Electric train on Colorado street, Pasadena.

ESTATE TO WIDOW. H. C. Beville, a retired capitalist, who died in this city November 11 last, leaving a large estate, gives the property to his widow, Mary Reed Johnston Beville. A legacy of $5000 is left to his sister, Addie Wilds of Colusa county. The petition for the probate of the will filed by Mrs. Beville says the estate is in excess of $10,000, consisting largely of securities on deposit at the First National Bank, which have not yet been listed.

DIVIDES ESTATE. The will of Edward Lloyd, filed yesterday, divides the estate, stated to be in excess of $10,000, between the widow, Matilda Lloyd, and a son, Charles Edward Lloyd. The son's share is placed in trust until he becomes 30 years old. When he reaches his majority he is to receive the rents and profits from the property placed in trust. Among the assets are a house at No. 648 West Sixteenth street, and a lot at San Pedro and Market streets.

Social Workers to Meet.

A conference of social workers, representing various local organizations will be held day after tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce building. Discussions will be on the subject of the unemployed in Los Angeles. A. C. Dodds, former chief probation officer and others will speak.

Tomorrow.

EVANS TO BE "FIRED" OR WILL HE RESIGN?

THE question of the retention of David Evans as chairman of the County Civil Service Commission will be decided by the Supervisors tomorrow. One allegation against the active Democratic politician is that he is temporarily unfit for his position, which requires a man of judicial disposition and absolute lack of political bias.

Friends of Evans commented upon his long speech to the Board of Supervisors Thursday afternoon, in the course of which he actually shed tears in his plea not to be "turned out in disgrace."

The complaint against him that he is unfit by reason of disposition and strong party affiliations means nothing, say his friends. They also declare the charter should be amended to allow members of the county central committees of various parties to sit on all judicial and supervising boards.

If Evans resigns tomorrow the Board of Supervisors will doubtless pass a polite form of "regrets," which will enable the lawyer to feel that no official imputation was cast upon him.

The City Club yesterday put the stamp of its approval upon Evans, going out of its way to [illegible] Dist.-Atty. Fredericks. Some time ago the City Club took cognizance of the fight being made to oust Evans because of his active connection with a partisan organization, and referred the matter to the Civil Service Committee to investigate. Francis Kellogg of that committee yesterday made a report which did not present any fact outside of the statement that there appears to be friction between the Evans commission and the District Attorney's office, "according to press reports."

This statement, reflecting the committee's ability to make an exhaustive investigation and report as a non-partisan body would expect such a report to be made, was followed by a resolution which virtually [illegible] a halo over the head of David Evans and condemns the District Attorney for being politically and personally active in his desire to oust the chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

EFFICIENCY EXPERT EXPLAINS TO CITY COMMISSION.

Application of Private Business Methods to Municipal Departments—Herrick System of Accounting to Be Adopted in Public Service of This City.

To increase the operating efficiency of the city departments by improving the methods of accounting, [illegible] Herrick, an efficiency expert of wide repute, met with the Efficiency Commission yesterday afternoon. Herrick is in charge of the accounting organization of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and recently revised the business system of the Board of Education here.

The object of the meeting between Herrick and the Efficiency Commission was to aid the commission in its work and to start the application of Herrick's efficiency system to the work of improving the efficiency and reducing the cost of public service in Los Angeles.

"To attempt a lengthy explanation of how municipal accounts should be arranged would lead into [illegible] technicalities," said Herrick. "Municipalities are attempting to reach a stage of efficiency that was long ago an accepted fact in private concerns, and this is the chief difference between the efficiency work which has been done in municipalities and private concerns. The cause of municipalities being placed in their present unsatisfactory condition can be summed up in the one statement that the executive organization has been based upon political, rather than business ideas.

"The impression has been given that the necessity for meeting legal requirements would prevent the adoption of such methods by a municipality as have been found to be a necessity by private companies. Nothing could be further from the truth. Every function of a municipality has at one time or another been carried on by private concerns. Many of the functions of one municipality are in other municipalities operated for private gain."

Herrick was quizzed freely by members of the Efficiency Commission and he gave the body a considerable amount of valuable data which will no doubt govern that organization to a great extent in recommending revisions in the present system which will redound to the benefit of the city.

CAN'T "TAKE BACK."

Woman Instrumental in Conviction of Husband Would Help Him if She Could.

By a queer twist of fate Mrs. Jennie Rose Tufts, who was instrumental in getting her husband, Abraham Tufts, Jr., convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses, is now unable to "take back" her former steps against her husband.

The law allows a pardon only when a supreme tribunal passes upon the law points of a case tried in a lower court. Tufts is under sentence of [illegible] years. His lawyer, Earl Rogers, has filed a brief in the Supreme Court. If this is denied the Governor will be asked to pardon the man.

In a telegram received yesterday from Mrs. Tufts, she asked Rogers to spare no expense to aid her husband and save him from the results of her own impetuosity. Tufts is now a trusty at the County Jail, pending appeal.

There are also [illegible] like examples of the [illegible] as well as vermilion cuprite or red oxide. There is also a fine [illegible] of aragonite stricture [illegible] appearance of snow-white [illegible] interwoven. Samples of [illegible] massive malachite and azurite in the [illegible] copper are also in the collection, which contains altogether [illegible] hundred specimens.

The exhibit was presented to the chamber by Thomas [illegible], J. O. Royer, who acquired it [illegible] months ago, and was [illegible] J. Nelson Nevius in a [illegible] presented by J. Ross Clark and W. Mudd.

A MODEST OKLAHOMAN.

Ex-Convict Al Jennings is a candidate for the Progressive vote for Governor of Oklahoma. Well, why not? Is a little thing like robbing a few stages and shooting a few miserable Oklahomans to stand in the way of a Progressive's political progress?

HOW CAN HE?

How can any California Congressman who rolled in the very gutters of abject subserviency to Woodrow Wilson by voting for free wool, free sugar, and reduced duty on citrus fruit, have the gall to expect a re-election?

ADAM AND TOOPIOUS.

If Adam had turned out a Toopious, the Creator would probably have been so discouraged that he would have never bothered to use a rib of such a creature to make an Eve and the world would have whirled unpopulated through space.

NO BABE-SOOTHING MACHINE.

You can sew with a machine, clean the carpets and curtains with a machine, wash and dry the dishes with a machine, wash and iron with a machine, and, to a certain extent, aid in the cooking with a machine. But you cannot tend the baby with a machine. You cannot place Skookums in the arms of a machine and watch it walk the floor at midnight with him until his yowls are soothed to slumber.

REDUCED COST OF LIVING, WHERE?

Is there, since the new tariff went into operation, any reduction in the price of meat, potatoes, flour, soap, starch, candles, butter, sugar, eggs, lard, bacon, woolen shirts, cotton cloth, corn meal, salt, nails, carpets or carpet tacks? Where is the "reduced cost of living" expected to make its first appearance?

"Tell us farmer, tell us tailor, tell, oh, tell,
Don't you wish that Woodrow was in—Princeton?"

COMPULSORY ADMISSION.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., who lives in our neighbor State, which for so long was a Democratic Territory, says that he is going into politics and he admits that he is a Democrat. What the young man's real political sentiments are no one really knows. Perhaps the young man himself will never really know. Fate sometimes places men in strange positions. If we were the son of such a man and lived in such a State we, too, would not dare deny it.

WHY WE FAIL.

Love and happiness and success want to find us all, but people are so seldom at home when the knock comes at the door. Most of us are straining at something not for us, a something that is a great ways off. We work with sick wills for what we think we want when all the time the good we do want and need is seeking us. We pass it daily with blind eyes; we tread it down with careless feet; we brush it aside with unthinking hands. How frail a craft is each upon the swelling tides of the great sea, yet how sure were the invisible haven if only the wisdom that is in us all sat at the helm.

GIVING THANKS.

Every day should be Thanksgiving. Nothing puts the soul to sleep like the failure to be grateful. The greatest danger in life lies in taking its goodness for granted. Do you remember to be grateful for each meal? You earn it, of course you do; but you know a hundred men who work harder and have less than you do. Are you thankful for every glass of cold water and for your relish for it? Had you considered the miracle of each sweet breath? Is it possible that you are worried merely about the dollars that you could not spend today if you had them? What is your soul for, anyway?

PANCHO VILLA'S MISTAKE.

If later advices shall confirm the statement that Pancho Villa invaded the British consulate at Chihuahua, roughly handled the representative of Great Britain, seized Luis Terrazas, Jr., who had taken refuge there, and holds him for a ransom of $250,000, with a promise to execute him unless the money is paid, then there will be "something doing" in that vicinity before long.

John Bull has his faults—lots of them—but a neglect to protect his consuls and exact respect for the sanctuary afforded to all who are accorded shelter under the British flag is not one of them. He will bluff on occasions, no doubt of it, but, unlike President Wilson, he never, hardly ever, backs out of a bluff.

THE ADVANCE OF JAPAN.

Japan continues to forge ahead. Her exports for the year show an increase of 22 per cent. over the past year, while imports have increased about 17 per cent. "The increase in the export trade," says an exchange, "is due to the growing demand for raw silk, cotton yarns, cotton textiles, refined sugar, copper, and coal; while the growth of the import trade is due to the increasing demand for sugar, rice, raw cotton, oil cakes, machinery, woolen textiles, phosphates, and paper. Great progress is shown in the import and export trade with other Asiatic countries, especially with China and India. The value of the trade with these two countries shows an increase of 32 per cent. over the previous year, and with European countries an increase of 18 per cent."

HAS IT COME TO THIS?

Has it come to this? Has it? Has it? Is the Democratic party of Los Angeles county really so hard up for leaders?

The Democracy, always sure to do the wrong thing at the wrong time, yes, is on the job again in this fair region. What's the matter with the pure Jeffersonian Bourbons of Los Angeles, or ain't there no such animal extant? Are they suffering from an overdose of bichloride of pie or are the really big men of the party disgusted with the renegade and puerile methods invoked by the Elliott, Rhinehart, Cotton, Muzzy, Handley conventicle of statesmen? They have a perfect right to be nauseated if they are not, and the entire citizenry of Los Angeles as well. Shades and shadows of Stephen M. White, John W. Mitchell, Joe Call, M. P. Snyder, George Patton and scores of simon-pure fighters for "equal rights to all and special privileges to none!" From White to "Hungry John" Elliott and Clarice Rhinehart, the pegtop kiddo—ye gods and Catalina sea cucumbers, such a dizziness! These the leaders and managers of the Los Angeles Democracy! Elliott, a two by four newspaperman (without a job until appointed Collector of the Port at $5000 per,) and Rhinehart, a roustabout reporter whose brilliant managership of the late lamented Municipal News cost the taxpayers $40,000 in ten months, now leaders of the Democratic party in Southern California! And further, a wire report last night stated that Rhinehart is pinning red carnations on big political leaders in Washington in his sixty-bull-power effort to capture the postmastership of Los Angeles, the juiciest Federal plum this side of the Rockies, and his chances are "good."

Rhinehart never knew how to spell Democrat until Woodrow Wilson was nominated for President at Baltimore. Then Bobbie tossed his checked cap into the air thrice and rah-rahed in his own inimitable way and falsettoed "Three rousing cheers for my old prexy, Woody Wilson!" Up to that time Rhinehart was a Socialist and was writing Red stuff for the I.W.W. organlet in this city. Before joining the staff of that sheet he was the cutest little Republican this side of Armageddon. But where is there guy with soul so dead that he wouldst dare rise and say Rhinehart doesn't know enough to get next to the "band wagon!" Well, he did, and for several weeks he was busier than a bull in fly time around Democratic headquarters trying to get over his press-agent Democracy in the local papers. He made a handy lackey for Chairman Cotton and scraped his vest (and he is some waistcoat boy) on the carpet every time Ham sneezed. What cared Bobbie about the high cost of eggs? Wasn't he drawing down $14.52 as press agent for "Prexy" in Los Angeles? Yes, and much of it went for silk socks and gold-tipped cigarettes. So several weeks ago he got Cotton, Secretary Muzzy of the famous committee of "33" (a 1912 Republican, by the way,) and Prof. Lorin A. Handley, who once upon a time was defeated for Congress by nearly 20,000 votes, and several others to sign a petition indorsing him for postmaster. Birds of a feather, they were glad to sign, and Bobbie made undue haste toward Washington. When he arrived he was ushered into the Press Club by a page. Later he called on his old friend and college chum, Woodrow Wilson, (at his own request.) But why further? He took back several fancy suits and a brand-new cane, so his friends think his chances are excellent for landing the $6000 position, the management of which means so much to every man, woman and child in Southern California.

And Elliott, who left Kansas shortly after they found out what was the matter with it, doesn't rank any higher than Rhinehart in the minds and hearts of the old-fashioned Democrats of this section. Why should he? He joined the Democratic party last year after he was given a boy's job as assistant publicity agent for the Democratic State Central Committee. Every time a big Bourbon came to his office "Hungry John" kowtowed, patted him on the back, spread the mayonnaise and gave the visitor his card from his silver card case. Yes, Elliott dotes on white trousers and golf, for he had so much spare time after he was fired as a failure from the Bull Moose sunrise sheet. When Elliott went after the collectorship pap (and he was after it from the moment he joined the party,) he headed for an indorsement from his distinguished friend. After Elliott had elected Wilson he hastened to Washington. He put in his oar for several weeks and came West. He went again and lined up Oscar Underwood, Billy Bryan and other true Jeffersonians. Elliott told them he was O.K. and got away with it. Rudolph Spreckels, another fine renegade Republican, also indorsed Elliott. Now some of the real Democrats are talking of circulating a petition asking Secretary McAdoo to "can" Elliott.

ROYAD WATER WAGONS.

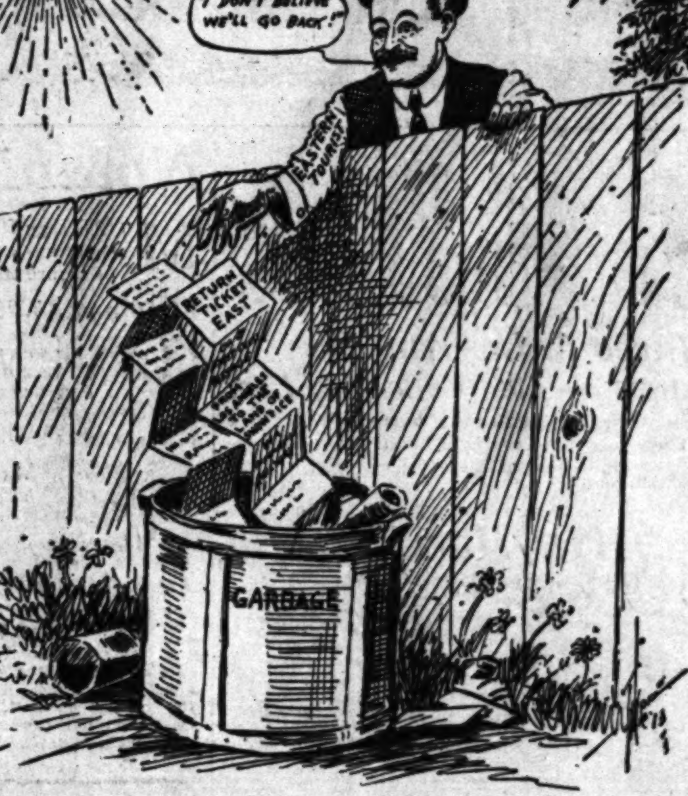
Habits among the leaders of nations seem to be infectious. The water wagon for example. It all started with Farmer Bryan and his grape-juice crusade; it quickly permeated the frontal dome of Doctor Wilson. He went one better than his secretary and patronized lemon and soda.

Anon, the habits of our leading Democrats were noised abroad, and Emperor Bill, presiding at an imperial banquet in Potsdam, waggled a startled ear. Should the beloved fatherland lag behind when Young America points the way? Never! Whereupon he started to damn the pots of Potsdam beer and ordered aqua pura in colored glasses with which to drink all royal toasts.

Ere long to George of England, poring over his stamp collection and picking out tunes with one finger on the Queen's piano, came Rumor, fraught with the latest doings of Billy Boy, Wilson and Royal William. He hastily consulted his better half. She approved at once. Scotch whisky in Buckingham Palace became a thing of the past; and next morning all the seltzer water dealers in Great Britain were advertising themselves as special purveyors to His Majesty the King. George has become a seltzer-water connoisseur.

Russia has yet to be heard from. All foreign news has to be carefully censored before it is gently retailed to the autocratic ruler of all the Russias. His counsellors are not yet sure whether the seeds of nihilism may not lurk in the grape-juice cup of Secretary Bryan. At present his puissant Majesty, the Czar, has hardly recovered from the Beiliss fiasco and is scarcely strong enough to mount the slippery steps of the water wagon.

The Way They Feel About It.



THE TREND OF LITERATURE.

A new tendency, or rather a tendency that has gained new strength, is making its appearance in the novels of the day; a tendency that has merit though it verges closely onto that horror of horrors, that monstrosity of literature that we have always stood in dread of: the novel with a purpose.

Spasmodically there have always appeared such Frankensteins; usually being created only to tear the author's reputation into tatters. But now the creators are the leaders of their profession, and have such skill that the "children of their brain" are better trained, more artistic and more acceptable.

Writers of pure philosophy today are comparatively rare. Essayists, as a class, seem to have perished from the earth. Few volumes are released from the publishers' press dealing coldly with the problems of the period. When we say "few" we mean few in comparison to the number published before the present tide of fiction, as the ocean when rocked by an earthquake, came and overwhelmed the reading world.

The reason is undoubtedly that such books are not so welcome to the public. We don't care to read a "Critique of Pure Reason," "The World as Will and Idea," or other books such as Kant and Schopenhauer ground out with the prolific ease of Duns Scotus. Spencer was the last of the voluminous philosophers. In the future there may be others, but at present in Europe, and especially in Germany where thought is religiously observed, the ponderous thinkers are segregated in numbers not at all formidable. The philosophical writers reaching and affecting the English race dress their ideas in the more radiant and attractive garments of fiction.

When John Milton thundered against Catholicism he did so in bulky prose that had nothing in it but Protestant logic. When Winston Churchill sought to batter down the orthodoxy of the church he dressed his arguments in the guise of a novel and gave us "The Inside of the Cup."

Edith Wharton has turned the rapier of her satire against the American institution of divorce, and offers "The Custom of the Country" as a story with a purpose.

Mrs. Humphry Ward fights the suffragettes with fiction; her latest book "The Coryston Family"—being palpably to show what a mess even a capable woman can make of her life when trying to fill a man's place. Mary Johnston as aggressively defends the suffragettes in "Hagar," and seeks to expose the stupidity of the opposition confronting them.

Reginald Wright Kauffman assails politics in "The Spider's Web"; Hall Caine fights conventional traditions in "The Woman Thou Gavest Me"; H. G. Wells uses his latest novel, "Passionate Friends," to discuss economics while luring the reader through much extraneous matter on social conditions with a story of legitimate love under illegitimate circumstances. John Galsworthy analyzes masculine passion in "The Dark Flower," and hangs his observations on the thin thread of a story.

All of those books have appeared recently; most of them during the past six months; all of them are by prominent authors—authors who stand well to the front in American and English letters, and every one of the books is vital with a purpose—nurtures a philosophy—is the medium of argument.

Once, and not so long ago, the public was offended if the author did more than entertain by narrative. "Trilby," "To Have and to Hold," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "The Helmet of Navarre," "David Harum" and "Monsieur Beaucaire" were the popular books of a few years ago. They told stories; the author kept his or her ideas out of the way—to venture an opinion was almost a breach of literary etiquette. But gradually the change has been wrought. Now the books that are most conspicuous are those that, crudely speaking, have a message. It is thought, rather than description, theory rather than narrative, that the public wants. The change is wholesome. It will mean, if the tendency is maintained, that the puny, sycophantic panderers to sensation will be suppressed, if not eliminated, because they lack the brain power and skill with which to handle the issues of the hours and appeal to an awakened and actively intelligent mass of readers.

DEMOCRATIC PERTURBATION.

From Washington comes the information that Democratic leaders in Congress are much perturbed over the continued high cost of living, since they are made to realize, through complaints that come to them, that the people are going to hold their party responsible for its failure to keep its promise that, if elected, it would cause prices to come down.

The broken promise would not trouble them greatly, as they must have known that it could not be fulfilled; but the prompt indications that the responsibility will be placed where it belongs are decidedly annoying to them.

So now they are planning a campaign of investigation, which they know can only bring out facts already known; but which they hope will serve to divert attention from the fact that tariff reduction has not brought the change for the better which was promised.

Among the many resolutions already introduced or still in preparation, calling for various kinds of inquiry about the cost of living, is one which proposes a "world-wide" investigation (many nice fat jobs in that) with a view to applying remedies, "if any are found."

As the principal causes well known are two, namely, the constant and rapid increase in the population and the inadequate increase, or the decrease, even, in supplies of food products, why does not Congress at once apply the obvious "remedies"—a law prohibiting further increase in the population, and another law making increase in the supply of food products mandatory?

Absurd? Oh, yes; but not more so than the "remedy" of tariff reduction which the Democratic Congress has applied.

When attempt is to be made to accomplish by man's statute a change in the law of gravitation, there must not be any balking at "absurd legislation."

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Your child is not the warmth of your body, the glow of your heart and the treasure of your eyes. Your child is the symbol of all earth's happiness and song and of its every aim and need. Look at your wife! What do you see—a woman dear to you, the sweetheart of your dreams, the gentle one who is your haven from the storm and your escape from the world? No, from her sweet eyes there shines the gladness and the brief of all the women who walk in joy or in sorrow before men. The one will be dear and your joy full-grown only as you are able to see the many in the one, and as she is flesh of your flesh, so shall you know every woman of the sisterhood and every man of the brotherhood to be a loving fragment of yourself. Christmas is a symbol to make us a little more aware that these precious fragments are not lost, but are united by sacrament, even of the last sacrifice. And if you have neither wife nor child it may be that you have all.

PAY IN ADVANCE.

BY WALT MASON FOR THE TIMES.

I went to an inn when I'd finished my work, possessed of no goods but the clothes on my back; I wrote down my name and requested the clerk to give me the niftiest room in the shack. The clerk sized me up with an indolent eye, nor withered away in my arrogant glance; he smiled at my orders, and said in reply: "All guests without baggage must pay in advance." I started to argue the matter at length, said I was insulted by such a demand; "unless there's retraction I'll use all my strength to hoodoo your tavern through all the broad land." The clerk gave a wink to the janitor bold, who gathered me up by the slack of my pance, and sighed, as around on the sidewalk I rolled, "All guests without baggage must pay in advance." Some people can travel around on their gall, though why they should do it is not understood; the man who is welcome in tavern or hall has visible assets to show he is good. Although we have pity for fellows of worth, knocked out by the buffets of fell circumstance, this rule's holding good in all parts of the earth: "The guest without baggage must pay in advance."

"Sure. Why shouldn't I? I've almost made my livin' out of it ever since I was old enough to vote."

FOR WIDOWS AND CHILDREN.

BY HARRY BOWLING.

Christmas is the season for giving and receiving, for family reunions and general good will. After Christmas comes the finish of another year and various possibilities.

Some figures supplied by insurance experts caused me to link these two events. These figures are instructive. They will make thoughtful people think. They are full of human interest. Listen!

There are in this country 3,100,000 widows.

Of these 2,000,000 are more than 45 years of age.

Over 1,000,000 are at least 65 years old.

Ninety per cent. of widows who reach the age of 65 are either wholly or partly dependent on charity or the generosity of others.

Six million women in America are now working for wages, and 32 per cent. of all widows are compelled to earn their own living.

Ninety-four per cent. of rich men's sons have died poor, and—most amazing of all—90 per cent. of the adults have died without leaving anything behind. You would be surprised if you knew how few look far enough ahead to pay funeral expenses.

I don't know how the above figures strike the imagination of others, but to me they picture a sad revelation of national unthrift. We are a home-loving, home-building nation. There are few living men but would die to protect their wives and homes, yet how many die and leave them unprotected. No threat of anarchy, no fear of socialism and its accompanying dissolution of family ties need disturb a people in whom the love of home is so ingrained.

One thing only is wanting. We must learn a little more thrift. We must be a little less careless about the future. We must reduce the number of dependent widows. There are too few lives properly insured.

Don't tell me very many are unable to afford the yearly premium. Figure the amounts spent on pleasure and amusement every year. We are not a hard-up nation. Of the 1,000,000 aged widows who are at present dependent on charity or generous relatives, at least 900,000 could have been assured an income in old age, had their husbands been taught the value of thrift. Of the million and more widows who are compelled to work for a living in at least 900,000 cases this would have been unnecessary did people remember that their obligations to society do not finish with their own deaths.

Often, too, in this respect wives are as thoughtless as husbands, since they value immediate millinery and theater tickets today more than provision against hardships that may or may not mature. Sometimes when a husband dies these hardships do mature, instead of the life policy that would have staved them off.

America is the best generally-insured nation in the world. Perhaps this is why our standard of citizenship is so high. For these two go together, and against them the doctrines of Prudhomme will beat in vain. But even America is badly underinsured as the above-quoted figures will prove. There is still too much gambling with the future of families.

Surely provision against want for those we love is an appropriate way of celebrating Christmas. We see around us thousands of future widows and orphans. A small subtraction today from the money spent annually in pleasure and amusement will provide ease and comfort for these in that future that is bound to become the present.

Neglected life insurance makes working widows. Faithful service should not be rewarded with possible poverty. Said the president of one of our insurance companies once to a hesitating man: "That paper you can make worth $5000 to your family. You may tear it up. I will not dare."

Is this providing for widows and orphans a strange plea for this special season of the year? Is life insurance too commercial to be included in our Christmas giving? Why, bound up in it is the principle of Christianity, of patriotism, of home love and home duty; and such as these are never out of season.

OUSTED FROM MONEYLESS JOB.

GRIM JOKE SPRUNG ON JUVENILE COURT VOLUNTEER.

Woman Doctor Who Created Place of Physician to Boys and Girls Ill Under Court Care, and Served Without Pay, Displaced by Salaried Official.

Dr. Olga McNeil's dismissal yesterday from the unsalaried position of physician to the wards of the Juvenile Court in the County Hospital, was greeted with a philosophical smile. She did, however, murmur something about "gratitude."

Dr. McNeil had cared for the patients free of charge in the juvenile ward since it was established in August, 1912. She has been succeeded by Dr. Harriet Probasco, who draws a salary as a probation officer.

Wealth and social connections have facilitated Dr. Probasco's work for the Juvenile Court. She has been especially successful in finding homes for unfortunate boys and girls.

"Of course, I don't care a bit," Dr. McNeil said yesterday, in her office in the Marsh-Strong building. "But it just looked a little funny since I organized the work and did it for more than a year without pay, that I was dismissed as I was. But who would worry about losing a position that has no salary? Besides I had to neglect my private practice to do the work.

"I have no objections to make, but it's just one of those common occurrences in life that makes one contemplative. The word gratitude in quotation marks and with a question mark after it floats before my mind."

One thing that especially amused Dr. McNeil was a denial that she had ever been appointed to the position. When she heard several days ago that she was to lose the moneyless job she wrote to the Juvenile Committee and received this reply, signed by its secretary, Margaret Ruth Parker:

"The matter of your duties and that of Dr. Probasco were discussed at the meeting of the committee held yesterday afternoon. The committee does not see how it can settle anything. It did not appoint either of you women and it thinks that you will have to take the matter up with the County Hospital authorities or the Board of County Supervisors, or both.

"Dr. Probasco received her appointment at the hands of the supervisors. The committee had nothing to do with it.

"The committee is on record as wishing to have you informed of its appreciation of your labor for the girls in your care."

Dr. McNeil was in doubt as to whether she had been dismissed or not, until she received a communication yesterday from Judge Taft of the Juvenile Court to this effect:

"Dear Doctor: Dr. Probasco has been duly elected physician for the Juvenile Court and for the best interests of the service I deem it necessary that the juvenile ward at the County Hospital be placed in her charge. I have requested of the superintendent that this be done."

Dr. Olga McNeil,

Who was "fired" from the unsalaried position of Juvenile Court physician. Her good-natured philosophy of life enables her to view the situation with amusement, but at the same time she regards the circumstance as rather odd since she asserts she organized the work and has given her services free for more than a year.

"THE ARROW MAKER."

Thirty-five Hundred People Witness Creditable Performance of Indian Play by Manual Arts Students.

Thirty-five hundred persons attended Friday afternoon and evening performances of "The Arrow Maker," produced by students of the Manual Arts High School at Forty-second street and Vermont avenue. The play, which is replete with Indian life and action, was splendidly presented by the young actors in the school auditorium. The scenery was attractive and in harmony with the theme.

Miss Helen Eddy made a decided hit as the priestess. Ynez Lowe gave a fine portrayal of Bright Water, wife of the worthless Simwa. Lawrence Tibbett was especially good as Simwa, the Arrow Maker, and Leo Holderman as Padahoon, his rival for leadership. Forrester Chase played the old blind chief, Rain Wind, like a professional. Ruth Wagner and fellow-students in the art department painted the scenery and Miss Maude Howell directed the play.

Among the big scenes was the gathering of the warriors to choose a new chief, the bridal scene, the withdrawal of the blessing of the priestess from the Arrow Maker and the attempt to take the life of the priestess.

gate or else they fail to locate the special cases where even the little they could offer would come as a benediction from ministering angels to leave the fragrance of its kindness like sunshine on the slopes of an entire year.

Everyone can help, whether it is 10 cents or $10; whether he desires to do this in person and enrich the whole year by seeing the joy he has given or whether he prefers it done in secret for the sake of humanity. He can do it and know that whatever is given will be applied to sad and absolute destitution and in cases of actual merit as proved by systematic and thorough investigation. He can have the names and addresses of just as many people as he would like to help. He can pick out the very sort of case which most appeals to him. He can go himself, send a messenger or have one of two perfectly reliable committees perform this service of love and good will.

The big clubs and the business and charitable organizations cannot take care of everything. The world isn't made up of club men. The sunshine of life is not scattered on these occasion by its organizations. Exactly as the world is peopled by individuals, so must its help come from them. The family able to spend five dollars on another family means as much in this case as the millionaire member of the Jonathan or the California Clubs. The bachelor with no family and no club or business affiliation who can spend two dollars is as welcome to the name of some child without a toy or some pitifully destitute home without a Christmas dinner as the president of a bank would be.

It was to enable all to help that the Good Fellows Committee was organized at Christopher's yesterday. The call was out only for a day. The response proved the heart of Los Angeles. Every organization whose business is business was represented by men of red blood, good brains and the right disposition. The California, the Jonathan, the Rotary, the Advertising and a dozen other clubs were represented there, to say that their members, as far as they could be reached in time, will share the burden of Santa Claus Motley Flint and the Shriners. The banks and their Christmas Committee had a man or two present with ideas and cash to back the enterprise. The head of a big department of the Santa Fe Railway was there to say that he has already sent a letter to 500 of his employees who get good wages, begging them for a little division.

The committee decided that it will have headquarters at the office of H. C. Warden, secretary of the Rotary Club, with offices at Nos. 506-7 Delta building, to take care of every response to this appeal.

Persons who want to take care of a family on that day for little or for much, are urged to write to Warden or to Roger M. Andrews, chairman of the committee, at the Delta building office, at once; or they can telephone to F7343 or Main 7343, and give their names and addresses. They will instantly be given the name of an investigated case, where there exists an urgent need for help. If they have clothing, groceries or toys which they can donate, and do not wish to deliver them to individual families, they may telephone or write to the Delta building, offices of the Rotary Club, and a wagon will be sent for the things, and will also deliver them where they will do the most good.

No man could read the letters of appeal from the babies themselves and not have his heart and pocketbook touched. One child tells of the "best papa in the world" who has been hurt and who cannot find work. The baby says they have just two dimes left when he is writing; that they have had nothing to eat but bread for a week and that not one of four little people in that home have shoes of any kind.

Another widow has six children without enough clothing to keep them warm, with a fatherless baby about to be born and hardly food to sustain life in her body under normal conditions. She pleads for some 10-cent toy for the three least ones, who never missed a Christmas before and who can't understand.

These aren't exceptions. Flint has hundreds of such letters.

Manual Arts High School students in "The Arrow Maker,"

Pied Piper Pageant.

GO FORTH TO RUBBER AND REMAIN TO PAY.

Humors of the Holiday Hunt on the Plate-Glass Circuit—Perennial Christmas Joy Jag at Its Height of Inebriety—Woes of the Purse Holder and Perplexities of the Gift Buyer.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

CHRISTMAS on the Plate Glass Circuit, and all humanity playing "speaking parts!" Christmas and the Pied Piper Pageant, and everybody doing that Rapturous Rummage Rag!

That's Broadway, this time o' year, when it's the open season for Santa Claus, and the big thoroughfare has become one mighty holiday hunt.

"What'll you have, ma'am?" the salesman with the set-piece smile beams across a fascinating heap of Christmas junk, in one of the gift garages. It's a case in which silence would be golden, but do you keep silence? You do not. Verily it's the season when you go forth to rubber and remain to pay.

"Guess I know why they spell it 'X-Mas,'" muttered a man with a pained smile and his purse in a sling, down in front of a department store, where he was surrounded by his family all wishing audibly for something. "X stands for the unknown quantity. 'X-Mas' is the way to spell it all right."

The crowd seethes up and down and across. (It wouldn't be a Sunday supplement Christmas crowd if it didn't seethe!) Nobody "keeps to the right." Everybody crowds the shop windows, and even the crossing policeman, god of Gasoline Row, often waggles and whistles in vain. There are people shopping in limousines, and people going by hand as it were. Some are shopping for diamonds and some for Noah's arks and winter flannels.

"We're all shuffling and it's nearly time to deal," as a bridge-playing friend feelingly put it, when I met her at the jeweler's.

"Season of shopping's set in with unusual severity!" called a merchant cheerfully to his fellow next door.

And everybody has the perennial Christmas joy jag. Nobody shops calmly and unimpassionedly. Are we purchasing flannel pajamas for old Uncle Joey? We spill emotion all over them. Are we buying woolen hose for Grandmother Jones on our husband's side? We breathe rabid enthusiasm. Are we looking at hot-water bags for Aunt Mary? We hover over them with tender reflections. Though Christmas annually recurs and presents an unvarying similarity to itself, our enthusiasm never dies.

The big ingrowing arcade shop windows draw us, the vistas of colored lights illumining the rich fabrics and jewels fascinate us, and even the dourest drug-store is decked in wreathes of holly and celluloid mirrors. And many a shop window has its drama of wax figures. The lovely wax lady with the horsehaid eyelashes masquerades as the angel of the Christmas tree; but we all know her for the hussy with a past of straight fronts and lingeries! And the waxen gent who is hypocritically posing as the generous Saint Nick, only last week exhibited his most intimate garments with the mercenary price-marks on them!

Seductive Oriental shops give visions of carved ebony chairs, gilt tapestried Japanese ancestors in artistic agonies of gold thread, and seductive teakwood tables set out with etched brass coffee sets.

"But the character of the gifts has changed so," wails a shopper, bending over the real lace collars in an embroidery shop. "People used to be satisfied with home-brewed pen-wipers and plush albums and knit suspenders, and orange plaques, and now you've got to give 'em hand painted calendars and silk embroidered laundry bags and gold vanity boxes."

CHRISTMAS KIDS.

And isn't the city urchin the spoiled kid? He sees Santa every day for three weeks, in three different places. He becomes a connoisseur in Santa Clauses, and doesn't he just sneer at any Saint Nick, who has anything wrong with his make-up? He views continuous performances of Punch and Judy in the toy departments, bangs on the little young pianos, clangs the fire-engine bells, busts the toy autos and gorges himself with pre-Christmas candy.

Down in the basements, loose children get under your feet, and pathetic mothers strive to stretch their little Christmas money over many youngsters' desires. Sometimes you come across a kid buying something for his mother that will make her weep for the wasted money. In many a basement restroom, a big family of out-of-towners open lunch baskets and refresh themselves.

"D'want twousies and shirts and shoes!" wails a youngster. "Them ain't no real Christmas presents! I want a elephant and a Irish mail, I do!"

"Darling, I'll give you a nickel if you'll stick a pin in that balloon!" I hear a harassed mamma say to her offspring.

Darling acquiesces with alacrity, listening with joy to the resulting pop. And buys a piercing whistle with the nickel, the moment mommer's back is turned!

MEN SHOPPERS.

There don't seem to be many men shoppers. But I saw one. He was talking to his wife and he looked sad. It seemed his wife had just given him a present of a pair of trousers, one of those previous presents because they are needed. One gathered she had picked them out herself and that they were too small. Anyhow, he said, with tears in his eyes, he could never wear 'em, unless it was to a masquerade, dressed as a sausage!

Down at Sixth street I met a bachelor I know, and he proved an oracle.

"People shop in one of two ways," he expounded. "Either they buy a lot of things and wish them on their friends haphazard, or they make out little lists, and go downtown and check them off as they buy. You can always judge what system has been used on you by the present you get. By the former method you're always surprised. You get something you never heard of, to do something with that you never do. But you can't beat the other system. The criminal listens to every chance wish of yours made in ill-advised moments throughout the year, and runs home quickly and jots it down. And at Christmas you get some idiotic thing you've long ceased to wish for, or maybe never wanted much anyhow."

OTHER SHOPPERS.

Some busy people have an understudy to do all their Christmas shopping for them. A girl sat at her desk and told me all about it.

"You get your mother or somebody to get the things and send them, just giving her a list. It's quite exciting when you get the notes from your friends and find out what you've given them. Sometimes I have bets up as to what mother's sent."

Of course, we all skirmish around among the presents we got last year, which we haven't been able to use up on birthdays or in showers, wrinkling to remember who gave us which, in order to be sure not to give the present back to the same person this year.

"You don't have to, Hannah, you don't have to at all!" I heard a voice behind me. "We have them perfectly good calenders we got last year, and we can just put fresh calendars on this year, and give 'em to Jack and Phil. There ain't a fly speck on 'em!"

The Malaprops are out buying presents, of course. A night-watchman draws an opera hat and a deep-sea diver an umbrella; the president of the Audubon Society gets an aigrette off the Christmas tree, and a lady who is studying to be a nun draws a pair of silk stockings; a phonograph is delivered at the deaf and dumb asylum, and the negro wash-lady has a curling iron wished on her!

OTHER SIDE OF THE TAPESTRY.

The shop girl is on the other side of the Christmas tapestry.

"Looka these human dromedaries," sighs a girl at the glove counter, which is somewhat removed from the cyclone center of holiday shopping. "Looka the things they're wishing on their helpless and unresistin' friends. Whada they care, as long as they get rid o' the things they buy? I know a woman says she's mentally gave everything to somebody, except one thing. That's a moustache cup. She got a lot of 'em cheap, 'cause they ain't recherche this season. She give two of 'em to gent'men friends, 'cause a man's liable to break out with a moustache any time. And there's only a maiden aunt left to give anything to; and she don't see how she's ever goin' to wish a moustache cup onto a lady."

"Well, I've got a system that's a time saver, believe me!" answered the flossy-headed girl with the jet earrings. "I've gave a plush handkerchief holder to three fellahs, running now, for Christmas. When we broke off, he'd always send it back, without using, of course. I know he w[illegible] use it. Men never do. They [illegible] moon over a thing and think wh[illegible] dear little girl you are to make [illegible] for him, and flatter themselves th[illegible] somebody, and then put the th[illegible] away in their trunks and forget [illegible] about it, till they get mad and [illegible] up the things you've given them [illegible] send back. And there you have [illegible] good as new! I saw one of 'em t[illegible] day, with his wife."

"Yes, and ain't it awful how [illegible] childhood's friends come in and [illegible] you at this merry yuletide? Th[illegible] oughta know when a girl occupi[illegible] position like this, her life belo[illegible] to the great public, and leave [illegible] alone. My Gawd, here comes [illegible] other. Pipe that beaded [illegible] will you? Why the ark's the [illegible] marsh compared to that; bet [illegible] she worked in the hose—— [illegible] hello, dearie. You look just the [illegible] We don't get to see old friends [illegible] shut up in our livin' prisons. [illegible] lives belong to the public, you [illegible] say, while you lead the lovely, sh[illegible]tered life. My, look at'r back! [illegible] they get to be use-to-was's when [illegible] stay home all the time? Dearie, h[illegible] comes Mrs. Gotrox. Put away [illegible] five-buttoned; she'll buy the [illegible] she don't see the others. I [illegible] cause she's buyin' 'em for a [illegible] that ain't expected to live, and [illegible] knows she'll get 'em back soon [illegible] how. You gotta use tact in this bu[illegible]ness. Here comes that ole gr[illegible] wantin' to buy gloves for his [illegible] girl. Twenty-button? Yes'r, [illegible]tainly, I'll try 'em on. No, th[illegible] I can fasten 'em on myself. Ain't [illegible] awful, this business where you [illegible] be a perfec' lady when you're [illegible] achin' to nick a gen't dial for [illegible] Christmas? Yes, Harold's coming [illegible] dinner. Yes, I think he bought [illegible] pale pink one. I know he was [illegible]ing at 'em, 'cause I inquired, [illegible] then he's worked in draperies, [illegible] know, and he's got swell taste, [illegible] like a man that's been workin' [illegible] professional lines, chiropodist [illegible] such."

"Oh, that reminds me, Trilby, [illegible] you see that gink that was in [illegible] and said he wanted some gloves [illegible] his wife, and I asked him what [illegible] and he says he didn't know, but [illegible] was about 35! Wouldn't that [illegible] your slats? Merry Christmas! [illegible]

AND CHRISTMAS EVE.

Playing the plate glass circuit [illegible] Christmas Eve will be the best of [illegible] The truth of the matter is, we'[illegible] grow sort of maudlin along [illegible] Christmas time. And when the gr[illegible] day comes, we're just as [illegible] happy over the presents we've [illegible] as we were last year. The ho[illegible]brewed opera bag in phoney [illegible] looks like a rainbow to a [illegible]bound sailor; the Turkish slippers [illegible] can never, never wear, appear [illegible] benizons of hope when there's [illegible] benizon in the house; the queer-lo[illegible]ing yarn things that the childr[illegible] gave us turn out to be bed [illegible] and we turn away our heads [illegible] brush away a tear at the pathos [illegible] of little fingers, (anyway, till we f[illegible] out the hired girl made 'em.) [illegible] we'll weep over poems about [illegible] yule log, (though we don't know wh[illegible] a yule log is,) and cry over [illegible] stories about kids whose hard-hea[illegible] uncle came through with the Chri[illegible]mas plunder at the last moment. And as for the Christmas [illegible] though he usually [illegible] horribly [illegible] a Christmas carol is a dreary [illegible] anyhow, why we simply can't [illegible] one mentioned without spilling [illegible]timent all over the place.

And so the Christmas crowd [illegible] on its way, loving and hating [illegible]ing and expecting, and giving [illegible] taking, just as of old.

Allegretti Chocolate Company Organizes

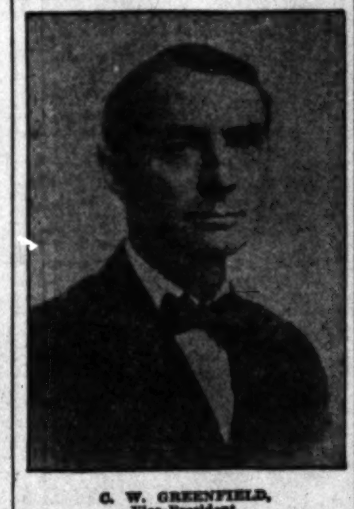
New Directors and Increased Capital for the Giacomo Allegretti Company

The Giacomo Allegretti Company, manufacturers of chocolates that are celebrated for their exquisite taste and delicious flavor, was re-organized last Thursday. A board of new directors and officers was elected and increased capital subscribed for the immediate and necessary expansion of business.

JO. S. JOPLIN,
President and General Manager.

Mr. Joplin severed his connection with the Commercial Club of Bloomington, Ill., as Executive Secretary, last month, and comes well prepared, as a former successful business man and by experience in commercial life to assume the duties, which will fall to him in the promotion of the company's interests.

This is not Mr. Joplin's first trip to Los Angeles, as he has visited California and this city on various occasions and was so impressed by our glorious climate and industrial possibilities that he accepted the opportunity to identify himself with a favorable enterprise in our growing coast country. His many friends here will be glad to know he will make Los Angeles his home.



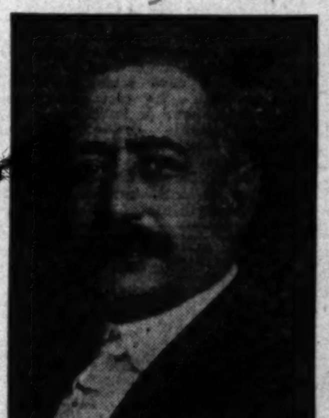
C. W. GREENFIELD,
Vice-President.

Mr. Greenfield, who was elected Vice-President, is a prominent lawyer and resident of Chicago, but is known in Los Angeles through sojourns here, and his connections in a business way.

The Giacomo Allegretti Company was incorporated under the laws of California a year ago with offices at 819 East Ninth street, Los Angeles, and has since conducted a manufacturing plant at the same location, with wholesale and retail outlets for its product; thus for the first time offering on the Pacific Coast under the direction of Mr. Allegretti, the Bitter Sweets and other chocolate creams so familiarly known through the Eastern States.

The progress and demands of the business have been steady and substantial under the limited efforts, but Mr. Joplin who acquires an interest in the company, will enter into the active business management of its affairs, while Mr. Allegretti will be personally in charge of the manufacture, with the intention of introducing the Giacomo Allegretti chocolates throughout the Pacific Coast States.

Mr. G. Allegretti, a pronounced artist in the creation of confections of quality with an experience of twenty years, will devote his efforts to a reproduction from the local plant of all the Giacomo Allegretti chocolates under his exclusive formulas and recipes. It is not generally known but it was Mr. Allegretti who invented the soft-center, hand-rolled Bitter Sweets which gained such popularity and which will be continued by him as one of the especial high grade chocolates. Mr. Allegretti made numerous trips to Los Angeles before his final location here a year ago, and is not a stranger in our midst.



GIACOMO ALLEGRETTI,
Sec'y.-Treas. and Manager of Manufacturing

A model retail store or candy shop has already been established in the Hotel Maryland, Los Robles and Colorado streets, Pasadena, where the Allegretti Chocolates may be obtained by the many patrons from the East as well as the local devotees. A fountain fully equipped in the most modern style has been installed and every preparation made to dispense all simple or fancy mixed drinks and to supply the delicious hot chocolate made with a special process as originated by Mr. Allegretti.

An attractive line of the Giacomo Allegretti chocolates has also been placed in the Hotel Virginia at Long Beach and the visiting friends at this resort may readily be supplied. They may also be found at the Walter E. Smith Co., and leading druggists. For the holiday trade a retail stand well stocked with confections has been opened in the "Christmas Shop," at 321-5 West Seventh street, and these noted chocolates may be had fresh in suitable Christmas boxes, or baskets.

The organization of the company as now perfected, contemplates much wider extension, but neither Mr. Joplin nor Mr. Allegretti were prepared to make at the present any definite statement as to their future plans. However, it is understood that as soon as practicable, some very material changes, and additions will be made that will permit of a much larger output and will become another important factor in the growing industrial development of Los Angeles.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

The close of this month may see the big Federal officials in Southern California. It seems to be regarded in political circles as a certainty that the Secretary of the Interior has decided upon the [illegible] who wish to succeed Register Frank Buren and Receiver Robinson in the local land office; that the United States Marshal will also be named, and that for the time being, at least, there will be no change in the following offices: [illegible] in Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Engineer, Forest Service, geological surveyor,, irrigation branch of Indian Service; naturalization examiner, special examiner of the Pension Bureau; Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, now held by Surgeon S. D. Brooks; Reclamation Service and mineral land [illegible].

[illegible] has it that the successor to [illegible] Lee V. Youngworth is to be [illegible] T. Walton of Fresno, a life-long [illegible] of Congressman Church. As [illegible] stand at this time in the distribution of Federal patronage in California, the Fresno Congressman has [illegible] given the complete overlook, so [illegible] speak. Therefore, argue the wise [illegible] politicians, Church is due to [illegible], and, as Walton is the only [illegible] whom he is known to have urged [illegible] any special consideration, Walton [illegible] land on both feet. But nevertheless and with all due respect to the [illegible] sagacious followers of the [illegible] practices, there is a growing [illegible] abroad that the statesman from [illegible] Fresno wilds is destined to meet [illegible] a complete upset in his marshalship hopes, and that there is a good probability of a Los Angeles man landing the plum. Therefore a remention [illegible] local candidates cannot be [illegible], and so here they are, to wit: W. [illegible] Moore, W. T. Harris, R. G. Doyle [illegible] J. Ryan. Moore is probably the [illegible] known of the bunch, as he has [illegible] longest in the fight against Democratic [illegible] rings and rapacity.

[illegible], everything must have an end, [illegible] the Democrats have found it in [illegible] formation of a committee to assist the President. I get it that certain Democrats who have been voting [illegible] years have reached the conclusion that President Wilson needs [illegible] kept in touch with their views on all important questions, and so they have formed a sort of an advisory cabinet, as it were. As might be expected, the leading lights are Federal job-holders, or would-be job-holders. They meet at luncheon regularly on the second floor of a Third-street cafeteria, and away from the madding crowd they discuss national problems. If there is anything or any question in which the President needs information, here he may find it on tap, awaiting merely the tapping. There is also information here for Chairman Cotton and his county committee, which this bunch of purifiers are determined to put on skids headed for political oblivion.

To get on the government land preserves is the ambition of quite a herd of Democrats and near-Democrats, as witness the crowd that is besieging the office of Secretary Lane of the Interior Department. The famous Committee of Thirty-three now has under official consideration the indorsement and recommendation of men or women for Register and Receiver of the Los Angeles Land Office. The list of candidates, however, includes half a score of residents of other counties, with Imperial well to the front. At the last meeting of the Democratic Committee, ready to accept the indorsement as well as the jobs, were the following staunch and striving Democrats: Judge Samuel M. Smyser, John D. Roche, U. S. Frye and Dr. T. B. Bentley, all residents of Los Angeles; Dr. Mary J. Helm of Long Beach, and Howard Carpenter of Inglewood, all of whom wish to be Register of the Land Office, while the duties and salary of the Receiver appeal to Alexander Mitchell, the bard of Verdugo; Daniel Neuhart, the original "war horse" of the local Democracy, and Johnny Clancy, known to all the faithful. The committee, however, has decided to postpone action for a while, as it is conceded to be a hard task to indorse only two persons out of so many who are deserving. There is some whispering that Attorney Fred W. Shelly of Pasadena might land the Registership if he is induced to enter the race.

Bill Moore has organized a Democratic club, which, he asserts, will prove to be the real thing, as clubs go among the Bourbons, and that is saying a lot more than appears upon the surface. Dr. Randolph W. Hill proposes to be a president that is a president, and the board of directors is composed of fifteen office-holders, or job-chasers. Lloyd W. McAtee is the efficient secretary and Col. Timothy Spellacy shares with Boss Moore in the direction of affairs. "Silver Dick" Warner is not at the head or at the feet of the ned organization, and at this writing there isn't any probability that Dick will have any more to do with the club and its political woes than W. R. Hearst, and the latter political flea is persona non grata with this particular bunch of Democrats. Among those not invited to the first meeting of the new organization were R. F. del Valle, Albert M. Norton, James Hanley, Milton K. Young, W. T. Harris, Frank Haddock, Edgar F. Davis, Oscar Ringo, Tom Vacher, Herb Muzzy, Olin Wellborn, Joseph Mesmer, Chairman H. H. Cotton of the county committee, Editor S. A. Conners of the Jeffersonian, Councilman Martin Betkouski, F. W. Shelly, "Big Joe" Simons or "Little Walt" Simons, and others. Consequently, the new club starts off under the most promising prospects of always being in trouble.

Whither that recent noise relative to one James D. Phelan and his reported anxiety to become known near and far as a seeker after the Democratic nomination for United States Senator? There seems to have been a pin stuck into the Phelan balloon, and I gather that the Hon. James D. is not so cocksure today as he was a few weeks ago that the California Democracy will hail his aspirations with glee and gladsome acclaim. Really, there appears to be some people amid the "silk sox" Democracy who do not acclaim with any marked degree of acclamation over Phelan as a Senatorial prospect. Among the "roughnecks" he is regarded either as a good prospect for some easy money, or as not worth talking about. The local Phelan boosters have been quiet of late, and the suspicion is becoming stronger that after all the fuss and noise, it isn't by any means a sure thing that the San Franciscan will decide to be a candidate for Perkins's toga. I am unable to chase this rumor to a solid foundation, but wherever the question is propounded as to the cause of this stillness, up pops the Yankee answer—another inquiry, which invariably is framed thusly: "What do you figure the women will do in the next campaign?" And I just as invariably give it up; I don't even know what the woman next door is going to do in the next campaign, revival, political, or tag-selling.

If Secretary of the Interior Lane is going to wait upon the request of Attorney C. S. McKelvey before he decides whether or no he will appoint J. W. O'Day Register or Receiver of the local Land Office, he might just as well wait a bit longer and get the news that J. Wiley Harris of Santa Ana is also ready to take one of these lucrative jobs, with a preference for the Registership.

Some surprise was occasioned in City Hall circles the past week by the eastern trip of Mayor Rose. There was an elevating of eyebrows whenever reference was made to the fact, but there was a general agreement that the trip was one that His Honor had long contemplated. Some of his political opponents, however, were prone to assert that the Mayor is emulating the example of ex-Mayor Snyder, who, while the city's Chief Executive, was conceded to be a past master in the art of dodging burning questions and side-stepping trouble. There has also been considerable gossip over the Mayor's trip because of the cordial approval which it has been accorded by the newspapers that so viciously fought Rose's election.

THE WATCHMAN.

POLITICAL TIPS.

The present Democratic administration was elected on a platform which condemned "the profligate waste of money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation, through the lavish appropriations of recent Republican Congresses." There were also demands for a return to simplicity and economy, and a reduction in the number of useless officers. The administration became Democratic Congress became Democratic. The manner in which the present Democrat government is observing the demands of the Baltimore platform, is to ask for appropriations for the next fiscal year of $1,108,681,777, an amount $34,175,907 greater than was asked for last year by a Republican administration. The way of Democratic simplicity leads to the more profligate waste of money wrung from the people. The Executive alone calls for $55,318 more than the uppropriations made last year, while the Democratic simplicity of Mr. Bryan's State Department demands $404,780 more.

There has been no reduction in the number of useless offices. On the contrary, many new offices have been created partly to satisfy the clamor of Democrats for jobs and partly to carry out new schemes of taxation to wring more money from the people. There have been lavish and profligate expenditures by a Democratic Congress on useless and senseless investigations that have accomplished nothing but a waste of the people's money. The Democratic platform was a flim-flam.

When the Democratic administration went into power in Washington it was announced that the people were to be taken into the secrets of the government, and there was to be no more secrecy. Writing on this subject in Leslie's, Oswald F. Schuette, Washington correspondent of the Inter Ocean, says that in the eight months since the beginning of the Democratic administration "pitiless publicity" has become almost a by-word of derision among the 200 trained newspaper correspondents in Washington. Instead of increased publicity of governmental affairs "a lot of doors that used to be open have been locked and a lot of lights that used to shine have been turned off." There are dark corners now that no one dare survey, and whole departments are screened which in the past have been open to public scrutiny.

Secretary Houston of the Agricultural Department, evidently thinks President Wilson has nothing coming from Ohio, for during the recent visit to Washington of the "Ohio Corn Boys," he turned a boycott upon them from his department, while the officials of the other departments displayed a keen interest in the visit of the Ohioans, and did their best to show them a good time. There's a little feud between the Federal Departments over the agricultural extension work among the farm children. The State Board of Agriculture began the work first, and thus blocked the department agents in Ohio. This exhibition of State's rights is evidently too much for Secretary Houston.

One of the latest backsliders from the Bull Moose party is William A. Prendergast, Comptroller of New York City, who was in the front rank of the Progressive movement in his State last year. He now announces "that the result of the Presidential election makes it certain that the third-party idea was not acceptable to the American people, and that the continuation of the third-party movement can have no other effect than the permanent success of the Democratic party."

Mr. Bryan has also been studying the election figures of 1912, and regarding their significance, says: "It has seemed inevitable that some readjustment should take place. There are two things likely to happen if the Progressive Republican vote continues to slump back to the Republican party. The first is that the Republican party is likely to add progressive features to its platform, and, as there are a great many degrees of progressiveism, these concessions will vary in different sections. The second thing apt to happen is that the more radical Progressives are likely to act with the Democratic party instead of going back to the Republican party."

Senator Sherman of Illinois sees danger in President Wilson's nation-wide primary plan as a means of breaking down State lines, and says if this suggestion is listened to, a message will soon be received from the White House advocating the initiative, the referendum and the recall of judges. "What you have to do," he says, "is to preserve the lawful rights of the States. The proposition for a nation-wide Presidential primary tends to lead to the desruction of the union of States."

SLEEP DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE ATD RHEUMATISM VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Quick Relief.

A few doses of Croxone never fail to relieve such troubles, because it cleans out the clogged up, inactive organs, and makes them work properly. It soaks right into the kidneys, cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the tender membranes of the bladder; dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, and scratch and irritate, and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the lifeless kidneys so they can filter, and sift the poison from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure—so positive—so quick and lasting are the results obtained from Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days, are often all that is required to end the worst backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and put the kidneys in healthy, active condition.

It is practically impossible to take this quick-acting, effective preparation, without results.

An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to promptly give desired results, regardless of how old you are or how long you have suffered.

ASK SECRETARY TO INVESTIGATE.

Homesteaders Want Lane to Revoke His Order.

Forty-Acre Limit Believed Unjust to Settlers.

Most of Claims Are Over Six Years' Tenure.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX, (Ariz.) Dec. 11.—Already the homesteaders on outer-lying lands in the Salt River Valley have organized to protest against enforcement of the order of Secretary Lane cutting the homestead limit to forty acres under the local irrigation project. At the head of the organization is San F. Webb, once president of the Territorial Council. Now being prepared, is a petition asking the Secretary to defer action until after he has personally investigated the conditions existing here, and under which permanent improvements have been made. It is understood that he has scheduled a trip to the Salt River Valley for some time within the next month. About 200 homestead entrymen already have joined in the protest, occupants of about 17,000 acres. They lay especial stress upon the fact that most of their claims are from six to ten years old, and in that time, they believe, they have established a tenure of occupancy that should not be disturbed.

Now visiting the local reclamation project are Gen. William L. Marshall of Washington, consulting engineer of Secretary Lane, and Supervising Engineer L. C. Hill of the United States reclamation service. They are making a general inspection of the project, without reference to the latest ruling of the Secretary of the Interior concerning homestead lands.

SYSTEM OF GOOD ROADS.

The amount of money considered necessary for the improvement of roads of Maricopa county, according to plans made by a joint committee headed by Chairman L. B. Orme of the Board of Supervisors, has risen from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. It is proposed to build a system of main highways, from which shall radiate at least fifty miles of feeders. Throughout the farming districts of the county, roads very generally are to be found around every square mile, and the extent of improvement that might eventually be known can be appreciated in the statement that the rural mail delivery routes of the valley daily cover nearly 300 miles, with an additional 100 miles of new routes in prospect. It has been decided that the best system will probably be to build of concrete, at a cost of about $7000 a mile. Two committees have been appointed to study roads elsewhere. One, composed of Chairman W. S. Humbert, W. B. Lount and Grant Jones, will leave tomorrow for Detroit, Mich., while O. S. Stapley of Mesa and T. M. Clanton of Buckeye will leave soon for Los Angeles, Sacramento and other California points. To this committee has also been delegated the task of hiring a competent road engineer.

THE YUMA BRIDGE.

In order to assure a wagon bridge across the Colorado and to make good any possible shortage in the amounts subscribed toward the bridge in Southern California, the Supervisors of Yuma county have added $1000 to the bridge fund, and now expect to forward within a very few days to Phoenix, the $25,000 guaranteed by California toward Yuma bridge construction.

MEDALS TO RACERS.

• During the El Paso-Phoenix road race, Oliver Creech, one of the racing drivers, and H. Norton, his mechanician, were given high praise for their action in turning back to Lordsburg, with Billy Adolph, driver of a competing machine, who was hauled by the pair from under his overturned car. It is probable that this humane act saved the life of Adolph, but it is also probable that it lost Creech the race, for he was running up among the leaders at the time, into a district that he knew better than any other driver. So the people of El Paso, in recognition, have ordered beautiful medals properly engraved, which are to be presented to Creech and Norton in Phoenix, within a few days.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

Enough heavy steel to lay fifty miles of track has been unloaded in Phoenix lately as well as about as much more at points along the Gila River. This steel is to be used by the Arizona Eastern in yard improvements at Phoenix and in rebuilding the line from Florence to Winkelman. When the reconstruction is complete, according to Supt. C. M. Scott, "any engine in the world can run over our lines." The company is completing a $40,000 concrete office building near its new shops in the southeastern part of the city, and it is understood will soon start work in the same locality upon the largest stock yards in Arizona.

PROPOSED CONVENTION HALL.

An adequate convention hall is to be provided within the coming year by the erection of a National Guard Armory on North First street, to be 140x100 feet in area, and to cost $16,000. It will be occupied by the National Guard headquarters and by two companies of infantry. An appropriation of $1000 has been made by the War Department for improving the National Guard target range east of Phoenix and much more than that sum will be spent on the Tucson range at Wilmot, where provision must be made for pumping water, and where it is hoped to establish a rendezvous camp ground.

SENTENCED MAN MARRIES.

Harry Atwood, sentenced to a year's term in the Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the Mann Act, was married by a Justice of the Peace in Phoenix a couple of days before his departure for Georgia, to Ricarda Bazaure, the couple's 2-year-old daughter being a witness of the ceremony. Atwood's prosecution is said to have been instigated by a jealous woman, and his case was remarkable in that the woman involved in reality was not transported from one State to another, but traveled from Willcox, Ariz., to Clifton, Ariz. But her journey became interstate, and therefore under Federal purview, through the fact that she had to go to Lordsburg, N. M., in order to get a train into Clifton.

LEADING CITIZEN DEAD.

One of the leading business men of Phoenix has been lost in the death of George M. Halm, who died unexpectedly of heart failure Tuesday morning. He was 58 years old, a native of Columbus, O.; his education leading to degrees in the Ohio Wesleyan University and Harvard law school. After a number of years spent in the practice of law and in business in Columbus and Cincinnati he came to Phoenix in 1906. He soon became well known through his connection with large realty holdings and with the Adams Hotel, in his capacity as vice-president of the Valley Bank, president of the Arizona Fire Insurance Company, and of the Arizona Orange Association. He was also active in the councils of the Republican party and has served as a member of the State Fair Commission. He held membership in a California club at Los Angeles as well as in a number of local social organizations. A widow and two sons survive.

PHOENIX NOTES.

George Kirkland has been appointed Deputy United States Internal Revenue Collector for Arizona, with headquarters in Phoenix, and has been succeeded in the office of gauger by William M. Fickas.

Casa Grande has organized a Board of Trade for the celebration of the agricultural advantages of its locality. Arthur Pierce is president of the new organization, and Ted Healy is secretary.

For Kidney Pains

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when your kidneys hurt it simply means that a cold has settled in them. Get the cold out and your kidneys will be as sound as anybody's. The quickest, best and safest remedy is

Allcock's POROUS PLASTER

Just put one over each kidney as shown in the picture and speedy relief will follow. They will gently open the pores of the skin and permit the healing vegetable gums to get at the affected parts, drawing off the congestion and bringing the kidneys back to their natural healthy condition. But remember it's not the shape of Allcock's Plasters that does the work, but what's in them. Therefore

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR CHILDREN.

Week's Entertainment in Central Park.

As Many Gifts as Possible to Be Donated.

Charity Ball Planned by Ebell Club.

No woman's club—or, for that matter, any city, has ever before undertaken a Christmas celebration of the magnitude that the Woman's Million Club of Los Angeles will offer. The club proposes to provide a Christmas tree in the center of Central Park on the afternoons before Christmas, from which gifts will be handed to each child present. For the public a series of concerts will be given every night for several hours during at least four evenings, to as many as care to come.

The lighting of the tree has already been provided for. An electrical supply firm has loaned 400 incandescent lamps and a power company will furnish free "juice" for the entire week. Another concern has offered tinsel to make the tree a glowing beauty.

Some of the largest church choirs in the city have agreed to sing nightly. An effort is being made to secure Mme. Melba for one night and Ellen Beach Yaw for another, as those songsters will spend their holidays here.

The club needs gifts of dolls and candy. Anyone willing to make donations of any kind is assured that all contributions will meet with appropriate distribution.

Other cities have tried the plan of a public Christmas tree for one day but it remained for the Woman's Million Club to extend the festivity for a week and to share its cheer with the population of an entire city. It is a big undertaking, but the members proved by their roof-garden fete, which lasted for a week, that they can take care of big things.

Charity Children at Ebell.

A surprise for the dependent children, who in a measure are wards of the Associated Charities, is being planned by the women of the Ebell Club. It will be a wonderful Christmas entertainment, and, unlike most of these holiday affairs, will come after, instead of before the holiday. Saturday, December 27 is the chosen time, and the poor children will be treated to a fine programme of entertainment and a great tree. All of the arrangements have been placed in the hands of Mrs. George P. [illegible]

Ruskin Christmas Plan.

The Ruskin Art Club is having a series of pre-Christmas events. Last Wednesday it was a delightful holiday luncheon in the art gallery, the walls of which were covered with the many pictures of the dealers' exhibit. There were about seventy-five guests present and they were gathered about dainty tables, which seated six each. Each table was decorated with a miniature Christmas tree and the favors were sprigs of holly. Mrs. W. E. [illegible] was toastmistress and the theme of the toasts was the nations of the world. Miss Cordelia Kirkland responded to "Sweden," Mrs. E. Stanton Hodgin, to "Italy;" Miss Victoria Withey, to "Germany;" Mrs. W. J. [illegible], to "England;" Mrs. W. Sherman Urion, to "Holland;" Mrs. Roland Storrow, to "France," and Mrs. Clara B. Haywood of Pasadena, to "My Ships Which Have Touched All Nations."

Next Wednesday the subject of club discussion will be "The Epoch of St. Bartholomew and the Court of Henry III." Mrs. Donald Skeel will be in charge of the programme and those who will read papers are Mrs. W. Sherman Urion, Miss Florence Judd and Mrs. L. L. Hutchison.

Hollywood Club's New Home.

The Woman's Club of Hollywood is soon to begin work on the new clubhouse, the date for initial work being set for the first week in the new year. Club members believe that such an auspicious start of 1914 will augur well for the entire period. The Building Committee has already been appointed and Mrs. L. Frank Baum is its chairman. The styles of architecture are being discussed and various architects of the city are planning different styles of structure to be submitted for approval. Much credit for the development of the work is due the Finance Committee, which is headed by Mrs. E. W. Cason and which has raised more than $5000. This amount will be augmented by [illegible] as soon as work on the new [illegible] starts. Other members of the committee are Mrs. S. D. Dice, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. Edward Winterer, Mrs. R. B. Lane, Mrs. R. W. Shoemaker, Mrs. G. T. Gower, Mrs. Morgan Griffith, Mrs. F. W. Stith, Mrs. George K. Patterson and Mrs. A. [illegible] an orchestra from the Cornwell school rendered several numbers, and Mrs. Sie Reynolds extended Christmas greetings to all. A song written by Mrs. S. Y. Peet, commemorative of Christmas, was sung to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne."

Cosmos Musicale.

The musical section of the Cosmos Club will meet at the home of Mrs. William Reeve, No. 1680 Harvard boulevard, next Wednesday afternoon and will listen to a programme devoted entirely to American music. Mrs. C. S. Delano will read a paper on "Indian Music," and Miss Alfrida Crowell, director of the section, will speak on "Negro Melodies," in addition to touching on the patriotic airs of the country. She will sketch the development of music in America from the introduction of the psalm-singing of the Puritans to the rag-time compositions of the present day. Miss Irene Furlong will play MacDowell's "To the Sea," and a Nevin number. Songs by G. W. Chadwick and Mrs. Beach will be sung by Miss Hazel Buckius.

Normandie Association Meets.

The Normandie-avenue Parent-Teacher Association met last Wednesday afternoon and listened with much interest to a talk on the real Christmas spirit by Mrs. John S. Francis, wife of the City Superintendent of Schools. The school orchestra and a chorus of girl students rendered several musical numbers in an excellent manner. There were about forty at the meeting.

Manchester P.T.A. Active.

The Manchester-avenue Parent-Teacher Association held a meeting last Thursday, when Mrs. John Metzger and Mrs. John Stewart were placed in charge of the distribution and sale of Red Cross stamps. Mrs. Henry Pope, as chairman of the emergency work, reported the all-day sewing circle at the home of Mrs. A. F. Moulton, where twelve garments for needy persons in the neighborhood were finished. Mrs. Hester Griffith was the speaker of the afternoon, her subject being: "What We Owe the Child." The Hospitality Committee served light refreshments.

Round Table Meeting.

The Alhambra Round Table met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Fleming, No. 201 West Grand avenue, Alhambra, on Friday afternoon, with a large number of members in attendance. An interesting programme was given by Miss Jennie Lane and Mrs. C. H. Matson, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Fleming, pianist. The history and compositions of the romantic composers—Weber, Chopin, Schubert and Mendelssohn—were the topics for the study. Mrs. Fleming gave an interpretation of the best-known composition of each of the composers. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. A. Cadwalader, at No. 630 Irving street.

Hollywood Woman's Club to Build.

The Woman's Club of Hollywood, one of the most prominent clubs in the city, has decided to erect a beautiful clubhouse that will be a credit to the club and also to the city. When completed, it will cost about $20,000. The entire plans will be drawn and work will begin at once on the front part of the building and patio, then at some future time an auditorium will be added to the rear.

The lot owned by the club is located on Hollywood boulevard, near La Brea, and was bought last April for $4500 and has increased in value to $10,000. It is 78x179 feet.

The sum of $5000 cash has been raised by the Finance Committee, consisting of ten ladies, Mrs. E. W. Cason, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. Edward Winterer, Mrs. S. D. Dice, Mrs. R. B. Lane, Mrs. Morgan Griffith, Mrs. A. J. Aikers, Mrs. F. W. Stith, Mrs. R. W. Shoemaker, Mrs. G. T. Gower, Mrs. George K. Patterson and Mrs. Cassius Smith.

A Building Committee has been appointed, consisting of Mrs. Frank Baum, Mrs. J. F. Redhead, Mrs. S. D. Dice, Mrs. R. B. Lane, Mrs. F. W. Stith, Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. E. W. Cason. Bids will be solicited and plans, similar to the Ebell, will be drawn at once.

College Woman's Club.

The civic section will meet Wednesday next, at 2:30, at the Y.W.C.A. Subject: "Iowa Abatement Act." Speaker, Mrs. Seward A. Simons.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of December, 1913.
[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper.

ADVENTURES OF A REFORMED EDITOR.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

In an orange-scented land where golf is possible on every day of the calendar it is natural that there should be a drift toward out-of-door pleasure and employment.

Back East our idea of violent exercise was to gather about a red-hot stove and play poker for the coal money. Also a peaceful and engaging afternoon or evening could be spent over the checker board, and I remember what a hum of interest was created in the community when a player arrived who could move the buttons about on the board with his nose.

But out here everybody wants to get into the open for his work or play, and so it is that in our interesting suburb those who are too rheumatic for tennis and too ambitious for croquet are forming an archery club.

About every so often the archer's itch breaks out and for a year or two rages with some violence. Some twenty-odd years ago there was quite a passion over it. Books were written about ancient and modern archery and the sporting goods houses had a lovely and profitable time in supplying clubs and individuals with the essentials of the craft.

In connection with that pleasureable period I now recall that in my newspape capacity I aroused the wrath and vengeance of an irascible citizen of our town. I had published some trifling little item to the general effect that he was a scoundrel and blackleg and that the hardest work he ever did was to beat his wife. The publication made him cross and fretful—so much so, in fact, that he armed himself with a fierce-looking horse pistol and started out with the open and avowed intent of shooting me so full of holes that my hide could be used as a screen-door.

This cheerful news was brought to me by friends who were curious to know how I would look with this new ventilating system introduced. I was really very much disturbed, but I didn't dare admit it or run away. It was finally suggested that the best way to settle the feud was to get the other fellow first, so I called up police headquarters and explained that I was going out on a little man hunt; that if they stumbled over any remains they were not to worry about it, but to go right ahead and boost for a clean city.

Then I went down to my hotel and asked the landlord to loan me his heaviest artillery for a few hours. When I informed him of my bloodthirsty plans he promptly exclaimed: "Oh, shucks! You don't want a gun. You need a bow and arrow."

With that he opened a tall cabinet behind the office safe and dug out a slender lancewood bow and a dozen metal-barbed arrows.

"Here's the machinery for your case," he declared, with enthusiasm. "Go down the street whistling 'William Tell' and pink him once for me. I guarantee if you hit him in the ribs it will go clear through."

And so I ventured forth. I stopped at several places where I thought my quarry might be found, but he was always a block or two ahead of me—but still breathing threatenings and slaughter. Nevertheless, in each instance I announced in a voice as portentous as I could make it that I had endured too much already and was about to shed human blood—bucketsful preferred.

Some meddling person passed the word ahead to my stormy foe that I was after him with a bunch of new-fangled, death-dealing artillery, and it worried him. He increased his lead. When I had continued my quest as far as the depot, I learned that he had boarded a freight train going south about half an hour before.

I had been very careful not to catch up with him, but I had intended—had fate so willed it—to make a human pin-cushion out of him and to fill him so full of quills that if he got away from me he would be liable to be shot for a porcupine in the next county.

Had we actually met, I am satisfied I would have had the better of the argument. In a street duel with the average marksman I think I should prefer a bow and bunch of steel-shod arrows to the ordinary iron pill-box of the thug.

At any rate, since that time I have had considerable affection for the stringed tools of Robin Hood's men, and therefore, welcome the present renaissance of archery.

When I was a pestiferous kid we could make a bow out of a hickory barrel stave that would carry a nail-pointed arrow with some accuracy for 200 yards. At practically no expense we were armed and equipped to pick off all the Indians on our block.

But when archery became fashionable the enthusiast would dig up more coin for his split bow than the capricious trout fisherman does for his pet rod and reel.

We figure that individually and collectively we can secure a comfy outfit for our association of amateur archers for about $700. At the present prices of real estate we could secure a nice, roomy range for about $280,000, but we have decided to cut that item out. For the present we will pitch our targets in the shade of Llewellyn Sutter's barn. His cow will have to take her chances, and if she gets perforated badly she can be used for a skim-milk heifer.

Some of our shotsmen have family records to maintain. Sutter's forbears are said to have carried the long bow under the Black Prince at Poitier's 600 years ago. He has been drawing the long bow ever since he heard about it. My great, great-grandfather was an ancient mariner and I understand he was the original party who plugged the albatross with a cross-bow. Whether any of our ancestors were hanged by the Sheriff of Nottingham is not here of record.

We are having some trouble in agreeing on a uniform for our company. Jesse Joslyn's wife, who is an artist, wants a belted costume of Lincoln green with buckskin leggings, the whole surmounted by a feathered Tyrol hat of green velour. This would be very picturesque and effective, but I am afraid it would not suit my especial build. If I wore too much plumage and happen to stand on one leg I am apt to be mistaken for a stork and scare all the matrons out of the neighborhood.

I think brown khaki will have to do.

MARTIN MAKES FLIGHT.

Arrives in Pomona Like a Majestic Eagle and Is Honored by Officials and Populace.

POMONA, Dec. 13.—A large crowd of interested spectators was on hand at the new Pomona speedway site, northwest of Ganesha Park, yesterday, when Glenn Martin, in his aeroplane sailed over the western hills and alighted to christen the new location for future auto races, aviation, baseball and track meets. Martin was received by President Walker and Secretary Stine of the Chamber of Commerce, and F. E. Whitehouse, and he was presented with a basket of flowers and fruit by Miss Neff, impersonating Miss "Pomona." The adaptability of the new site for public exhibitions and gatherings was well demonstrated today to the hundreds of spectators.

Last evening, Martin, who has numerous friends here, where he made some of his first public appearances at celebrations, when he was new to the flying game, was the special guest at a big "oyster stew" collation, which the members of the Chamber of Commerce enjoyed at the Armory, on West Second street. The event took the nature of one big boost for Pomona Valley, the possibilities of the proposed speedway as an advertising adjunct to the city not being overlooked by the numerous speakers during the evening, who also took the opportunity to bring up a number of matters pertaining to the betterment of conditions and the welfare of this community.

REPUBLIC NOTES.

The George Junior Republic, southeast of here, now has 230 fertile acres well adapted to diversified farming. The farm is under the management of a superintendent who operates in such a manner that the young citizens who are being trained in agricultural lines, may know how a well-organized farm is conducted, and in a manner to make the farm a self-supporting industry.

The printing plant at the republic furnishes employment to a number of boys, and is doing a large amount of job printing and booklet publishing for friends of the republic in different parts of Southern California, who send work there in order to encourage the young printers. All of the Republic printing is done in the shop there and the "Junior Republic" magazine is printed monthly there.

The fine new laundry recently completed, donated by a friend, is now in operation, and all of the laundry for the cottages of the Republic as well as the bundle laundry of the boys is done here. The central heating plant heats the water for the laundry and there are also supplied electric irons and a fine drying-room. A hot water furnace at the central heating plant now supplies, through underground pipes, hot water to all of the Republic buildings.

Superb Pasadena bridge dedicated yesterday.

It is the Colorado-street structure across the Arroyo Seco and cost two hundred thousand dollars. Its size may be judged from the house in the foreground of the upper picture, or the photo of a pair of lights on the bridge in the lower picture.

Over a Billion.

LOS ANGELES IN FRONT RANK IN CLEARINGS.

WITH a total approximately $1,200,000,000 Los Angeles will this year occupy a place in the very front rank among the cities of the country as regards bank clearings. Cincinnati will have a close run for her position as eleventh in amount of clearings, while Minneapolis' lead in tenth place is fast slipping away.

Los Angeles has been steadily advancing her position, having held sixteenth place three years ago, whereas this year she will easily take twelfth. She has already left several of the leading cities of the country behind, including Cleveland, New Orleans and Detroit.

Clearings for the first two weeks of December approximate $50,000,000, and the remainder of the month will easily show an equally large total. This added to the aggregate of $1,100,000,000 for the first eleven months of the year, will place the 1913 total over $40,000,000 ahead of last year.

The showing made by Los Angeles is all the more remarkable in view of the generally unsettled money conditions. The financial situation is, however, beginning to show signs of the arrival of a decided improvement.

The enormous clearings' total for this year, with its big increase over 1912, is indicative of how slight has been the real effect of strained monetary conditions—felt adversely to quite a degree elsewhere—upon the business conditions here.

With the opening of 1914 a new era of prosperity for the city is promised, and in view of this it would not be surprising if that year's total ran $100,000,000 over the aggregate of this year.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—It is awful to comtemplate. A lady author says that our women overeat. She spoke right out in meeting too before one of the select clubs of the city. To soften the cruel blow she declared that the feminine portion of this community dressed well. Mrs. W. P. Lucas is the person, but there is no use advertising the title of the book she wrote as it might make her vain and the sale of the volume would be so great as to get her rich too quickly.

The Inside Inn finally got the better of the argument. The hotel men are now the Outside Out. They complained that a caravansary within the fair grounds would hurt their business. The exposition managers said it was needed to equalize prices. The hostelry people indignantly denied that they intended to overcharge strangers. The controversy is over but naturally there is still some feeling.

Vigorous action is taken by the District Attorney to punish the men who are accused of forging signatures to the red light abatement election petition. It appears that there were 10,000 forgeries instead of 6000. It seems a pity to imprison gentlemen who could conceive and execute so stupendous a fraud.

Lawyer Sweeney was robbed while sitting at his own fireside. The thief overruled the attorney's demurrer and refused a writ of replevin. The disgruntled victim agrees with a local newspaper that something is wrong with the police department and he may cite the coppers to show cause why they collect over a million in salaries for alleged services.

In a short time work will be started on the big dry dock at the Union Iron Works. The government has decided that it will cost about $2,500,000. No promises are made that it will be finished by 1915, but it is a sure thing that it will be started before that time. When completed no war vessel need stay away from here for fear that there will not be large enough accommodations for repair.

Music may have charms to sooth the savage, but literature has power too. It was able to cause Dr. Ormiston Swayze to divorce his wife, Minnie. Three times she left him to get local literary color in Canada. He alleged this in the proper legal form and was given his matrimonial freedom. Now the lady will have a new subject to write about and the doctor is at liberty to read it or not, just as he pleases.

A distinguished French dancing master is headed this way to teach us how to dance the tango. He has instructed several prominent Californians already and he hopes to find the rest of us as apt pupils. Perhaps when he arrives here he may find people who can teach him a few new steps. No one has ever accused us of being slow in dance movements.

As predicted some weeks ago the Call has bought the Post. The passing of the Post is to be regretted. It has been well edited, but somehow or another the hoodoo was on it. Subscribers never were plentiful and advertisers were few and far between. It looks as though the other five newspapers would hang on for a while, at least until after the fair is over.

So many citizens were eager to serve as jurors at $2 a day that Judge Lawlor got suspicious. He asked the Sheriff to explain the presence of professional jurymen on the panel. The Sheriff did some explaining along the lines that trusted deputies may have deceived him. It will result in the needy ones looking for new jobs, while busy merchants act as talesmen.

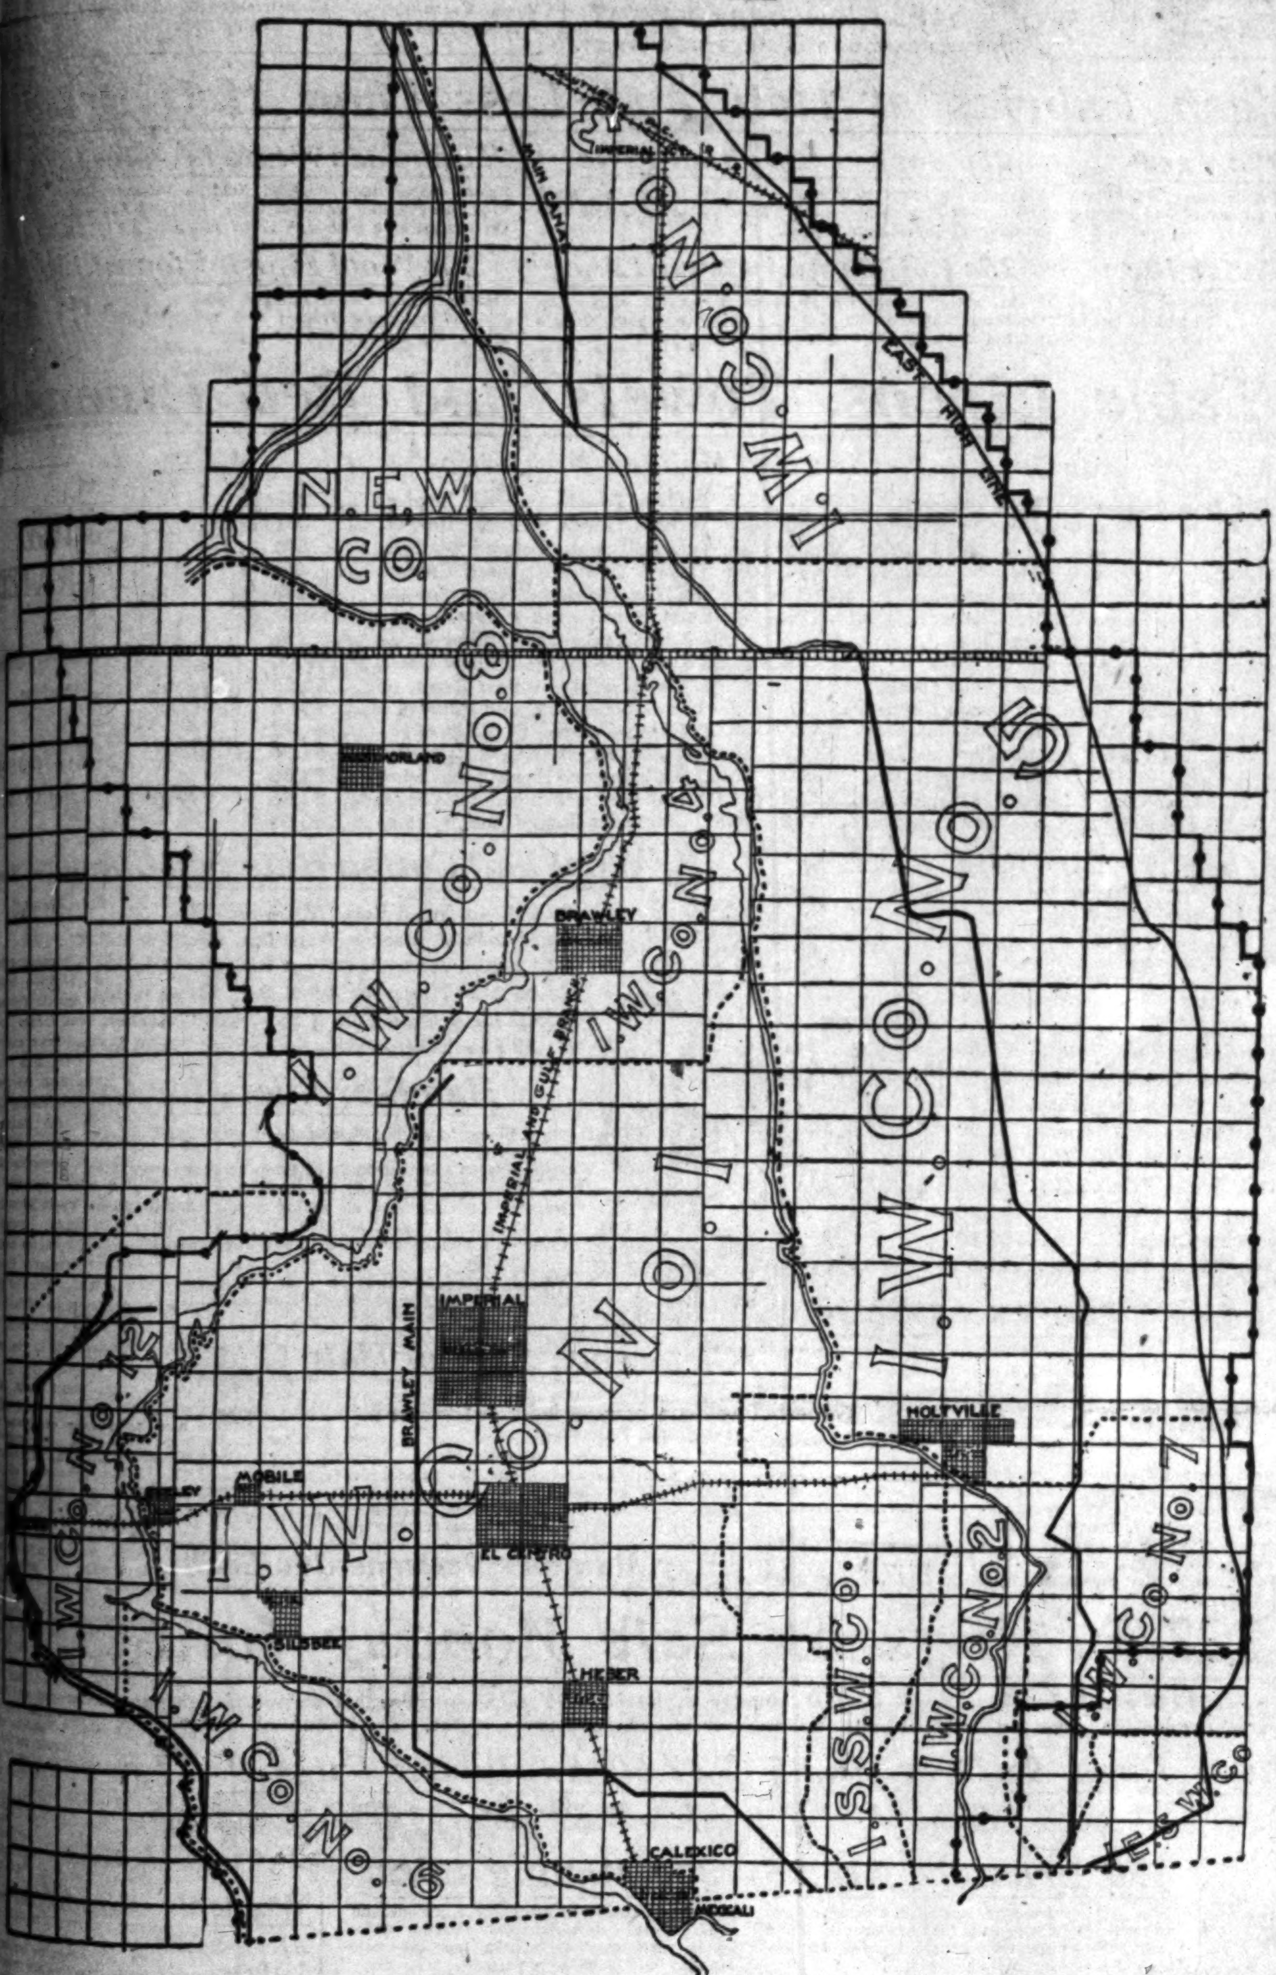
Blossoming as the Rose.

EXTENDED DOMAIN OF THE FERTILE AND WATERED IMPERIAL VALLEY.



Extent of the area to be irrigated as now defined.

The heavy black, circled, line shows the boundary of the territory now under water or about to be put under water. Until the status of the headwaters of the Colorado River is permanently settled it is believed no further lands than those here included can be taken in. The dotted lines show the boundaries of the various water companies and the plain black lines indicate some of the main canals. All the water companies are mutual and serve their districts under contracts with the California Development Company.

All the area included in the Mutual Water Company No. 3 and the North End Water Company, consisting of more than 90,000 acres, represents the 47,000 acres recently purchased from the Southern Pacific Company by the Imperial Valley Farm Lands Association and the alternate sections held by government entrymen. This great tract, nearly one-fourth of Imperial county under cultivation, is approximately twelve miles long and twelve miles square. The crossed lines denote the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad running across the northern end and the branch line between Imperial Junction and valley points. New River and Alamo River are channels cut by the Colorado when the levees burst several years ago and now carry small streams of waste water.

The big northern tract is the only part of the valley traversed by the main line of the Southern Pacific. With more than 5000 acres applied for even before the lands have been actually placed on sale the company's officials look for extensive and immediate development. Water Co. No. 3 and the North End Water Company will serve the entire tract. No. 3 company has nearly completed its main canal, which is an extension of the East High line canal and will have its entire system completed inside of three months.

The southern and eastern portions of the tract are likely to be developed first, as water will be available there a little earlier than in the extreme north. This will be speedily offset, however, by the development of a considerable portion of the land along the main line of the railroad. There, if present plans materialize, will be the biggest fruit orchards in the valley, including groves of oranges and grapefruit. Luther G. Brown, attorney for the syndicate, said yesterday that the survey and appraisal of the lands will be completed in about a week and the price fixed for each tract. It is also possible that the terms will be announced at the same time.

LINES, MORE MEN.

South Main Street Has Two-Mile Extension to Slauson Avenue, and West Eleventh Adds Mile.

To keep pace with the continued growth of the city, the Los Angeles Railway will begin service today on extensions of an aggregate length of three miles. They are the two-mile extension of the South Main-street line to Slauson avenue and the mile extension of the West Eleventh-street line from Tenth and Normandie to Ninth street and Easterly drive. These two extensions have cost the company $100,000, with an additional expenditure promised on the Main-street line, to carry the line to Manchester avenue, one and one-half miles further south.

With the opening of these two lines, extra crews will be placed in service to man the extra cars, which are concomittants of extended service.

The opening of the South Main extension has been officially set for 6 a.m., when a car will leave the Temple block on a new, or rather, additional, routing of cars along that street, which will send a car over the extension, from Moneta to Slauson, every ten minutes in either direction.

The service on the West Eleventh-street extension will be under a ten-minute headway, which will probably later be reduced to seven minutes. Beginning tomorrow every other car on this line will go through to the new terminus at Ninth street and Easterly drive. This service will probably be supplemented later by putting extra cars on the line to run its entire length.

With the opening of the South Main-street extension, the city will acquire another "long-haul" line, as it is slightly over six miles from the Temple Block to Slauson avenue.

SCRIPT FOR ELECTRIC LINES.

Trolley Systems Get in Line With the Steam Roads in Issuing Rebate Books, Reducing Rates.

Railroad "script" is to go into use on the electric lines of the State. This announcement was made yesterday by General Passenger Agents Peck and Batturs of the Salt Lake and Southern Pacific, on their return from the annual meeting of the Transcontinental Script Bureau in Salt Lake City.

The admission of the electric lines to the fold of the script roads was in response to an application made to the bureau by various California electric lines. This script is issued in booklets of the denominations of $30 and $90, and on the use of all the script, which is good for rail or stage line travel, the user is entitled to rebates of from ½ to 1 cent a mile, depending on whether the maximum fare is 3 or 4 cents a mile. The script books are largely purchased by wholesale houses for the use of their traveling salesmen, and the extension of their use to the electric line was dictated, primarily, by the wholesalers' demand that this action be taken.

LIBERAL WITH STOLEN GOODS.

Police Finally Nab a Clever Masquerader.

Impersonated Society Women at Department Stores.

Fruits of Her "Shopping" Tours Given Away.

The woman with the black ear-rings, who assailed the department-store credits of many prominent women, by having her purchases charged to them, was arrested yesterday and identified herself as Mrs. Ruth Canterbury, wife of James Canterbury, a furniture salesman, No. 1054 Ingraham street.

With plenty of ready money in her purse, she toured through the department-store district at regular intervals, and made heavy purchases. The material was largely miscellaneous, laces, ribbons and other trifles of the toilet. But the things that she bought she never wore. Instead she gave them away. She became known as "That liberal Mrs. Canterbury."

Gradually she came to stand as the standard for liberality. "You will be as generous as Mrs. Canterbury" her friends would remark to each other when commenting on some charitable gift. It was not that they were jesting at Mrs. Canterbury's liberality, but merely accepting her as a standard.

Not more than a tenth portion of all the vast quantity of materials and supplies that she purchased did she use. Instead, she stored them away. Whenever a friend had a birthday or a party or any anniversary dear to them, Mrs. Canterbury gave of her stolen goods.

PERSISTENT SHOPPER.

One shopping tour followed another after the first cruise in crime last April. She would select her goods and have them charged to such persons as Mrs. Leo Youngworth, Mrs. W. Bosbyshell, Mrs. Bernard Potter and Mrs. L. O. Crenshaw.

She was caught by an accident. Harris's detectives had been seeking her for months. She was known as "The Woman with the Black Earrings." The identification was due to a pair of beautiful jet ear-rings that she wears, the craftsmanship of a South Sea artist.

Last week, after purchasing goods amounting to $60, she had them charged to Mrs. W. Cooper, 1813 Grammercy street.

While taking them home, she let one of the packages drop on the street car.

It was recovered by Mrs. R. Swim, No. 146 North Coronado street, who immediately notified Mrs. Cooper. The latter could not recall any such purchase, and in this way the store was notified, and a fresh clue to the woman was given.

AN ODD INSTANCE.

A most remarkable instance of her theft was exposed when it was shown that she had gone to a market and purchased some rare steaks. She had them charged to the account of Mrs. William Dehm. That evening Mrs. Dehm was an invited guest at the table when the dishes were served.

When Mrs. Dehm received her bill a few days later she identified the items and Mrs. Canterbury made good the cost.

The daughter of a well-to-do family in Minneapolis, Mrs. Canterbury was educated at the Graham School for Girls there and at a convent. She married Canterbury three years ago. Her mother, widow of a wealthy machinery man, R. McArdle, lives at the Abbey Hotel, Eighth and Flower streets.

Mrs. Canterbury became acquainted with the women whom she represented while living at the Alvarado Hotel, Sixth and Alvarado streets. In their daily conversation, she learned where they had charge accounts and made use of the information.

POVERTY NOT CAUSE.

She admits that she was always liberally supplied with money, and can give no motive for her thefts. A large quantity of the material was recovered yesterday.

Mrs. Canterbury declares that she never told her husband of the thefts, nor ever had any impulse to confess her misdeeds. Instead she cherished the idea of getting her little materials in this way, and had no compunctions.

When a school girl she fell over a bannister to the floor, twenty feet below, and it is believed that she has never been entirely normal since.

Her relatives secured bail for her.

TEACHERS WILL CONVENE.

Santa Monica Will Entertain Instructors During the Sessions of the Institute—Programme Announced.

SANTA MONICA, Dec. 13.—Men and women high in the educational world will speak at the sessions of the Santa Monica Teachers' Institute which is to be held here Monday and Tuesday. These sessions will be preliminary to the annual session of the California State Teachers' Association, in Los Angeles Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. H. M. Rebok, who is superintendent of schools here, is president of the association.

The meeting here is a sort of academic section of the State institute, and well prepares the teachers of Santa Monica for the discussions, papers and lectures which come afterwards. The sessions will be held in the auditorium of the new Polytechnic High School.

Among the well-known instructors who are to be heard are Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, assistant superintendent of the Los Angeles schools; Miss Kate E. Smith, vice-principal of the Los Angeles Polytechnic High School; Dr. Jeremiah M. Rhodes, City Superintendent of Schools of Pasadena; Miss Mae E. Schreiber of Boston, and Dr. John H. Gray, Ph. D., head of the department of economics and political science of the University of Minnesota.

The first session starts Monday afternoon at 1:30. The girls' chorus of the Lincoln school will sing selections under Miss Caroline L. Judd, director. Mrs. Dorsey will speak on the subject "Some Phases of the Education of Girls," and Miss Kate E. Smith will read a paper entitled "Vocational Education for Girls."

In the evening there will be an illustrated lecture, "The Story of Art," by George E. Schrieber, head of the local school's art department.

TUMOR SPOILS THE ROMANCE?

POLICE HAVING IT CUT AWAY FROM GIRL'S EYE.

Comes Here to Marry Man Found Through Matrimonial Paper Advertisement, and He Insists on Trial, Then Balks, So Now He's in Jail.

When the parents told Miss Bertha Lake to get married, she did her best to make the affair romantic, and now she is in the County Hospital, a victim of the treachery that is called white slavery.

Her parents are back in Providence, R. I. She is the daughter of an oyster fisherman. When an oyster fisherman's club had its benefit affair last June, a short drama called "The Queen of the White Slaves" was staged, and Bertha Lake played the role of queen. The sketch was a success. Miss Lake was highly complimented.

It was not long afterward that Jim Lake, her father, an oyster fisherman, returned from his traps, and the season was proved poor. He told Bertha that she should marry. And Bertha says she didn't know whom to marry. None of the swains that the oyster fisherman's daughter knew had asked her. It was quite an embarrassing and puzzling predicament.

The only way that she could think of to get a husband was to find who was advertising for a wife. By the natural law of supply and demand, she offered herself in the market, and subscribed to a matrimonial magazine from Chicago.

In Los Angeles Robert C. Ciboch, an Austrian laborer, was lonely and rather venturesome in affairs of romance. He had a regular advertisement in the Chicago sheet. Bertha read his advertisement and wrote to him. The correspondence multiplied and emotions were frankly spoken of in the letters.

Bertha Lake thought she was having a delightful romance. It grew all the more delightful when Robert Ciboch sent for her photograph. It was quite a matter of diplomacy and strategy for Bertha to forward her likeness. Cruelly, she is afflicted with a tumor on her left eye that focuses the attention of the observer. When Bertha sat for her photograph, she and the artist shrewdly decided on a profile picture. It was that picture she forwarded to Robert Ciboch. Ciboch, quite overcome by the striking effect of the pose, at once wanted Bertha to come and marry him.

So Bertha informed her oyster-fishing father that she was going to be married. Her friends congratulated her, and she started West, the money for the transportation having been forwarded by Ciboch. It meant many a long day's work to earn that money.

At once he grew distant. He took Bertha to his home, No. 1774 East Forty-third street. They settled down. Bertha wanted to know when they were going to wed. She says Robert told her it was a custom of all people in California to have a trial marriage, testing each other well before assuming the bonds.

Yesterday she wrote to the Chief of Police asking him about these trial marriages.

Policewoman Tarbell went to the house and took the girl away. Ciboch was arrested a few hours later. He will face the charge of having violated the Mann Act. He insists he did intend to marry the girl when she came.

The police sent Bertha to the County Hospital to have the tumor removed from her eye. Ciboch insists it is only the tumor that he objects to, and the police will have that cut away. So she may have a romance after all.

CANDY SHOP AT MOROSCO.

First of Gaiety Company Musical Comedies.

Rock and Fulton at Head of Big Organization.

Superb Chorus Sure to Score Great Hit.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

With the debut of William Rock and Maude Fulton and the big Gaiety company of musical comedy stars at the Morosco Theater tomorrow night, a new epoch in the theater world, as represented by Los Angeles, will have dawned.

Reaching from sea to sea, theatrical giants of the Pacific Coast—to the real New Yorker we are still the wild and woolly west—have plucked from the great metropolis its choicest blooms and brought them to the land of the setting sun.

This is not poetry, but fact, for "The Candy Shop" will bring to Los Angeles some of the greatest people in the musical comedy world, and a chorus better than any which is gracing any New York or Chicago stage today.

And this company is but the forerunner of others, which, while they cannot be better, will at least be of almost equal caliber, and headed by stars whose effulgence is as great as is that shed by Rock and Fulton.

BIG IDEA.

I am not sure who really fathered the idea. It may have been G. M. Anderson, the millionaire picture man, who erected the great new Gaiety Theater in San Francisco, or it may have been J. J. Rosenthal, his general manager. Maybe it was Billy Rock and Maude Fulton.

At any rate, you who have long memories may recall that a year ago the projected creation of this Gaiety company was told of exclusively in The Times, and it was Rock and Fulton, then headlining the Orpheum, who told me about it.

And here is the idea. The best principals and chorus and the best shows money can obtain. Make them so good that instead of barely "getting by" for a week, they will last in one place for at least two months. Follow one big company with another, and with three or four on the road they can alternate for nearly a full season.

They have a slogan "two dollars' worth for a dollar," and those of you who follow theatricals closely will know by the names in "The Candy Shop" cast that it is no idle catch line.

ROCK AND FULTON.

For years Billy Rock and Maude Fulton have been regarded as the best and most original dancers on the stage. Their work in "The Girl Behind the Counter" in New York enabled them to step into vaudeville and top Eva Tanguay on the bills.

Then they practically created "The Candy Shop," when Charles Dillingham first put on the piece, and it was the big hit of the year in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland and Chicago.

If you read your theater programmes carefully, you will have noticed that many of the greatest musical comedy successes that have come out here in the past few years have had something like this over the caste: "So and so, lyrics; so and so, music. Dances devised and staged by William Rock."

For that is the great forte of this slender, agile bundle of nerves. He and Miss Fulton have a faculty for starting things. Others may follow if they can.

It fell to "Roxy" in the forming of the Gaiety company to select the chorus, and he has more than made good that prediction of over a year ago, when he said: "I am going to take the best girls from coast to coast, regardless of the cost. We will pin our faith on the excellence of our chorus as much as on the cleverness of our principals, for much of the success of musical comedy depends on the girls."

OTHER NOTABLES.

But to get back to that cast. There will be Al Shean, whom we all know so well, and surely no one has forgotten Will Philbrick, who was so prominent in all those great Savage and Lederer successes, and Fred Santley, too, is included in the list.

Bessie Franklyn, always good fun, is in the cast, too, and charming Gene Luneska. Nor should we overlook Kitty Doner, who, I am certain, will make no end of an impression here.

So you can see for yourself what

"LITTLE WOMEN" AT MAJESTIC.

Rock and Fulton to Occupy Morosco Stage.

Interesting Bills on Tap in Vaudeville.

"Movie" Houses Offer Variety of Attractions.

After a period of almost half a century, Jo, Meg, Beth, Amy and the rest of those dear characters that figure in Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" are on the stage through the medium of a dramatization by Marion de Forest, and a production by William A. Brady. This faithful and immortal picture of the life of four very interesting girls, typical of the girls of all humanity, will be presented at the Majestic tomorrow night for a week's engagement.

Not with the original Jo, of course. She passed away with the death of Miss Alcott in 1888, for the irrepressible little woman who was continually upsetting the household by her performances, and who kept th family appraised by the brightness with which genius burned in the childish mind—by the angle at which she wore her riding cap designed to keep her from utilizing her hair as a pen-wiper, was none other than Miss Alcott herself, and the struggles of this budding literary genius were merely a transcript of the author's girlhood experiences.

The play is founded wholly on the home life of the March family and their relations with their friends. There are Mr. and Mrs. March; the four girls, Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy; Laurie, the neighbor's boy, who thinks he is in love with Jo, but finally, after she discourages him, discovers that Amy is his real choice; John Brooke, the teacher, who wins Meg; the benevolent old Mr. Lawrence, the German professor, who finally wins Jo; Aunt March, a crabbed old woman, who always does the right thing in the end, and good old Hannah, the housekeeper of the Marches.

A most capable company of artists, highly efficient and well balanced, are said to play the various parts with taste and power to convince. Included in the cast are Marta Oatman, a Los Angeles girl, and well-known in social circles; Jane Marbury, last seen here with Nance O'Niell; Ida St. Leon, Jean Brae, Henrietta McDaniel, Lillian Dixon, Helen Beaumont, Frank McEntee, Marshall Birmingham, Robert Fischer, Donald Gallher and Selmar Romaine.

Owing to the enormous demand for seats there will be given extra matinees on Thursday and Friday, in addition to those on Wednesday and Saturday.

MUSICAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

FANNY BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER PIANO RECITAL.

Sigmund Beel, Violin Soloist, to Appear in Next Symphony Orchestra Concert—Orpheus Club to Sing With People's Orchestra This Afternoon.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

It is about ten years since the distinguished pianist, Fanny Bloomfield Zeisler, who comes to the Auditorium next Friday evening, December 19, has visited Los Angeles. In the meantime she has twice toured Europe with unqualified success, besides playing at scores of concerts in this country and appearing with our leading symphony orchestras.

She is an American artist, for, although she was born in Austrian Silesia, her parents moved to Chicago when the child was but 2 years of age, and her residence has been in that city ever since.

At the age of 5 she commenced to show unusual musical ability, and soon after her parents arranged to have her taught by the best teachers available. In 1877, when the famous pianist, Mme. Essipoff, toured this country, she heard little Fanny Bloomfield play and pronounced her a pianistic genius who should be educated by the world's greatest masters. Accordingly, she was sent to Vienna to study under Leschetizky. For five years she worked under this great master, returning in 1883 to America, where she began her career as a pianist. Since that time Mme. Zeisler has played in leading musical centers of both the old and new world, everywhere winning the most eulogistic comments for her work and the appreciation of the music lovers of two continents.

While her technic is well-nigh perfect, she always subordinates it to intelligent interpretation. She enters into the spirit of all the great composers, still retaining individuality and originality.

As there will be but one public appearance of this distinguished artist, teachers and public will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing her, especially as students' rates are offered. Her programme will be:

Menuett, E Flat Major (Beethoven;) Chorus of Dancing Dervishes, from "The Ruins of Athens" (Beethoven;) Turkish March, from "The Ruins of Athens" (Beethoven;) "Etudes Symphoniques," Etudes en forme de Variations, Op. 13 (Schumann;) Ballade, Op. 38; Etude, Op. 10, No. 5; Etude, Op. 25, No. 3; Berceuse, Op. 57; Valse, Op. 42 (Chopin;) "Song Without Words," Op. 62, No. 6, by request (Mendelssohn;) "Song Without Words," Op. 67, No. 4 (Mendelssohn;) "The Juggleress," No. 4, from "Six Fantasies," Op. 52 (Moszkowski;) Impromptu, Op. 142, No. 2 (Schubert;) "Hark, Hark the Lark," transcribed for piano by Liszt (Schubert;) "Military March," No. 1, from three piano duets, Op. 51 (Schubert.)

Symphony Orchestra Soloist.

Sigmund Beel, first concert master of the orchestra, will be the soloist for the next pair of concerts to be given December 26 and 27, by the Symphony Orchestra. Several hundred seats in the orchestra are available for 50 cents at the afternoon concerts and 75 cents for the evenings, thus making the prices for the orchestra, 50c, 75c, $1 and $1.50 for the afternoons and 75c, $1, $1.50 and $2 for the evenings. It is expected that this will be a great boom to students who are desirous of being close to the soloist.

In future the concerts will be commenced promptly on the hour announced. Afternoon concerts will start at 3 o'clock, and Saturday evening concerts at 8:15 o'clock. The doors will be closed until the end of the first movement. This measure is necessary owing to the fact that all the instruments are tuned off the stage and it is detrimental to the pitch if the musicians are obliged to wait from five to fifteen minutes before playing.

Franz Egenieff, the German baritone now making his first American tour, will appear as soloist, January 23 and 24.

At his recent appearance with the St. Louis Symphony Mr. Egenieff created a very favorable impression by his splendid singing and his finished rendition.

People's Concert.

The Orpheus Club, one of Los Angeles's most popular male singing clubs, will be heard in two well-known numbers at today's People's Orchestra concert—The Pilgrim's Chorus from "Hanhauser," and Soldiers' Chorus from "Faust." J. P. Dupuy is the director of this organization since its organization and that of itself is a sufficient guarantee of its artistic merit.

The programme for Sunday will be made of French selections—Bizet's "L'Arlesienne," Delibes's "Coppelia Ballett," Gounod's "Soldiers' Chorus," Berlioz's "Marche Hongroise" with Suppe's "Light Cavalry Overture," and Wagner's "Pilgrim's Chorus."

Mmes. Palliser and Pier.

Mmes. Esther Palliser and Leonora Pier appeared yesterday in recital at the Valley Hunt Club, in selections from Bach, Handel, Tschaikowsky, Brahms, Saint-Saens and a series of old English songs. Mme. Palliser is the well-known London singer, who has recently settled here. Leonora Pier, who will accompany her, will also give a piano solo: Impromptu F Sharp, by Chopin.

Gage Christopher's Recital.

Tomorrow evening a recital of songs will be given by the pupils of Gage Christopher at Symphony Hall: Misses Louise Bonness, Gladys Grant, Amber Fay, Julian Zeller, Burnell Traison, William Wells, Archie Zimmerman, George Bettinger, Leland Rebber.

Local Guild of Organists.

The Los Angeles Chapter of the American Guild of Organists held its monthly meeting last Monday evening at the Hotel Hollenbeck; the occasion was a dinner to which the ladies, relatives and friends of the members were invited. Mr. Jaroslaw de Zielinski, who was announced as the speaker of the evening, gave a most interesting address on "Modern French Music," the Lotus Trio (Mmes. Bitter, Bloser and Parker,) Miss Mercedes Ciesielska and several other pupils of his assisting in vocal illustrations, part songs, and scenes from Massenet's Roi de Lahore. Mr. de Zielinski played also a brilliant Scherzo by Godard and a very quaint bit of illustration how modern harmonization is superseding the old way. Miss Ciesielska sang Cyril Scott's resetting of a well-known popular melody, which created quite a sensation among the musicians.

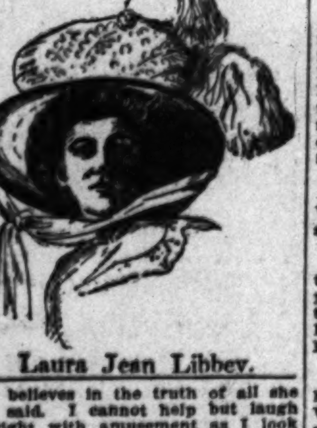
LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TALKS HEART TOPICS.

Is Dancing Harmful to a Young Girl's Morals?

"Her feet beneath her petticoat,
Like little mice, stole in and out,
As if they feared the light.
And oh! she dances such a way!
No sun upon an Easter day
Is half so fine a sight."

It seems strange that people who were so fond of dancing when they were young are the first to cry out against the so-called folly of the craving of girls to trip gaily through the fantastic dances of today. The grave matron is fearful of demoralizing influence. The white-haired grandma holds up her hands in horror, chiming in: "The maidens of my times were modest. We danced the minuet, the money-musk and the Highland fling, with grace and decorum. The gentlemen admired us, and many a proposal was whispered in a girl's ear by her partner!" Dear old soul!



Laura Jean Libbey.

She believes in the truth of all she has said. I cannot help but laugh outright with amusement as I look over old pictures showing the dances of grandmother's day.

The minuet is stately and quite proper. The gallant swain had plenty of opportunity to whisper sweet nothings to the maid whose finger tips he clasped.

There was no possibility of bumping into another couple, and another, and another, and ending in a general mix-up. Oh! what a tilting of birdcage hoop skirts and clutching of bouffant draperies. And yet, who ever thought of suggesting that the fling was rather startling for prudish maids to indulge in. It would be cried down at once if the girls of today declared their intentions of reviving it. If the old dances had been kept up, decade after decade, we would never have known the beauty o fthe lancers, the dreamy poetry of the waltz and the enlivening two-step.

The fastidious object to the embrace, not only in the waltz, but in the tango. They look askance at the bunny-hug and talk of it in whispers. Of course there is such a thing as an over amount of exuberance of youthful spirits which often leads to exaggeration of pose in trying to cut a pretty figure in the dance. As to a young man's being in such close range, that is not apt to cause the girl of today one extravagant heart beat. She is intent in mastering the intricacies of the difficult step. Young men do not have the opportunity to think of love, let alone to talk of it, they are so occupied in guiding their partner through the mazy measures of the merry dance. Each girl upon the floor wants to be as proficient as her girl chums.

She enjoys the exhilaration of dancing something new. She is quite as modest as ye maid of bygone days, and is certainly as guileless. Any dance needs the supervision of older heads in its construction. A little modification of this step or that minuet is ideal for the matron. But most of the rosebud debutantes of today would vote it decidedly too slow. All pastimes give way to change. Why should not the dance, the most brilliant and the most eagerly looked-forward-to of all youthful delights remain without a change to those who enjoy the new with zest.

which affect it for good or evil. Where a company of refined young persons are gathered together for an evening's happy pastime, not the slightest thought of harm is attached to it.

It is often only when evil thinkers are present that harm is made out of new and unusual steps. The evil disposed could constitute harm out of a couple merely walking the thoroughfare, hand in hand. But it may be said that young folks can dance in their own parlor what might not be looked upon so leniently in a public ballroom. I cannot see the reason for the hue and cry that is raised over the so-called immorality of the new dances. All that they need is a sensible change made here or there. If those who criticise the loudest were compelled to dance there might be fewer stunts needed, for the reduction of the all too-solid flesh—that sinister foe of the woman fat, fair and forty. If the people who compose the gathering are what they should be, no extreme dancing will be indulged in. Young girls are docile. They gladly follow a wise leader who dances with discretion.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Norton C. Miller and F. Mark Bream, mail carriers at Gettysburg, Pa., have completed the twelfth year of their service for Uncle Sam. In that time each has traveled about 50,000 miles on foot, each has carried a total of 290,000 tons of mail and each has carried approximately 4,200,000.

Joseph Frick, a janitor in Erie, Pa., recently beat his own record by finding an envelope in which was $1325. During the twenty-six years that he has been janitor he has found more than $6000 in money. All of it was returned to the owner, and the largest reward he ever received was a 5-cent cigar.

Chief Justice Charles N. Potter of Wyoming and his wife have voted side by side for thirty-six years.

A thirteen-pound child born on the thirteenth day of November, in the year 1913, is the "hoodoo" combination confronting Mr. and Mrs. Ulysses LeBlanc of Evan Hall Plantation, Louisiana.

The death of John Tully of Binghamton, N. Y., at the age of 76, leaves William Durst, of Philadelphia, the sole survivor of the crew of the Monitor, the first ironclad vessel, which defeated the Merrimac.

Mayor-elect Jerwyn of Scranton, Pa., has given notice that during his term at the City Hall the rich citizens who get drunk in public places will not be tenderly sent to their homes in taxicabs; they'll ride in the patrol wagon, just as poor citizens do.

Alvin B. Giles, treasurer of a motion picture company in Chicago, says "the American people are spending $500,000 daily on motion picture shows. Every day in the United States more than 5,000,000 persons go to see moving picture shows."

Volo Waits, 18, fell off a tree while picking chestnuts at Mt. Carmel, Pa., and broke his nose. A year ago he met with a similar accident and had a crooked nose since then. The recent fall will result in the member being straightened out once more.

CONFESSIONS OF A CRITIC.

The Way a Show Looks to a Man Today and the Way It Will Look to Him a Week After Are Sometimes Quite Different Propositions.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK

"IS THE 'Merry Countess' worth going to see? My family wants to go."

"No," I answered abruptly. "It is not worth an evening of yours."

"You gave it nearly a column of praise," he reminded me.

"That was yesterday," I answered.

Then a week after that I found myself saying to the same man: "Too bad you didn't hear the 'Merry Countess.' Some of its music was bewitching."

It was like overhearing myself talk. You know the trick of letting one side of your brain speak while some other part of it listens with amusement if not concern.

Since it is quite impossible that all of yourself will agree at any one moment about any one thing it is certainly unlikely that very much of you will agree with what you have said and thought about anything a week after it has happened. The process of mental digestion is not always rapid. We may imagine that we reach a point of reflection quickly, but what really happens is that we jump to a conclusion without any attempt to analyze the influences which lead us to the positive assumptions which we make.

Truly, as a critic, I am bad enough in disposition to have many confessions to make, but in experience I am not old enough to do more than guess at my feelings and those of others in this respect.

It is now clear enough to me why I wabbled the way I did about the "Merry Countess." In the first place, the name of Strauss as author of the music held a sort of spell for me. It was white magic. I like Strauss; I know little about music. This was a Strauss piece, and that was enough for me. It had some catchy words sung to the tune of the "Blue Danube," and with that merry little lilt keeping time in my brain I could not do other than say that it was good. The number had been sung pleasantly by a graceful tenor and the little silver notes of this one song were the motif of my entire criticism.

Then there was the woman. She was barely second rate with a voice that rasped at the high notes and an exaggerated appeal to her action. These entirely escaped me. I liked the way she smiled and I liked her kissing—of the other fellow sin the play. Moreover, two weeks before that we had paid high prices to see Anna Held, who can neither act nor sing, and who doesn't wriggle with any grace. Even the rolling of her black eyes lacks enchantment, but she is Anna Held, advertised, heroinized and sublimized. Except for George Beeban and the Chinese acrobats, she had no sort of company, and Beeban came to us for the twelfth time in an old number. After that, in the same house, we had listened to Alice Lloyd, or pretended to listen to her. What we really did was to look at her costumes, some of which were fetching, but most of which were only novel. I liked her hair and my admiration stopped there. I had a sense of having been stung by both women.

That is why Julia Gifford, who is Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons, looked good to me in "The Merry Countess." Two weeks have elapsed and I am still a trifle uncertain of my first judgment on the piece, but I think it was nearer right than my after thought, in which I warned a friend away. I know now that it is patchwork. Evidently Strauss has thrown together a few odds and ends of catchy music for which he had no other purpose. They have been loosely assembled at that, but there is enough melody to them to make one remember, and that does not happen often in musical comedy. Any composer who can make me remember tune, and any author who can compel my brain to make a refrain of his words, is certain to catch me. There is something in me that will recognize that quality the minute I hear it, and that something is in us all. It amounts to the intuition of judgment.

It is a lot safer to ask the heart what it feels than to inquire what the brain thinks when it comes to criticism. In truth, the heart speaks up without any question having been put to it. A dozen times I have left the theater with the firm intention of saying certain things about a play and of leaving others unsaid, but when I sit down and begin my dictation I find the heart like a rebel at the other end of the wire, and my brain sits amazed and listening. It is as much surprised as the readers might be, providing they do not agree with what it says, and my own brain is not only surprised, but often disagrees with this strange, new, unthought-of judgment which in nine cases out of ten is what I really will think upon mature reflection.

Newspapers pray to be delivered from essays. The writer of them is an abomination in their sigth. This article threatens so much in that direction that it will have to be closed almost at its beginning. It is so dangerously human in its text that I am compelled to theorize much, lest I tell a little of the truth.

Some plays hold big truths and are acted badly. It seems to me that the fair thing is to confess the play's strength and to use as little space as possible in deploring its misrepresentation. Other plays will possess no merit, but will be acted consummately. This leaves the critic little leeway. He is sorry to see good people wasted and he knows it is not their fault. Often it is not the fault of the manager and even the author has not been malicious. There is really no final way of testing a play except to stage it and to see what will happen. What that will be no one can possibly foretell.

Two weeks ago the Orpheum had a sketch with no sense in the world to it. It was as void of significance or cleverness as if it had been written by an idiot. Indeed, the thing had not been written at all. There was only a little trick of scenery with a few bad lines thrown loosely about it. Nevertheless, I remember it now as I would remember a patch of May apples in blossom in a woodland, or the sudden coming upon a bower of wild roses. The woman was not like May apples and wild roses, neither was she old enough or bright enough to remind you of tulips. She was more like a freezia, a jonquil or some of the little lily things which come along in February. She wasn't fine enough to be a hyacinth, nor rich enough for an Easter lily. Still, she had a rare glow and pleasantry and the abundant charm of surprised girlhood. She had been painting some impossible sketches which the young man, who appears on the scene, viewed upside down and pronounced good. They had a pretty little unfinished, nonsensical flirtation which threw out the hint of a romance to follow. That is no plot, but the people liked what it promised and enjoyed the livingness with which the youngsters entered its spirit. As far as I am concerned this sketch of "Drifting," presented by Agnes Scott and Henry Keene, will remain as one of the sweetest memories of the season, and it is not spoiled for me by the fact that Miss Scott is the bad author of the piece in which she did this good acting.

Lots of incidents fool us into believing something is good when it is not. This accounts for a new play getting a big hand one night and going dead before the week is over. Henry Kolker, for instance, took his part so well in the play that he wrote for himself that I gave it a good word and the people gave it a big hand, but it finished its first week so badly that it will probably never be revived. It had been preceded at the Morosco by a play on the Cammorra. The principal of that play is good and I let this fact inveigle me into saying more for the piece than anybody connected with it, including what the manager and the actors thought to be true. They put it on because they thought it was good melodrama. I praised it because I thought it was a fine study in neglected and seldom recognized philosophy. If it came back, now that I have slept over it, I think I would sleep through it. I would give its motif a paragraph, the actors another and let it go at that.

I think my greatest change in heart about any one company in recent shows here has been that of William Faversham in "Julius Caesar." If I were doing that show over I would devote two-thirds of a column to the superb acting and atmosphere of the unforgettable Cassius, and at the bottom I would say that the Brutus was good and that Mr. Faversham also appears with the company. As to the last I might remember to say that he played Marc Antony, if I was doing the story carelessly, but if giving the piece real thought I would probably leave this off.

With Margaret Anglin and her nice company, I made the mistake of meeting her press agent and of permitting him to tell me what the scenery cost. After that, somehow, I felt a little as if I were looking at $80,000 worth of stage trappings instead of hearing a lovely woman read the lighter and happier lines of a great master.

Ruth Chatterton was as sweet as I said she was. She had the radiance and the spirit of my praise, but would I have known it if I had not seen its reflection in another personality in the audience just as fragrant and as rare, so that when I sat down to dictate my criticism, the sweetness of the two blended for me into one? I know the answer, but what's the use?

After a long-distance courtship in which each letter took a month in traveling 8000 miles to its destination, Miss Plackmeier is soon to set out from St. Louis for Brazil, where she will marry Rev. Adolph Flor, a Lutheran missionary. With her will go three other young women who will become brides of workers in the same territory.

Forty years of continuous running for county and probate judge of Randolph county, Ark., and being defeated at every election is the record of W. B. (Blackstone) McCoy.

Dramatic Reviews.

management of the Majestic Theater and of "The Blindness of Virtue" company announced an extra matinee performance today of this Cosmo Hamilton play, which has attracted so much attention at the Broadway playhouse this week.

The engagement was to have closed Saturday night, but the play has attracted so much attention and created so much discussion, with the natural heavy demand for seats, that an extra matinee performance today was made possible.

Morosco.

Two dollars' worth of musical entertainment for $1.

With this slogan of what they intend to give Los Angeles playgoers, O. M. Anderson and his associates will, on tomorrow night, inaugurate their musical comedy policy at the beautiful new Morosco Theater, when, as the first attraction, they will present the well-known stars, William Rock and Maud Fulton, a number of supporting stars and a big company, in their phenomenal music, fun and girl success, "The Candy Shop."

To say that the coming of this new organization to the Broadway playhouse is one of the biggest and most interesting events of Los Angeles' theatrical history is quite unnecessary, for the tremendous demand for seats already indicates the great interest being taken in the opening.

For the past eight weeks Rock and Fulton and their associates have crowded the Gaiety Theater in San Francisco with their remarkable production of "The Candy Shop," which is an unusual thing in San Francisco—in fact, it is the longest run on record in the northern city. This fact alone is a splendid guarantee of the worth of the Gaiety company, for they have a cast, a chorus and a production far ahead of anything that any of the eastern managers have ever offered to Pacific Coast theatergoers.

Novelties of every description and down-to-the-minute specialties crowd thick and fast upon each other in "The Candy Shop," and it is in every sense of the word the very latest type of music, fun and girly entertainment direct from the gay White Way.

William Rock and Maud Fulton, vaudeville headliners de luxe, need no introduction to local theater patrons, for they are the foremost stars of their kind in America today. Other almost equally well-known musical comedy stars to be found in "The Candy Shop" are Al Sheen, Gene Luneska, Will Philbrick, Oscar Ragland, Mary Ambrose, Kitty Doner, Bessie Franklyn and a score of others.

From the standpoint of the chorus, Messrs. Anderson and Rosenthal have provided what San Francisco critics declare to be the most beautiful group of singers and dancers that has ever come to the Pacific Coast.

The entire chorus was engaged from Broadway productions, and it is one of the features of the production. Scenically and from the costuming viewpoint, "The Candy Shop" is described as dazzling.

Orpheum.

Dancing will hold a large place in the new Orpheum bill opening Monday matinee, no fewer than two expert dancers coming to exemplify the very best in the terpsichorean line. The top liners are one team—Harry Fox and Yancsi Dolly. Fox is well remembered as a member of the delightful trio, Fox and the Millership sisters, who played the Orpheum several times with great success; Miss Dolly is one of the equally-famed Dolly sisters, who, however, are strangers to the West.

The Dolly sisters came from abroad to be featured in big New York productions, and created a furore there. Fox, after leaving his former teammates, secured Miss Yancsi Dolly as his partner, and the result has been a team to conjure by in vaudeville.

Music will be dispensed by the Six Cuttys, the best family of musicians in vaudeville. Not only do they play almost all instruments exceedingly well, but they also sing with more than ordinary success. They costume and mount their act sumptuously, and, all in all, it is one of the big things of the day.

The second big dancing act is Dave Genaro and Ray Baily, who are known best for their "La Flirtation" dance, and for Bailey's stunning beauty of face, figure and gowns. This year almost all the dances they present are new, but they have wisely retained the "Flirtation" effect as one of their best. This act, too, is a notable one, but differs decidedly in make-up from the Fox and Dolly offering.

The new sketch is by George Rolland and his company, and is called "Fixing the Furnace." One is not expected to take it seriously, but as a farce, it is delicious. The subject is most apropos just now, and the action is hilarious from beginning to end, given as it is by these clever funsters.

The Three Collegians exemplify the rah-rah boy of the college type, in song, dance and patter, and make good on their sheer merit, as they vary their types, each being representative of one certain sort.

Ellen Beach Yaw in a new programme of delightful songs, S. Miller Kent in "The Real Q," and Joe Welch hold over, and there will be the usual orchestral concert and motion views of the world's news.

Mason.

"Mutt and Jeff," with is abundance of good humor and pretty girls, begins the final week of its engagement at the Mason Operahouse on Monday evening, and which will include the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

In the realms of the theater of today there is no form of entertainment more popular than farce, especially farce that makes merry in an atmosphere of thrills and surprises. "Stop Thief" is one of these. It engenders the fun that is stamped with the hallmark of genuineness by reason of its spontaneity. Its unusual situations and scintillating dialogue fairly bristle with thrills and ebullient mirth. "Stop Thief" will be presented at the Mason Operahouse for six nights and Wednesday and Saturday matinees, beginning Monday evening, December 15, by an extraordinary company of players which will include Messrs. Elmer Booth, Albert Taverner, Sydney Stone, Henry Hubbard, [illegible] Mason, Chic Burnham, John McCabe, Hal Mordaunt, John Mc-[illegible], Albert Carter, A. C. Doyle and the Misses June Keith, Gladys Wilcox, [illegible] Walker, Emma Campbell, Mary Vaughn, Veve Martin and Rose [illegible].

An extra holiday matinee will be given on Xmas Day during this engagement.

Burbank.

Philip Bartholomae's clever comedy, "Little Miss Brown," has proved such a genuine laughing success and attracted such large audiences to the Burbank Theater this week that Manager Morosco has decided to continue the presentation for one more week, beginning with the matinee performance this afternoon.

Nothing quite as delightfully funny as "Little Miss Brown" has been seen on the local stages in many weeks, and certainly nothing given by the Burbank company this season has provided the Burbank players with better opportunities.

Selma Paley, who has become a firm favorite with local audiences by her fine work in "Madame Sherry," "The Third Degree," and other Burbank productions, has again surprised her admirers by showing her wonderful versatility in the chief role of "Little Miss Brown."

It is by all odds the most artistic thing she has done this season—in fact, she has ever given local playgoers—and in it she shows herself fully as clever a comedienne as she has already proved as a prima donna.

Morgan Wallace and others of the company, including Forrest Stanley, Beatrice Nichols and Grace Travers, have scored individual hits in "Little Miss Brown," and its tremendous popularity during the first week would indicate a second week of capacity audiences.

Following the second week of this comedy, Manager Morosco will offer for the first time by a stock company "The Littlest Rebel," in which Harrison Hunter will return as a member of the Burbank company.

Empress.

The new Sullivan and Considine bill opening at the Empress Theater with the usual matinee performance tomorrow gives every evidence of being far ahead of the splendid standard of popular price programmes that have recently occupied the stage of this popular priced playhouse.

Heading the new bill will be another of the Roland West acts which have become so popular with Empress audiences. This is Mr. West's splendid comedy, "Behind The Footlights" a story of the stage that comes with the reputation of being exceptionally clever and witty and far ahead of anything in the novelty line that has been seen on this stage.

It is always interesting to theatergoers to see the life behind the scenes and this act is especially attractive for the reason there is nothing but fun from start to finish of the very liveliest sort.

Mr. West has selected a splendid company, while the act is finely produced in every particular.

The second feature of the new bill and an uncommonly good one will be the "Five Veteran Boys In Blue," an organization of old Grand Army men who will play the old fashioned tunes in the old fashioned way, telling interesting stories of the Civil War and sing the songs they sang in the days of this bloody struggle.

These veterans represent an aggregate age of over 350 years, the youngest member of the company being 69 and the oldest 85.

Third in importance on the new bill will be Kelso and Leighton in their lively musical skit, "Here and There." This skit was built for laughing purposes only and is a fast conglomeration of music and fun that should keep the audience happy for a full fifteen minutes.

An offering that should be unusually attractive to music lovers is the Franconia Opera company, a quartette of operatic stars rendering excerpts from the standard operas, all beautifully combined into an act which they have termed "An Idyll of Venice."

Orville and Frank will offer their latest novelties from the London Hippodrome; Ross and Ashton will add much to the fun of the bill with the skit "The Surveyors," while there will also be the new and exclusive Keystone comedy pictures.

Pantages.

This week brings back Laurie Ordway who thus wins the distinction hitherto belonging alone to Tom Kelly of playing three times in one year over the Pantages Circuit.

Miss Ordway is one of three women who are starred in the week's show. The headline honors are shared by M'lle. Mini Amato in Aurelio Coccia's dancing pantomime "The Apple of Paris," and by Marion Munson who presents the protean comedy "The Kidnapping of Bianca."

"The Apple of Paris" is Aurelio Coccia's latest production, and he appears in the cast with Mlle. Amato. It is a story of love, jealousy and intrigue told in pantomime. The story is decidedly Gallic, and the plot might have been supplied by Balzac or de Maupassant. M'lle Amato plays the part of Odette, a counterpart of Zaza, and like Zaza, dies disappointed at her lover's deceit.

The third of the feminine trinity is Marion Munson. Miss Munson presents a series of characters which differ widely in costume, speech and make-up, and weaves them into one well connected playlet. In "The Kidnapping of Bianca" she plays successfully a chorus girl, an Irish servant, an Italian woman, the chorus girl's mother, a nursemaid and her own chum, making her changes of costume and facial make-up so rapidly that the audience can scarce believe the different roles the work of one person.

Balzac and Baker, two San Francisco lads, are concluding their first tour of the Pantages Circuit in ragtime specialties. Frances Le Maire offers a clever skating specialty. The Walker Brothers in their crossfire comedy "Passing the Buck," are also promised.

Hippodrome.

One of the most unique, interesting, and in a way pathetic acts in vaudeville will headline the new bill at the Hippodrome, beginning with the matinee Monday. It is "The Old Veteran Fireman."

Modern fire fighting methods have relegated these brave old red jackets to the discard, but the grownups at least can easily recall the days when these same sturdy lads see-sawed the old hand tub and passed the buckets to save the old village from destruction.

At the Hippodrome some of these famous old boys, in a sketch of decided merit, will bring back the old days in a way that is sure to earn them a rousing hand. There are nine in the cast, and the offering is so out of the ordinary as to make it one of the banner events of the season.

All the way from Australia will come "The Lessos," with a comedy juggling novelty originated in the antipodes, which is declared well worth seeing, while Rochester and Laivaign, a capital sister team, will sing and dance and show their skill on musical instruments as well.

The kids are sure to like the Hippodrome this week because there is something of a circus flavor to it. Floyd and Floyd, for example, will bring one of the best tight-wire acts on the stage, and the "Four Nelson's Comiques" have a comedy acrobatic and gymnastic novelty that cannot help but be a scream for old as well as young.

Madame Lloyd has been singing her way to fame ever since she was persuaded to foresake the concert stage for vaudeville and will bring a sort of a start this big new venture is going to have!

IN THE FUTURE.

Now perhaps a little peek into the future is not amiss.

You see, after "The Candy Shop" leaves here at the end of its engagement the new Gaiety company which opens in San Francisco will come to Los Angeles.

And this will be headed by Irene Franklyn and Burt Green. You remember her best for "Redhead," of course. They will have dandy support, too, for the idea is that quality must be kept up all the time or the venture will flivver.

In the meantime, "The Candy Shop" goes to Denver, and with the arrival here of the Franklyn company, the third big Gaiety organization will make its debut in San Francisco.

This third organization will be headed by big, jolly Marie Dressler, whose greatest success was "Tillie's Nightmare."

SUCCESS IN NORTH.

That the plan is going to work out splendidly seems assured. In spite of the predictions of the skeptics, "The Candy Shop" ran for nine weeks in San Francisco to crowded houses. As a matter of fact it was scheduled to have made its debut here last week, but they simply could not get away, and besides, it did not do any harm to give the incoming show the benefit of the extra week of rehearsal. Now they are sure to be here all through the holidays and well into the spring, for Los Angeles has always come to the front when something really good came to town.

As a matter of fact, the new idea will in many respects put a crimp in some of the mediocre road shows that have come out here and in some of the good ones, too, for it would be almost impossible to carry over the road an organization that in any way approaches in quality this first of the Gaiety companies, which makes its debut at the Morosco tomorrow night.

He was born in County Down, Ireland, November 2, 1813, and came to this country in 1847, locating for a time near Meadville. He was married three times and is the father of eighteen children, of whom eleven survive.

EAT LESS MEAT AND TAKE SALTS IF KIDNEYS ACHE OR BACK HURTS

Says Bladder Irritation or Rheumatism means Kidneys aren't straining out uric acid.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Mrs. Hannah Greensides of New York, on her ninety-ninth birthday calculated that she had slept 365,000 hours of her life away.

Frank Geraghy, Sr., of Monticello, N. Y., dean of conductors in the employ of the Erie Railroad, has announced that he will retire soon on account of the 70-year age limit, after being in the employ of the company fifty-two years. His railroad career goes back to the days when wood was still used on locomotives.

Francis S. Torrey of South Weymouth celebrated his ninetieth birthday, November 18, by taking a day off from business. Torrey has been an active shoe cutter in factories in Weymouth, Braintree and Holbrook for seventy-five years.

The second oldest resident of Somerset county, Me., recently celebrated his ninety-eighth birthday by sawing a quantity of wood. He is grandfather to thirteen children, great-grandfather to four, and has lived for many years within a quarter of a mile of Benjamin Priest, who is the oldest man in the county.

Al Kilgore, a 70-year-old pioneer, living fourteen miles from Portland, Or., walked to that city in order to see Mathewson pitch, only to learn on his arrival that that player had left the Giants in California.

Macapah Wise of Beaver Brook, N. Y., is the oldest soldier on the government's pension list. Although deer hunting has become too lively work for Wise, the old soldier does not give up fishing. It is a very common occurrence at Beaver Brook, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, for the villagers to take lanterns and hooks and go a-fishing for Macapah, for falling in the river or pond seems to be a necessary occurrence pertaining to his fishing, but when fished out, Wise's enthusiasm for fishing is never cooled off. For winter or summer, after a warm drink, a little sleep, he gets up more ready than ever to be wiser than the fish who seek to get tentative bait which he holds out to them. Wood chopping, watching swarming bees and overseeing the farm work are part of his daily routine. His recipe for a long life is, "work hard, eat plenty, sleep well, take out-of-door exercise and don't worry."

The Chorister.

Snow on the high-pitched minster roof and spire;
Snow on the boughs of leafless linden trees;
Snow on the silent streets and squares that freeze,
Under night's wing down-drooping nigh and nigher.
Inside the church, within the shadowy choir,
Dim burn the lamps, like lights on vaporous seas;
Drowned are the voices of droned litanies;
Blurred as in dreams the face of priest and friar.
Cold hath numbed sense to slumber here. But hark!
One swift soprano, soaring like a lark,
Startles the stillness; throbs that soul of fire,
Beats around arch and aisle, floods echoing dark
With exquisite aspiration; higher, higher,
Yearns in sharp anguish of untold desire.

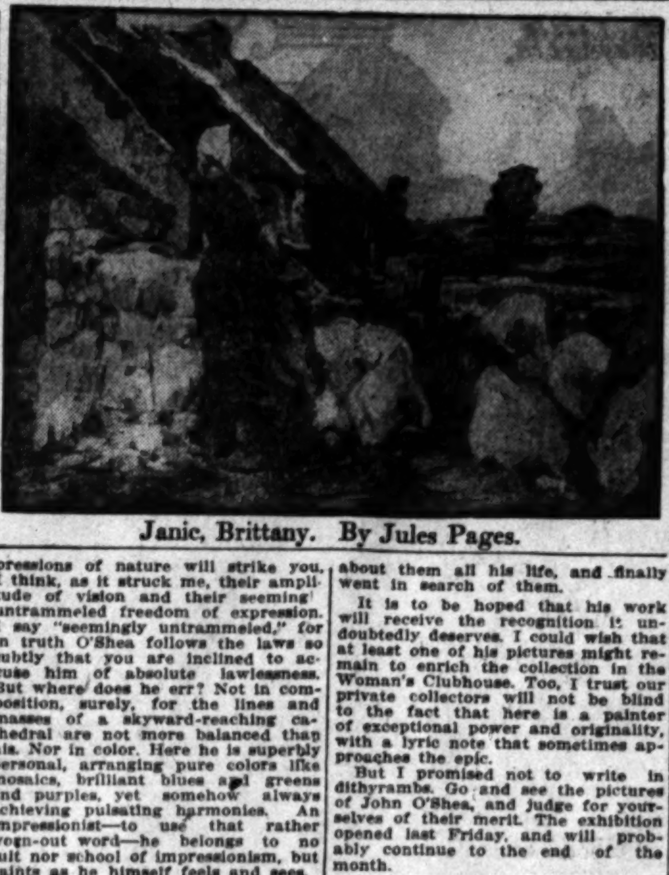
John O'Shea.

Something in the landscape paintings of John O'Shea tempts one to become dithyrambic when speaking of them. This may be due to the fact that they themselves are so sonorously lyrical in expression, so keyed to the harmonies of life and light in nature. He comes rightfully by his happy sympathy with nature, for he was born in Ireland and lived there till he was 16.

However, though sorely tempted, I will season my admiration and try to write in soberest prose of John O'Shea and his work. Though he is a poet, it behooves me to remain a reviewer and not turn into a rhapsodist.

He came, then, to New York when he was 16 years old, which is perhaps almost as many years ago. The spell and lure of California brought him out here last March, and he has been painting our landscape ever since. Some twenty of his pictures are now to be seen in the large auditorium-room of the Friday Morning Club.



Janic, Brittany. By Jules Pages.

The big joyousness of these impressions of nature will strike you, I think, as it struck me, their amplitude of vision and their seeming untrammeled freedom of expression. I say "seemingly untrammeled," for in truth O'Shea follows the laws so subtly that you are inclined to accuse him of absolute lawlessness. But where does he err? Not in composition, surely, for the lines and masses of a skyward-reaching cathedral are not more balanced than his. Nor in color. Here he is superbly personal, arranging pure colors like mosaics, brilliant blues and greens and purples, yet somehow always achieving pulsating harmonies. An impressionist—to use that rather worn-out word—he belongs to no cult nor school of impressionism, but paints as he himself feels and sees.

And unmistakably, he paints Southern California, though it may not be the Southern California of some other painters. But it is the land of light as many of us feel it and love it. Keen sunlight that is never garish. Pure color that is never crude. Grandiose hills that are yet tender and intimate. Where—except perhaps in Italy—can you find such wonderful pictorial possibilities as these? O'Shea had dreamt about them all his life, and finally went in search of them.

It is to be hoped that his work will receive the recognition it undoubtedly deserves. I could wish that at least one of his pictures might remain to enrich the collection in the Woman's Clubhouse. Too, I trust our private collectors will not be blind to the fact that here is a painter of exceptional power and originality, with a lyric note that sometimes approaches the epic.

But I promised not to write in dithyrambs. Go and see the pictures of John O'Shea, and judge for yourselves of their merit. The exhibition opened last Friday, and will probably continue to the end of the month.

In the Daniell Gallery, Hotel Alexandria, twelve miniatures by Mabel Packard are on exhibition, to remain to the end of this week.

Miss Packard's admirable work in miniature painting is not unknown in Los Angeles. The artist exhibited here three years ago, and remained to execute a number of portrait commissions. Since then she has been in Munich and Paris. She studied some details of technique with Madame La Forge, that famous painter on ivory. Last winter she held an exhibition in the Kunstlerinnen Verein of Munich.

The artist is a pupil of the Chicago Art Institute, and has lived in Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, all her life, with brief sojourns in Europe and California. It is her intention to remain here permanently, and she is making plans for the building of a studio in South Pasadena. Miss Packard is a woman of talent and accomplishment. She will prove to be an important addition to what is sometimes known as the "local art colony."

One of the most interesting of the miniatures at the Alexandria is the portrait of Miss Loueen Pattee, an American woman living in Munich and in charge of a school for American girls. The scheme of color is particularly attractive, the fine dark-haired woman being clad in green of a soft clinging material. She is seated in an antique chair, and both her beautiful hands are seen. The values are kept with exactness, the modeling is as firm and true as if the portrait were one of life size.

Indeed, Miss Packard believes that a miniature may be as faithful to all the canons of good art as any other form of painting, and that nothing need be sacrificed because it appears in "the little." The portrait of Miss Pattee, as well as the other miniatures in the exhibition, is handled simply and broadly in planes and values. What more can the life-size give us? Delicacy and refinement are of course necessary attendants to a miniature, which is to be studied in the hand and not from a wall. But delicacy never yet was a bar to strength. Brutality is not power. Remember, the back of a well-known prize fighter, recently pictured in this paper, was taken for that of an actress famed for her delicate beauty.

Miss Packard paints children with sympathetic understanding. Their flower-like faces lend themselves delightfully to representation in miniature. She exhibits a number of these, among them "Little Ruth Horne" and "Margaret." Little Ruth is a sweet golden-haired child wearing a straw bonnet with blue ribbons and an encircling wreath of pink roses. Equally dainty is Margaret, painted in an unusually subtle color scheme, the background being of palest amber hardly yellower than ivory. Margaret's pink roses in her hand—with a [illegible] them in her smooth cheeks.

A notably strong portrait of the artist's father shows that she is [illegible] at home in transcribing the characteristics of men. It is firmly [illegible] frankly presented.

Wieczorek Once More.

The paintings and decorations of Max Wieczorek now on exhibition in the Steckel Gallery, No. 336½ South Broadway, will remain there to December 22.

Particularly interesting are the portraits, one of which, that of Mrs. Albert Hayes, was reproduced in this column last spring. Wieczorek uses both oil and pastel when working at portraiture, though I judge that pastel seems to him the more sympathetic medium. At any rate, all but two of the portraits are in pastel, the exceptions being "Mrs. Albert Hayes" and "Maxine."

Maxine is an engaging child, a daughter of the artist. She has been painted sitting at ease in a wicker chair in the corner of a cozy room. Her legs are crossed, her hands are thrown over the arms of the chair, she looks out, seriously and sedately, at the world in general. Her quiet dark eyes hold all the undivulged wisdom of childhood. At her right stands a little vase of coppery zinnias. The picture's scheme of color is rich and unusual. The little maid herself has the naive charm of the children of Jessie Wilcox Smith.

Another notable portrait is that of Charles Saxe, the well known Los Angeles architect. The modeling is admirably solid, the flesh tones are ruddy, while the character of the sitter has been rendered with great fidelity. In his recording of character, indeed, Wieczorek always amply justifies his choice of portraiture as a means of artistic expression. His sitters are not types to him, but individuals, and all are strikingly differentiated. Mrs. Emma Rissman was studied by a keen observer, a sympathetic interpreter, and the portrait of Mrs. James Gibson, seen in profile, has charm of character as well as loveliness of color.

But our painter is a man with various points of view. He does not confine his interest in beauty to one class of subjects. The present exhibition holds some attractive landscapes and garden scenes. Two of these, "The Path" and "Hydrangeas," were sent out from New York by Louis C. Tiffany, their owner. "The Path" is a charming study of autumnal [illegible] covered with goldenrod, thistles in bloom and many other gold and purple flowers, the whole a rich and soft cloth-of-gold of nature's finest [illegible] and web. Vividly green is the lawn seen in "Hydrangeas," dappled with sun and shade, the pink blossoms of the bushes glowing with September glory.

Two small pictures that yet hold much of the out-door spirit, its delicate play of color and its vibratory feeling of light, are "The Net-Mender" and "Mending the Nets." The first is painted in subtle tones of blue and lavender, and the man at the net is alert and vigorous. In the second, which contains some women and a young girl seated on the ground, we catch no glimpse of the sea, but we feel its tang in the air.

Wieczorek's designs for mural paintings show that he can handle many figures without confusion, and that each helps toward the beauty of his composition, either by its line or its masses. They are drawn with great feeling. The designs in color are sparkling and unhackneyed. He shows one wonderful study in imitation of mosaic.

ART NOTES.

Paintings by Wesley A. Griffin and Arthur D. Clough are now being shown in the public library at San Pedro. Griffin exhibits twenty-[illegible] pictures, portraits, landscapes and marines; Clough, six landscapes. The exhibition closes at the end of the month.

The water color flower studies of the late Paul de Longpre are still being shown at the Hoover gallery in Hollywood, to remain there through December. In January a collection of paintings from the brush of C. A. Fries of San Diego will be exhibited.

Notable reproductions in [illegible] the "Royal Christmas Cards" of Raphael Tuck & Sons, the originals from oil paintings, being the private Christmas cards of the royal families of England and Germany.

Xarifa Hamilton Towner is showing pastels and water colors at No. [illegible] Broadway, New York. Her permanent studio is at Laguna Beach.

Frank Cuprien, who is at Laguna Beach for the winter, has sent some recent marines to Kanst, where they are now on exhibition. Some of these canvases are among Cuprien's best work.

The meeting place of the California Art Club has been moved from the Copp building to the Cannon Art School on South Hill street, directly above the Pacific Electric station.

Willard Huntington Wright has an article on "Impressionism to Synchromism" in the December number of the Forum.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Possibly the only London church on which a woman's name appears is the tiny church of St. Mary Magdalene, on Ludgate Hill, on the notice board of which is inscribed the name of Marie Siefels, the sextoness.

Donna Anna de Castro Osorio, daughter of Judge J. Batista de Castro, is one of the chief leaders in the woman's movement in Portugal.

Miss Eda Ek of Brooklyn has claim to the shortest name in the United States, and a London journalist has hunted up some rivals, including the Marquis d'O in Normandy. In Paris some years ago was a cafe kept by Madam Therese O, whose [illegible] son, when called to serve his term in the army, created some amusement by being unable to sign his name. He was on the point of making a cross when he was shown that it was quite as easy to shape an O.

The long search for the missing heiress to the $200,000 estate of [illegible] N. Crawford of Logansport, Ind., ended when Mrs. Adelia Crawford Griffin was found in a poor [illegible] section near the Ft. Wayne railroad shops, in Pittsburgh, Pa. She lived with her aunt, Mrs. Jennie M. [illegible] a sister of Margaret [illegible] Crawford, the first wife of the [illegible] westerner.

Miss Laurie Coates, an American nurse, who has been associated in his work with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell in Labrador in the Far North, arrived in New York last week. She asserts that she was the first white woman to see the Grand Falls in Labrador. She says that she made the trip last summer from Hamilton Inlet, where she was stationed, the northernmost relief station, in company with a half-breed Indian guide. They traveled by canoe most of 335 miles to the Falls, losing one canoe in the SCIENTISTS, CHURCHMEN.

Prof. Shosuke Sato, dean of the agricultural college of the Tohoku University, has been designated as exchange professor at the American universities. He was a student of agricultural economy at Johns Hopkins University and also in Germany from 1882 to 1886.

Three brothers, all Methodist ministers, held a family reunion in connection with the dedication of a church in Chicago. The only other living member of the family was their mother, who came from Boulder, Colo., for the reunion.

"Country school teachers," said Rabbi Harrison of St. Louis, "are the moral leaders of mankind. They give more and receive less than any other professional workers in the world. They are the most unselfish and self-sacrificing people of the United States."

Hollis Godfrey, formerly of Boston, recently appointed president of the Drexel Institute of Art, Science and Industry, in Philadelphia, is an authority on municipal engineering and industrial hygiene, and the author of books on chemistry, on laboratory work and on public health.

In 1847 William Gehman, at the age of 20, was elected pastor of the Mennonite congregation at Zionsville, in Upper Milford township, Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, serving for sixty years, when he resigned.

The Royal Society, England, has awarded the Hughes medal to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell of Washington for his investigations into technical electricity. The society elected Sir William Crookes president.

Clifford B. Beers, secretary of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, in a speech in Philadelphia said that there are more insane persons in asylums and like institutions in the United States than there are students in colleges and universities, and that they are responsible for a direct and economic loss to the nation of $135,000,000 a year.

Rev. Hugh Burleson of New York City, elevated to the Episcopal bishopric of North Dakota, comes from a remarkable family of five brothers, all of whom are in the Episcopal ministry, and who came by their profession through the fact that their father, too, was an Episcopal minister.

Dr. Otto Lummer, director of the physics institute of the University of Breslau, announced at a meeting of scientists last night that he had succeeded in making coal fluid by electricity.

OVER THE SEA.

Sir E. T. Cook, in a speech at the London Authors' Club dinner, said that Ruskin was once asked whether he was in favor of giving votes to women, and in reply he wrote: "So far from wishing to give votes to women, I would take them away from all men."

Prince Henry, the third son of King George, who is just completing his third term at Eton, is acting as fag to Viscount Gage, who came into his title last year. The Prince is said to be an unusually bright boy. He takes a keen interest in mechanics and speaks French and German colloquially like a native.

The superintendent of the solar department of the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, Eng., is E. Walter Maunder, F.R.A.S.. He announces his discovery that the earth is the only planet on which human or animal life exists. Some of the others are too hot and some too cold. In some of them the days are too long and in others too short. Others are too close to the sun and still others not close enough. He has printed all of this in a book.

Mme. Cecile Chaminade, perhaps the most famous living woman composer, has recently been made a member of the Legion of Honor, in France. This is the third recognition of this kind that she has received, two other countries having preceded her own in recognizing her genius.

It was in 1870 that Lord Knollys became private secretary to King Edward, then Prince of Wales. He held that position so long as the late King lived and King George retained him in the same capacity. The Archbishop of Canterbury recently said of him that he knew more and said less than any man alive. He is now 76 years of age, and is about to retire from his confidential position.

The venerable Dean of Guernsey, who has just celebrated his ninety-third birthday, is a wonderfully active man for his years. He is out of his bedroom by 7:30 o'clock each morning, and has breakfast on the stroke of 8. The dean is a great traveler, and is very fond of a trip to Switzerland, but he finds his work does not often allow him to take a holiday, and usually he spends the entire year at home, although, as Canon of Winchester, he finds it necessary to visit that town twice a year in order to preach in the cathedral.

The twelfth consecutive son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Sinton, of Yorkville, Pa., recently, and there is rejoicing. Sinton declares he'll organize a baseball club from his own family yet.

BITS OF VERSE.

"Make Me Music."

Make me music for a night,
Soft as slumber, faery-light;
Let the notes' seductive play
Charm the rhythmic hours away,
Picture me in cunning slave,
Seas no gallery ever clave;
Hills for roaming, happy streams
Rippled with the breath of dreams;
Isles that shipman never vaunted,
Woodlands faun—and dryad-haunted,
Make me music! Bear me hence
From the prison-house of sense.

Make me music for a night,
Secret, wise with all delight;
Tune it to a magic key,
Opening wistful things to me;
Joys far-holden, words austere
Uttered for a prophet's ear;
Mystics' vision, poets' lore,
Legends that are told no more;
Bliss of sacraments unspoken
On the lips of lovers broken.
Give me this and then, come, sorrow,
I'll engage thee on the morrow.
—[Phil J. Fisher in The Academy.

The Twilight.

And wistful for remembered loveliness,
And thinned and gray is each now russet tress,
And shadows in your eyes are daily born;
When all your lissome graces are outworn
By Time immitigate and pitiless,
And trembling hands and failing limbs confess
How surely near is Life's deceptive bourne,

Then, if my heart still beats, my lips still move,
And light still opens vision to my eyes,
I shall draw near you, tenderly, with head
Bowed in thanksgiving for full-circling love;
We shal sit happy under twilit skies,
And fearlessly await Death's rustling tread.
—[W. L. Seymour in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Dials.

With fingers softer than the touch of death
The sun dial writes the passing of the day.
The hours unfolding slow to twilight gray,
The gleaming moments vanished in a breath.

But sunny hours alone the sun dial names;
All unrecorded are the midnight spans
And vain within the dusk the watcher scans
The marble face; thereon no record flames.

So on eternal dials that God may hold,
And those more humble in the human heart,
No bitter deeds their passing hours impart;
Kind deeds alone are marked in fadeless gold!
—[Arthur Wallace Peach, in New York Sun.

Faith.

But I plants hit jes' de same;
I jes don' know ef de wind'll blow,
But I watch an' pray, an' I reap an' sow,
An' de sun he rise, an' de ribber flow,
An' de good Lawd know my name.

But I toils on jes' de same;
De birds they build where de spring sap swell,
An' dey know enough for a rainy spell,
An' dat's lots more dan dey gwine ter tell—
An' de good Lawd know my name.

So I watch an' pray as I goes my way,
An' I toils on jes' de same;
De rose is sweet, but de rose can't stay,
But I'm mighty glad when it blooms my way;
De night fall dark, but de Lawd send day,
An' de good Lawd know my name.
—[Frank L. Stanton in New Orleans Picayune.

COTTON CLOTH PLEASES CHINA.

Orientals Prefer It for All Purposes of Dress.

Many Native Mills Engage in Its Manufacture.

In the Interior the Growers Are Also Weavers.

BY EDWIN J. DINGLE.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—In spite of all political and revolutionary vicissitudes, cotton still maintains its position among the millions of China as the staple cloth for all purposes of dress and general use.

The Chinese themselves have never manufactured woolen goods to any extent, with the exception of in a few small areas in colder regions. Even the cultivation of cotton and the spinning of it into yarn were unknown, so it is believed, up to the thirteenth century, but after that time the use of cotton spread into all places in the Empire and became coextensive with China proper. Today you go into interior places, and there, as a general household industry, you find cotton plant, very short and only adapted to weft and short-end work, planted by every family who in turn grow it, spin it, weave it, and wear it.

During recent years the introduction of new seed into Manchuria seems to have made for improvement in the quality of the crops. The average yield per acre is reckoned at 490 pounds of seed cotton, or 176.49 pounds of clean cotton. In some places, of course, the yield does not reach anything like these figures, but there has been enough for several centuries to clothe the people.

In considerable travel in the interior of China, the writer has found the foreign manufactured article pushing the native product out of use. The markets of the large cities always have large stocks of cotton-piece goods, which at the start of the trade—and indeed up to the present time—have not proved as popular as one would have supposed. It is an undoubted fact that cotton-piece goods can be imported from England, carried by boat and on the backs of men and animals into far-away places, and there sold, at tremendous profits by the dealers, cheaper than the native cloth can be produced. And this in actual dollars.

Nevertheless, foreign manufactured cotton goods do not make the progress that they might if the firms did more to make them known throughout the length and breadth of China. In some places where the cotton prints and printed calicoes have been introduced, a tremendous market has immediately arisen—itself a proof of the willingness of the people to buy. This might be done with more advantage by American and European houses, but it would have to be looked at in the light of pioneering commercial work at the outset, and would call for a fair expenditure to create the demand. Slackness on the point is probably because the manufacturers find such difficulty in securing reliable information regarding interior areas, for this cannot properly be secured from coast ports.

There are, however, many Chinese mills in the country. These will undoubtedly increase very rapidly if the country settles down to peaceful conditions. In Shanghai alone there are thirteen and registered throughout the country there were in 1910 thirty-three mills with 903,416 spindles and 3805 looms, with an estimated annual output of 272,000,000 pounds of yarn and 45,600,000 yards of sheeting and drills.

One will probably see the growth of cotton fostered more and more by the government. This is being done now by one or two of the provincial governments and there is no reason why cotton should not be made a highly profitable product for foreign markets. In 1910, Japan took practically all the raw cotton China produced—about $18,500,000 worth.

RUINED BY SERVANTS.

Rich Men's Children Have a Worse Time of It Than the Offspring of the Poor in France.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The French League of Moral Education, at all events, does not believe that rich children have the happiest times. At a recent congress Mme. Adolph Brisson read its report, stating that the "happy" child, so-called because his parents live in luxury, is frequently the reverse of happy. His games, his dress, his conversation, and his freedom are frequently hedged around by silly constraints imposed by an unintelligent governess or a capricious servant. Servants should not be allowed to interfere in a child's upbringing.

"Reflect with me for a moment, ladies," said Mme. Brisson, "what must be the state of a child's heart after it had been delivered over to the tender mercies of underlings, often excellent persons as far as intentions go, but lacking in all morality, and, in any case, understanding nothing about the mysteries of education?

"Certain good old nurses, familiar and motherly, err from an excess of affection. They stuff the little ones with tit-bits, shrugging their shoulders at doctors' regimes, yielding to the child's most extravagant whims, and connive at every act of folly. They are careful only about one thing, viz., to repeat twenty times a day: 'Above all, don't say anything about it to your mother.'"

In Mme. Brisson's opinion, society women do not look after their children sufficiently. They are superficial, frivolous, and only care for the outward appearance of education. The child brought up by a loving and attentive mother will keep its faith in, and cult of, sincerity. The child in the hands of servants, even when they are kind and well-intentioned, will inevitably fall into the way of lying.

ANTWERP THE SCENE OF UNIQUE RACE WAR.

The Flemish and the Walloons Are at It Again in Belgium Which Up to Date Has Reached Only the Shouting Stage, but Which Is Fraught with Danger Because Fomented by the Powers on the Outside.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 1.—After having lived side by side in harmony from the dawn of history, and by their united action won independence and prosperity for their country, the two races which inhabit Belgium, the Flemish and Walloon, have declared war upon each other. This war, based on jealousies, has as yet advanced no farther than the shouting stage, but it is full of grave possibilities, for it is fomented from the outside by great powers armed for war, ready to spring at one another's throats, each touching the Belgian frontier, each eager for Belgian support in battle and each covetous of Belgian territories.

France, stirring up the Walloons, has her eye on the rich Walloon provinces. Germany is urging on the Flemish dreams with a hope of annexing Antwerp, the great Flemish port which already owes its prosperity to German commerce, the Flemish cities and the great coal fields of Flanders.

RIOTS IN STREETS.

The race war, commenced by rival authors, seeking predominance for the tongues they used and carried on for more than a generation on paper, spread last year to the streets and was marked by riots around the royal carriage when King Albert visited Walloon and Flemish centers, Walloons crying out against Flemish aggressiveness, Flemings shrieking their demands in Ghent.

The race hatred was manifested by disgraceful scenes at the Ghent Exhibition when the Flemish insulted the most talented of French artists, jeered at a great French orator because he would not pronounce an official speech in Flemish and broke up a great concert because the prima donnas of France took part in it. Within the last few days it has shown itself more strongly than before, in the Belgian Chamber, when a Flemish Deputy, finding his speech in Flemish misunderstood and misinterpreted by Walloon opponents, sought to explain himself in French and found himself howled down by a frenzied Flemish colleague who yelled that he betrayed the Flemish cause in speaking a few words of the language of the rival race. So the war is ostensibly one of languages.

POPULATION.

Belgium contains over seven million inhabitants. Of these about four million are Flemish and three million Walloons. The Flemings are ardent Catholics. They form the backbone of the Catholic party, and that party has been in power for over a quarter of a century. Its councils are swayed by men of Flemish race. In the government of the country it is generally supposed to favor the Flemish voters, agriculturists for the most part, to the detriment of other citizens. Those who do not see things very closely in Belgium are astounded to learn that the Flemish admit themselves the inferior people, but declare the oppression of the government has made and keeps them inferior. But it is so.

The complaint of the Flemingants is that their natural leaders, the men of high birth and wealth, have abandoned them, Frenchified themselves, and sold the country to the Frankish party. None of the rich and educated classes, Flemish though they be by descent, known Flemish, say the Flemingants, none of the poorer classes, small storekeepers, farmers, laborers, artisans, know any language but Flemish. The Flemish landlord lives in cities distant from his estates and visits his tenants only at election times, then dashing up in an auto and speeding away so as to lose as little time as possible with men with whom he has nothing in common. The employer at best can only speak a few words of Flemish patois to his work people. Generally, he cannot even do so much, and has to make all his communications to them through clerks and foremen.

LANGUAGE AN ISSUE.

There are no captains of industry in Flanders, lament the Flemingants, who strive to raise their workers intellectually and morally, as do great American employers, knowing that by doing so they provide better tools for themselves. There are no social engineers in Belgium. Nearly all hospital nurses in Belgium and other sick nurses are Flemings, nursing being looked on as one of the least attractive occupations. Not a doctor in Belgium, in or out of Flanders, can speak intelligibly of illness in Flanders, or give instruction to nurses, or to the friends of the sick, in that language. So little do the doctors care about the proficiency of the nurses, few nurses learn enough to present themselves for examination for a government certificate. Out of 1500 nurses in Belgian lunatic asylums only forty-two presented themselves for examination.

Magistrates who try civil cases, judges who in divorce proceedings are supposed to try to reconcile those who appear before them, cannot speak the people's language and have to seek the futile aid of illiterate interpreters. Flanders is said to be the classic land of agriculture, but the Flemish agriculturists lose ground daily as scientific farming advances in other countries, for whilst the government spends millions annually to advance the interests of the agriculturists, all the technical instructors, veterinary surgeons and others employed by the Department of Agriculture speak French only and all the manuals and other publications of the government issued for the use of agriculturists are printed in French.

COALFIELDS A FACTOR.

The newly discovered coalfields of Flanders, in Limbourg, are as large as the entire coal basin of the Walloon district, and, it is estimated, can produce annually for the next 400 years 24,000,000 tons of coal. Concessions for working portions of these coalfields have already been granted to eight companies, now busy in installing their plant. Before long, according to the calculation of the government of Flanders, the thirty-one communes these concessions cover, now the most scantily populated portion of Belgium, will have an influx of 32,000 miners with their families, making an addition to the population of 90,000 inhabitants, and entailing a further great influx of storekeepers and traders to supply their wants.

This increase, say the Flemingants, will mean the pushing back of the linguistic frontier, for the incomers will be Walloons, since the Flemish do not know enough to become engineers or foremen, or take any part but the lowest in the exploitation of the mines. All the great mining and iron founding companies of Wallonia have already received or applied for concessions in the Flemish district. It is but natural that with their skilled workmen they will also bring unskilled laborers who understand their language, from the Walloon provinces. Even if they employ Flemish workmen, they will employ them only for the roughest work at the lowest wage and place men over them who cannot speak a word they understand.

The result will be that the Flemish, instead of profiting by the working of the mines will be forced to toil in them like coolies, deprived of their original virtues, and worn out by labor. Brutalized by alcohol and gross pleasures, they will sink into ignorance, barbarity and degeneracy like their unfortunate kinsmen the Flemish miners of the central and Charleroi districts.

As it is wages are lower, work hours longer in Flanders than in any other country. The country is over populated, and the population continues to grow notwithstanding the continual flow of emigration from it to the north of France, the cities, and the Walloon provinces.

LACK OF EDUCATION.

The evil all comes from the lack of instruction. The schoolmasters teach in a language Flemish children cannot follow. Thirty-four per cent. of the Belgian school children are returned as being of weak intellect, or dull; 90 per cent. of these are Flemish. In reality they are not dull or wanting in any way. Simply they are expected to understand and study in a language they know nothing of. There is no Flemish university, no efficient technical school in which instruction is given in Flemish. Therefore those who intend to live and work in Flanders are forced to study in French.

Setting forth these complaints, the Flemingants address themselves to the government and its supporters in the Chambers in tones of menace growing daily more loud. A danger threatens the country, they say, which it behooves you to ward off. We the Flemish people, the majority in the land groan in ignorance and poverty. We will stand it no longer. It is useless for you to dream of our following your examples and Frenchifying ourselves. The example of 1500 years should have taught you that. Our nearness, our close relationship to Holland, where our language is spoken by all, high and low, used in schools and universities, and for all printed works, should in itself prove to you that what must be is not debasement, but the elevation of Flemish. If you will preserve Flanders for Belgium you must aban-

FINDING A WAY TO SATISFY ALL.

Home Rule Within Home Rule the Solution.

Separate Autonomy for the Ulster Province.

Grey's Suggestion Is Likely to Be Adopted.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Every serious-minded politician in England, if not the whole people, is anxious to see a settlement of the home rule question that will end the long-drawn-out battle between the two conflicting parties in Ireland, and most of the statesmen of the kingdom, both those in active service and those who have retired, have been contributing something at least toward that end.

The Prime Minister and the English Unionist leaders to whom the people are looking to find a way out of the situation, which has become serious because of the threatened revolution of Ulster if the present bill is passed, and a still greater revolution involving the rest of Ireland if home rule is not granted, have therefore received lots of advice. Present indications are that the government will adopt, in its overtures to the opposition, the course suggested by Lord MacDonnell and Sir Edward Grey, namely, home rule within home rule, or administrative autonomy for Ulster province. There has been a great deal of talk of the temporary exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the bill, but this is not considered possible, mainly because both Irish parties are strongly opposed to a settlement on those lines.

The Nationalists first and all the time are for a united Ireland. This is a matter of sentiment just as much as it is a matter of revenue. The Unionists, on the other hand, feel that a temporary respite from home rule would remove none of the objections to the bill. Furthermore, they say to accept such a settlement would amount to the desertion of the Protestants living in the south of Ireland, who they contend are just as much opposed to home rule as are those of Ulster.

On the government side the exclusion of the Protestant counties presents untold difficulties. In the first place the whole home rule bill would have to be recast and it is just possible that in attempting to do this the government might entirely wreck the work of the last few years. Under the Parliament act which, by curtailing the veto power of the House of Lords made home rule possible in the first place, the House of Commons cannot amend a bill after it has once been rejected by the Lords. It can, however, make suggestions to the upper house, which the latter is at liberty to amend, reject or accept.

In this case it would be necessary to amend the financial provisions of the bill; for was Ulster excluded Nationalist Ireland would require a bigger grant from the imperial exchequer. Now the House of Lords has no control over financial matters and should it, on the suggestion of the House of Commons, amend the financial provisions of the bill, the question might be raised that it was a breach of privilege. This, too, is only one of the Parliamentary tangles that might arise should the settlement make it necessary to amend the bill drastically. Besides the government, before the bill was introduced, considered the question of the exclusion of Ulster and decided against it on these and other lines.

WELSH DISESTABLISHMENT.

Renewed interest is being taken in the question of Welsh disestablishment, of immense importance to the church and churchmen. A stirring speech against the bill was delivered recently by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and a demonstration was arranged to be held in London as a protest against the government proceeding with the measure, which under the Parliament Act automatically becomes law after its next passing by the House of Commons, no matter what action the House of Lords takes.

There is no doubt that much of the apathy which heretofore had been shown by the laymen of the Church of England in regard to the bill arises from the fact that, like home rule for Ireland, it has been suggested that the bill should be the subject of compromise. On the other hand, there is the whole body of Welsh non-conformist opinion, backed by co-religionists in every part of the United Kingdom.

For forty years now the Welsh non-conformists have been urging the disestablishment of the church in their principality, and today disestablishment is supported by the whole Liberal party, as well as the Nationalists, and there are many Unionists who believe that it would not be a bad thing for the church. Most of the opposition, however, bitterly oppose it.

The bill, among other things, provides that so far as Wales and Monmouth are concerned the Church of England will cease to be established by law; all cathedrals and ecclesiastical corporations will be dissolved; the bishops of the four Welsh dioceses will cease to be members of the House of Lords; the present ecclesiastical law will cease to exist as law, and no ecclesiastical court will have any coercive jurisdiction; the bishops and clergy will not be members of or be represented in the houses of convocation of the Province of Canterbury.

After disestablishment the bishops, clergy and laity will be free to hold synods and to frame regulations for the government of the church, and in the event of a representative body being appointed, the government will by charter incorporate it so that the church property may be vested in it. So that the clergy may suffer no loss they will continue to receive their present salaries so long as they hold office and will continue to enjoy the use of their palaces and residences. Should any, however, after five years desire to retire, a life compensation will be granted them.

Outlaws.

BRIGANDAGE A PROFESSION.

Many Find It Profitable in Parts of China.

Mongolia and Manchuria Have Large Bands.

Authorities Send Troops to Capture Them.

PEKING, Nov. 13.—The recent exploits of White Wolf, the robber chieftain of Hupeh province, have drawn attention generally to brigandage in China. At the present time it is being pursued as a profession, with more or less success, in several parts of the country, and the old-time method of stopping a robber's depredation by giving him a high governmental post has not always been successful.

In Mongolia a considerable band is forming under an outlawed Mongol Prince named Tao Shi-tao, apparently one of the numerous Mongol chieftains whose extravagance has brought them to ruin with Chinese money lenders. Hunghutze—red-haired robbers—are indigenous to Mongolia, and of these Prince Tao is reported to have collected 15,000 in Eastern Inner Mongolia to ravage the Manchurian and Chihli frontiers. An army has been sent against him and more will doubtless be heard of him.

In Manchuria there appears to be a chronic state of brigandage—as indeed for fifty years past. But numbers of the outlaws are being constantly taken and executed.

At Funing, in Kiangsu province, there is a well organized band whose purposes are not indiscriminate killing and robbing, but the systematic despoiling of the rich. These men, however, are being relentlessly pursued by Gen. Chang Hsun, who, only a few days ago, caused the execution of fifty-six of them at one time.

In the south may be noted one Choo, who tried unsuccessfully to loot Canton and fled to Fushau. Unfortunately some of the soldiers sent against him threw in their lot with him, and Choo is at present driving a brisk business.

Associated with White Wolf was at one time a formidable bandit chief named Wang Tien-chung, but he succumbed to the proffer of a lucrative government position. Today he is rendering valuable service to his new masters. The famous "Tiger Hsu" was another well-known robber whose claws were cut by an attractive offer. White Wolf was made a similar proffer, but refused. He is not only against the present, but against every government that savours of reform, his ideas and actions having their roots in the Taiping rebellion.

The immense distances, the wildness of many regions of China, and the want of even passable roads make it extremely difficult to proceed successfully against these bandits; and to some extent China has always suffered from such. But it cannot be questioned that two years of revolution and relaxed authority have given them exceptional opportunities, and the terrorism they exercise is badly holding up trade.

OCCIDENTAL CLASSICS.

The Chinese translation of Bryce's "American Commonwealth" has become a classic in this country, a fact which accounts for the close copying by the new Chinese government of American political institutions. Young China already has become widely read in western literature, and every Chinese student is now familiar with the works of Rousseau, Montesquieu, Spencer, Huxley, Darwin, Mill and Adam Smith, through the medium of excellent translations.

The Chinese always have been a literary people, and since the abolition of the literary examinations of the ancient regime in Chinese classics, they have thrown themselves into the study of law with astounding energy. Standard text-books in Chinese schools and colleges consist of Bryce's "American Commonwealth," Lowell's "Governments and Parties in Continental Europe," and Burgess's "Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law."

In almost every Chinese home may be found light literature translated from every European language. Scott's "Ivanhoe" and Stevenson's "Treasure Island" are popular favorites. It is said that a total of 2000 different books by the best authors of America and Europe have been translated into Chinese. While there is no translation of Shakespeare, every schoolboy in China has a chance to know the bard from Lamb's "Tales of Shakespeare."

WAVE OF MIGRATION.

The city of Omsk, Siberia, has become the outfitting point for an extraordinary migration, estimated at 2,000,000 people annually, which pours into the country bordering on Mongolia. Notwithstanding official denials, it is known that this great horde is sweeping across the border into Chinese territory.

Nothing in Europe or Asia has ever been quite so like the springing up of the great cities of the American Middle West as the growth today of new towns in Siberia. Except that the tide is moving east instead of west the movement has many parallels to the wonderful migration which won the West for America. There are, however, two striking differences. The first is that the pioneering is comparatively luxurious compared to the American movement, while the natives, instead of being swept aside, are being absorbed by intermarriage with the settler.

The ten-day journey up the Irtish River from Omsk into the promised land is made by steamboats which are the last word in the luxury and convenience of river traffic. It is by no means a monotonous journey, as the river banks swarm with wild fowl and four-footed game, while the scenery in many places is wonderful.

That Omsk intends to become a modern city as soon as possible is indicated by the condition of her streets. In the business sections of the town sewers, gas mains, and underground telegraph and telephone wires are being installed, while street car track layers are working over the heads of the diggers. Similar work is being done in many other of the new Siberian towns, and so prosperous are these places that not a single bond issue has yet been necessary to carry on the work of municipal improvement. American harvesting machinery and oil companies are active in this section, and an American corporation has undertaken a contract to build grain elevators from one end of the Trans-Siberian Railroad to the other.

don your monkeyish mimicry of the French, and with it the use of the French language. We will not follow you, or go to you; you must return to us.

It is useless to tell us to learn French. We will not. If we had to learn what we call a world-wide tongue instead of Flemish it should not be French. There are only forty-five million French speakers in the world, whilst there are ninety millions who speak German and one hundred and forty millions who speak English. Besides, German is the scientific language, and English the language of commerce, par excellence. There is no need, however, for us to speak or learn any language but our own. The Flemish and Dutch languages are identical. There are four million Flemish, five and a half million Dutch, thirty million natives of the Dutch colonies; and the whole population of South Africa from the Cape to Katanga, which speak our language. Our language has a rich and growing literature. Over 4000 volumes are published in it yearly in Holland. Scientific and historical subjects are treated of as fully in these publications and as ably as in those of any country.

KEYNOTE.

In this demand and suggestion can be found the secret of the whole trouble so far as Flanders is concerned. It is true the written languages of Flanders and Holland are, or should be identical, but the Catholics who rule in Belgium, have no desire that learning, higher or lower, should come to Catholic Flanders from Protestant Holland. The government, obeying the law, publishes all official documents in Flemish as well as in French. Unfortunately, its Flemish is often outlandish. It is given to the invention of new words to describe new inventions or new needs, and its inventions make grammarians shudder.

It is suspected of acting as it does in order to make written Flemish as different from written Dutch as is the spoken language of the Flemish people, which degenerates sometimes into a patois, so that the people can no longer read the heretical or atheistical publications of Holland. The government is willing to be good friends with Holland, but does not want the people to fling themselves into the arms of the Dutch. It is eager to remain on good terms with Germany, but thinks, with reason, that Germany has advanced quite close enough to Belgium. It does not want the people to take any steps which would bring them nearer to Germany, as the substitution of instruction in the Dutch tongue for instruction in French undoubtedly would.

FLEMINGANTS' DREAM.

There is something in the complaint of the Flemingants that the Flemish people are ground down in ignorance and poverty, but the government seeks to relieve the poverty of the Flemish farmers by liberal grants of money to them for the improvement of their holdings and stock and by maintaining high protective duties on cattle and farm produce. This does not satisfy the war party, who will be content with nothing but Flanders for the Flemish, and dream of Antwerp as a real Flemish capital in which no French word will be heard, no Walloon face perceived, but where all will be Flemish and Germanic.

The Walloons, on their side, meet Flemish defiance with counter defiance. They mock at the Flemish cry that they are in an inferior position because French government showed them no favor during twenty years. They say the complaints that the existing government of Belgium does not act fairly by the Flemish is the exact opposite of the facts. They contend the Flemish are unsuccessful because they are by nature inferior, and were incapable of assimilating the new process introduced into Belgium in the first half of the nineteenth century. The Flemish industries were those of the hand, and hand industries they have remainel, notwithstanding the onward march of science and the conquests of machinery. The Flemish workmen who can reach no higher level than that of brick-makers or harvesters in summer and autumn, can find no other occupation for themselves in the dark days of winter than that of plying bobbins, making lace, etc., etc. They manufacture nothing, or next to nothing, whereas the Walloon provinces teem with manufactories.

WALLOON FIGURES.

The complaints of ill-treatment by the government on the part of the Flemish are falsehoods indecent in their nakedness, say the Walloons. Here, according to them, are the real figures: The Walloons whose provinces fewer inhabitants than have the Flemish provinces, pay in direct taxes, post, succession duties, etc., customs, excise, railroads, something over 156,000,000 francs; the Flemish pay something over 143,000,000. In the last year for which full statistics are forthcoming the government expended on public works and railroads in the Flemish provinces 82,000,000 francs; in the Walloon provinces 10,000,000 francs.; or, excepting Brussells as the capital common to both races, 48,000,000 on the Flemish and 10,000,000 on the Walloon provinces.

The war is purely a race war. Catholics, Liberals and Socialists meet in the ranks of either side. The grievances put forward on either side are of the most dangerous sort. The government, half of whose members are Walloons, and half Flemings, is honestly trying to meet the legitimate demands of each party, but it may continue to try in vain as long as the envious powers fan the flames at the Belgian frontier. Those who consider the situation will better understand its gravity if they bear in mind that it is false to speak of the Belgians as a bilingual people.

There are only 875,288 inhabitants of Belgium who speak both French and Flemish; 2,833,334 Belgians speak no language but French; 3,220,662 speak no language but Flemish.

LISTEN, YE DUDES.

Parisian King of Necktie Makers Expects Shortly to Cross Over to the United States.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 29.—The principal cities of the United States ought to look with interest for an early visit from the "king of necktie manufacturers." At present he is in Paris, but he will soon cross the Atlantic. And his taste is regarded by the most exclusive set of male society in Europe as the last word in necktie design.

This super-tie merchant, whose cheapest tie costs $10, and who will not accept an order for fewer than twenty-five ties, is reputed to make a profit of $100,000 a year. He is delighted to be in Paris, which he says is the capital of the world as regards elegance and dandyism.

CAUCASIAN BRIGAND KILLED BY SOLDIERS.

Famous Russian Outlaw, Noted for His Daring Exploits and Celebrated for Acts of Generosity to the Oppressed, Is Slain While on a Visit to Village After Shooting Several of His Would-Be Captors.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.—Russians all over the world will hear with mingled feelings that the news of the death of Zelimkhan, the King of Caucasian brigands, has at last been officially confirmed, bringing a sense of infinite relief to the military authorities in his zone of action. As is usually the case in connection with the majority of well-behaved brigands, there are numberless tales—only most of them well authenticated in Zelimkhan's case—of generosity to enemies and real kindness towards the poor, the weak, the oppressed.

Zelimkhan was one of the most picturesque, fierce, daring and elusive figures in the whole annals of brigandage; and there could be no truer parallel to the gory happenings of a dime novel than a record of his countless exploits on the Caucasian ranges.

Belonging to the Mohammedan Tchetchen tribe, Zelimkhan was born in the Tersk Province. His parents lived in affluent circumstances, and until a mature age he led the peaceful life of a mountaineer. Then a family drama changed the course of his life—a drama connected with passion and with crime.

His brother, Sultan Murad, and a fellow-villager, named Shougaip, were suitors for the hand of the same girl. In an evil moment Sultan Murad and Zelimkhan decided to bring the affair to a climax, and they forcibly abducted the girl, famous throughout all Southern Russia for her beauty. But the authorities successfully intervened, and the girl was returned to her parents. Shortly afterwards she was wedded to Shougaip.

BLOOD FEUD.

The Zelimkhan family considered themselves dishonored and between the rival families a "doushman"—blood feud—was declared, resulting in murder being committed on both sides. Again the authorities intervened, and this time Zelimkhan was thrown into jail. He effected a most daring escape, fled to the mountains, and straightway went into business as a brigand. And he was joined by his father and his brother, Sultan Murad.

The warlike tribes of the Caucasus bitterly resent any interference with their customs and inter-tribal affairs on the part of the Russian government, and the three Kelimkhan Ishmaels, furious at what they regarded as the persecution of their family in this affair, quickly revenged themselves. First they murdered the Senior Assistant Chief of District, Lieut.-Col. Debrovolsky, and then his Chief, Col. Galaroff. These acts marked the commencement of a long series of bloody deeds, which they carried out with the help of the fifteen armed comrades whom they had enlisted under their banner.

Later the band attacked the farm of a sheep-breeder, named Mesetzeff, near Hassaf Yurt. Mesetzeff was made captive and only released on payment of a ransom of 18,000 roubles ($9500.) Zelimkhan and his band successfully eluded the military; but, in making their escape to the mountains, they unexpectedly encountered an armed party of the rival Shougaip family. A fight ensued, during which Zelimkhan's father and brother were killed.

ANOTHER ROBBERY.

Zelimkhan's next coup was the robbery of a large jewelry store in Grosny. The store is situated in the center of the town, opposite the public gardens, and actually next door to the district administration offices and residence of the chief of district, near which are always on duty a strong detachment of militia and a squadron of Cossacks. But in spite of this, Zelimkhan and his followers successfully cleaned out the store, exchanged a few complimentary shots with the soldiery who turned up only just too late, cleared the town, and regained their mountain home.

Shortly after his spectacular feat the bandits made an attack on the railroad depot at Grosny. They surrounded it at 2 o'clock in the morning, with the result that the railroad depot accounts would not balance by over 18,000 roubles, and the military guards lost two of their number—killed.

One of the most desperate exploits of this Prince of Brigands was the attack on the government treasury at Kisliar. With thirty men, all wearing Cossack uniforms, he entered the town at noon, and posted men at commanding points. The military guard at the treasury numbered seven. These he engaged and killed. He and two of his men then entered the building, slaughtering everyone—officials and members of the public—that obstructed their path. The treasurer, hearing the shots, guessed instantly their true significance, and he and his book-keeper closed and locked the strongroom doors and threw the keys out of the window into the street. Then, each armed with Brownings, they awaited developments.

SMALL LOOT.

Immediately afterwards, Zelimkhan and his two comrades burst into the room and a fusillade of shots were exchanged. The treasurer and his book-keeper fell, mortally wounded. Zelimkhan here expected a large haul, but his plans were balked by the presence of mind and courage of the treasurer and his assistant. Access to the strong room was barred, and, as there was no time in which to employ explosives, he had to content himself with a paltry 5000 roubles ($2650,) which he found in the treasurer's cash drawers.

During this affray twenty-two people were killed and many wounded. To make good their escape after this expedition the bandits had to swim their horses over the swift-flowing River Terek at a point where it is 150 yards wide. One or two members of the band were known to have been winged on this occasion, but otherwise the whole of the bandits got away intact.

After this a military expedition was dispatched against him. Hidden in a cave in the heart of the mountains, the soldiers discovered Zelimkhan's wife and children, whom they made prisoners, and who were subsequently exiled to Archangel. During the return journey the expeditionary force was attacked by Zelimkhan in the Assin Gorge. The officer in command, Prince Andronikoff, and an officer of engineers were the first to fall. The officer commanding the Daghestan regiment was seriously wounded, as also were many of the rank and file. And so ended that particular official effort to exterminate Zelimkhan and his satellites.

Soon afterwards a Road Commission, composed of four highly-placed government officials, escorted by a bodyguard of twelve Cossacks, under the command of Maj. Dolidse, was ambushed by Zelimkhan and his followers in the Smaller-Kerket Gorge. The whole party, with the exception of a Col. Chikalin, was slaughtered. Col. Chikalin jumped on a horse and managed to make good his escape. During the brigands' retreat they, in turn fell into a Cossack ambush and Zelimkhan alone, of all his party, escaped with his life. This he did in some manner little short of miraculous by leaping over a precipice. It can only be supposed that his fall—intended to be to his death—was broken on a ledge by bushes, and that his native skill as a climber enabled him to complete his escape.

Col. Verbitsky was chief of district at the time when Zelimkhan attacked the Kisliar treasury, and he, together with other officers, was tried by court-martial, found guilty of omitting to take proper precautionary measures, and disgraced. He contrived to have conveyed to Zelimkhan a challenge to a duel without seconds or witnesses. But Zelimkhan answered: "It is not for me to fight with you. The rewards would be unequal. Were you to kill me, you would get an order to wear around your neck. But if I killed you, I should merely be pressed to wear a noose of rope."

Eventually the authorities received information that Zelimkhan was in hiding in a cave near his native village, Horotchoi. A military force was immediately dispatched thither and Zelimkhan's hiding place was completely surrounded. Zelimkhan had only too easily enlisted fresh followers, and when, toward evening, the soldiery opened fire on the cave, it was promptly returned, shot for shot.

HEARS BANDITS PLAN HIS DEATH.

Missionary Describes Plots of Chinese Robbers.

Has a Narrow Escape from "White Wolf's" Gang.

Relief by Soldiers Comes in the Nick of Time.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

PEKING, Nov. 8.—The American and Norwegian missionaries who last month were prisoners in the hands of "White Wolf" and his band of 1000 brigands in Northern Hupeh suffered great privation and often were exposed to extreme danger. For days they were separated from their families, with no knowledge of the safety of their wives and children, and suffering the pangs of hunger and thirst, two men missionaries lay in hiding within a few feet of a group of bandits and heard their death planned in case they were found.

"The robbers broke into our mission compound early on the morning of September 26. They were dressed in silks and satins and had silk girdles hanging almost to the ground. Each carried a rifle and revolver. About five or six men pointed their rifles at myself and the Rev. George Holm, an American, and demanded silver money, our other valuables, and that we give them our guns or revolvers. Mr. Holm had no weapons and I had only one revolver, which I gave up.

"Then they took Mr. Holm captive and went away with him. Later fifteen or twenty more bandits appeared, demanding silver, and, because we did not have any, took me prisoner. They demanded twenty rifles of me, but, of course, I had none. Then they insisted that I manufacture rifles, as I was a foreigner, and, therefore, able to do so.

"On the 27th the robbers allowed me to go back to the mission station to secure food for my wife and children, but upon arrival at the station I could find no trace of my family. I did, however, meet Mr. Holm, who also had secured permission from his captors to return and look after his family.

"Everything in the mission had been destroyed, and all food, clothing and movables had been stolen.

"Mr. Holm and I went into the streets to try to find our families, but our search was fruitless.

"At this time the Chinese troops, which had arrived at Tsaoyang, started to attack the robbers by firing from outside the city walls. The shots whistled through the streets in which we were, spattering up against the buildings. This alarmed the robbers, who immediately started for another part of the city. We took advantage of the opportunity to make our escape, and fled to an old Chinese house which at that moment was vacant.

"We ran into a side room and hid ourselves in a pile of old wheat straw. No sooner were we concealed than the robbers came and began their search for us. They pulled the straw about, jumped on top of it and ran their bayonets through it time and again. The bayonets just missed my legs.

"For four days the robbers lived in the same house, in a room opposite to us. For three days and nights we were without water and food. We hardly slept for eleven days and nights, for the robbers were all that time in the same house, most of the time in the adjoining room.

"They were smoking opium and we frequently heard them say that when they caught us they would kill us. The only time we could move a muscle was when a pig moved about, rustling the straw in which we were hidden, or when the rats scampered through it. We were almost choked with the dust in the straw, and suffered from the burning in our throats, noses and eyes. I chewed on my handkerchief for half a day in an attempt to moisten my mouth. When I could stand it no longer I crawled out of the straw in the night and groped about until I found about a cupful of water which I drank with eagerness. It was dirty water left in a washtub, but it revived me and my heart began to work better.

"That morning the owner of the house, a Mr. Wang, who was treated as a slave by the robbers, came in to hide clothing in the straw where we were concealed. We spoke to him, and he was startled at finding us there. We promised not to tell where we were, and gave us water to drink and some cold rice to eat. He did not get an opportunity to give us more then, on account of the presence of the robbers, but each day after that we got from him a little rice and water, enough to keep us alive.

"The last day but one that we were in the straw Wang found out and told us that our families were in the Yamen, where the robbers had made their headquarters. Of course we were very anxious, for we did not even then know whether they had food or not, or whether they were being well treated, and no message could be sent to them.

"Prof. Christian Stokstad and Dr. Johnson came to Tsaoyang on October 3 and on order of Vice-President Li Yuan Heng, took command of the troops. If they had not arrived the city would have been burned and we all would have perished.

"The nights of October 4, 5 and 6 the robbers tried to escape from the city and pass the troops, but were driven back. October 7 they managed to get by the Nangyangfu troops, who did not do their duty.

"About 400 of the robbers were killed in Tsaoyang. The murdered no less than 2000 people in the city.

"On the morning of October 7, Wang took Mr. Holm's card to his wife, who had already returned from the Yamen to the mission station, and as soon as she answered we went back to the station. The adviser to "White Wolf" had assisted the women inasmuch as he did not allow any of the robbers to go into the Yamen and do them harm. A native of Tsaoyang, who was in the Yamen, gave them food.

"It was impossible to remain at the mission on account of the stench rising from the dead bodies lying round, so we left the next day for Fancheng with an escort of troops. We were all in a very weakened condition and could hardly stand. Mr. and Mrs. Holm and child and Miss Sather, also an American, all of whom are in a serious state of health from the shock and terrible exposure, will leave shortly for the United States."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Men of science all over the world, and many American travelers who pay visits to old and valued shrines will hear with regret that a certain three-storied, stucco-faced house in the heart of London is about to be destroyed.

It stands in St. Martin's street, just south of Leicester Square, and a worn tablet records the fact that "Sir Isaac Newton, philosopher, lived here." Yet though it was saved by public outcry and sympathy some years ago, the London County Council has condemned it, and demolition is to begin in a month's time.

This old house, though it is out of sight of the general passer-by, has a demure appearance of mild decay which seems to associate it naturally with the eighteenth century. In its generously paneled rooms one can well imagine Newton's visitors, Addison and Swift, talking classically over good wines, and the great scholar, Bently, being argumentative about a Latin adverb. The wooden stairways are broad, and climb unsteadily to the heights from which Newton studied the stars. The demolition will take away a house which Macaulay prophesied would be "well known as long as our island retains any traces of civilization."

After Newton the house was occupied by Dr. Burney, the musician, whose famous daughter, Fanny (afterwards Mme. d'Arbiay,) wrote "Evelina" and other novels.

Phantasmagoria.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—One of the most popular preachers in London is the Rev. R. J. Campbell of the City Temple, and he recently preached an extraordinary sermon on the mystery of perpetual creation. He started by declaring that some day presumably the earth would come to an end, either in some gigantic conflagration caused by collision with some other heavenly body, or by simply breaking up. Its constituent elements would go back to what they were, and then start to build up a cosmos afresh.

This was the history, in brief, of the entire visible universe, a history without either beginning or end. It always had been and always would be "world without end."

"Out yonder in the trackless void," the preacher proceeded, "how many times has our own earth story been anticipated? How many times have there been worlds before ours in which the same questions have been asked and the same things done—worlds and men with their newspapers, telegraphs, railroads, parliaments, labor troubles, strikes, pearl necklace robberies, and all the rest? Why shouldn't there be? It is not a very comforting thought, but how are you going to get away from it?"

The reason why Jesus Christ was what He was to Christians was that they instinctively recognized that in Him the eternal had broken through "this whirligig of time, this dream of mundane existence," and had laid bare the secret of what we were.

"This monstrous phantasmagoria of earth and heaven," Mr. Campbell said, "this appalling mystery of endless creation and destruction, ceases to be dreadful in the presence of Christ. . . . Science cannot account for Jesus."

Caucasian Brigand Killed

and these exchanges continued right through till dawn, when the brigands ceased firing.

During the lull a howitzer was dragged up on to a mountain ledge with the idea of shelling the cave. But before starting to shell the band the officer in command, anxious to take Zelimkhan alive, attempted by signal to get into communication with him. Then it was discovered that the brigands had escaped. Connivance on the part of some of the soldiers forming the strong cordon around the cave can alone account for the denouement of this particular affair.

THE END.

These are only a few of the more notable exploits of this fascinating figure. His minor efforts are innumerable. And the climax came only last week. Fighting bravely to the last, Zelimkhan met his death in the following circumstances:

Through native secret agents the authorities were apprised of the fact that Zelimkhan intended visiting some friends at the Shalin hamlet, and a picked force from the Daghestan regiment was ordered to be held in readiness to seize him. Taking the minutest precautions, the force, numbering twenty men, all told, under cover of darkness entered the village and surrounded the house which was to shelter Zelimkhan. About midnight Zelimkhan, accompanied by several horsemen, arrived and dismounted in the compound. At once the officer in command, Lieut. Kibaroff, fired at Zelimkhan, who returned the shot, seriously wounding the lieutenant, who dropped. Subaltern Gebekoff then planted a bullet from his Browning in Zelimkhan's cartridge bandolier, causing several of the cartridges it held to explode, and the brigand was wounded. Gebekoff ran forward, but fell wounded in the thigh and leg. Meantime Zelimkhan had collapsed, but, supported by his elbow, he continued to use his pistol, accounting for two more soldiers.

At this moment, recognizing that he was mortally wounded, and that the curtain was about to fall on his tempestuous life drama, he begged for a few moments' respite in which to perform his ablutions and say his prayers in accordance with his Mohammedan faith.

His request was only responded to by a volley. And for Zelimkhan that was the end.

FATAL APARTMENT.

Sudden Death Follows Occupancy of a Room in Paris Hotel and It Is Walled Up.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—An amazing fate dogs the footsteps of any guest who occupies a certain room in one of the best-known Paris hotels. The grim business began about a year ago when a man and a woman were found lying dead—each shot through the heart—side by side on the bed of a room in this hotel. For three months the death chamber remained closed. Then, when the tragedy was beginning to be forgotten, the room was entirely renovated and once more figured in the hotel lists.

An old gentleman engaged it one morning. That evening, after leaving his room, he made some mistake in entering the lift, and was crushed to death. Again the room was closed, this time for six months.

The servants hushed their voices and hurried their footsteps as they passed it. About a month ago the room was again occupied—this time by a vigorous man in the prime of life. In the morning following his arrival at the hotel the waiter who brought up his coffee received no answer to his knock. Pale and trembling—for he knew the story of the room—he ran down to tell the manager. The door was forced. The occupant of the room was found dead in bed. He had succumbed during the night to an embolism.

The death room has now been walled up.

NOTES BELIEF IN EDUCATION.

AMERICANS' FAITH IN IT IMPRESSES FRENCHMAN.

Emile Boutroux, the Academician, Doubts the Success of the Graduate College at Princeton to Create a True Center of Culture in the United States.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Emile Boutroux, the French academician, was particularly impressed during his recent trip in the United States by the tremendous faith in the power of education which he everywhere encountered. In this connection he says:

"Nowhere else in the world is more faith placed in the powers of instruction and moral education, to increase the capacity, the wisdom and the moral qualities of man.

"I was greatly touched," he continues, "by the attention paid me by American students and by their confiding amiability, and it was not difficult for me to believe their masters when I was told of the spirit of duty and morality which prevailed among them. The prayers with which the universities are opened each morning are not merely a vain formality. Religion in America is above all a question of mental seriousness which may be expressed in the well-known verses of Emerson:

"'When duty whispers low, thou must,
The youth replies: I can.'"

M. Boutroux adds a note of warning in reference to the new Princeton Graduate College, of which one of the principal ideas is, he says, to create a center of culture on American soil which will supply at home the equivalent of the culture which students in the past used to come to the Old World to seek.

"It is thought that by inviting the masters of European universities to lecture in America, the same result will be obtained as by sending American students to Europe," he says, and then goes on to express doubt as to the outcome for the reason that Princeton will, of necessity, be without that intangible but potent influence of past associations, variously described as environment, atmosphere, etc., etc.

WOULD CURTAIL SPEECHES.

Charles Beauquier, Deputy of Doubs, proposes to introduce a motion in the French chamber, which, if adopted, will revolutionize parliamentary procedure.

He wishes that in every discussion of a law, project or resolution, only four speakers shall be heard, one in its favor, one against it, the minister or governmental commissioner whom it concerns, and the reporter of the project.

The members who are to speak are to be delegated by the commission before which the proposal has been sent for examination and by the various parliamentary groups. The latter are to come to an agreement with the commission as to the speakers. In case such an agreement cannot be reached, the commission shall be competent to delegate the three necessary speakers.

ADVENTURES OF SANTA CLAUS.

"It is time to pay a visit to the natives on Broadway,
And I'll take," he cried, "some candy, and a Noah's ark or two;
That's the stuff that always tickled all the kids I ever knew."
So the saint in fur and whiskers reached the streets of gay New York,
And decided he was hungry, and would ply a knife and fork,
So he dropped into a mission, where he ate and drank his fill,
And was told that it was Christmas, so there wasn't any bill.

Next he got the auto fever, and he found himself in jail,
And he had to sell his reindeer for the money for his bail.
He collided with a trolley, and went skating on his face,
And he took a hand at poker, but he never held an ace;
And he tried a flight at Hempstead, but the aeroplane went wrong,
And it dropped him in the middle of a scared theater throng.
But he found the Hudson River rolling briskly o'er the spot.

Then he joined a crowd that swept him in a big department store,
Where the toys were of a pattern he had never seen before.
And he knew the wooly poodles, and the soldiers made of tin,
And the tops he felt so certain all the boys would love to spin,
By Manhattan's pampered youngsters would be viewed with lofty scorn,
And be promptly relegated to the ash cans Christmas morn,
For they wanted perfect copies of each scientific fad,
So he dumped his pack of playthings in the bay with feelings sad.

But what he saw induced him to let fall a tear of joy;
Rows of trees before him glittered, full of gifts for girl and boy,
Stacks of turkeys, pies and puddings, waited ready for the feast.
"There's enough to feed an army," said old Santa, "at the least."
And he asked a big policeman who was tramping to and fro,
Where the heaps of Christmas goodies and the trees were meant to go.
"To the poor folks," said the bluecoat, "from the rich who like to play Santa Claus to all the city every year on Christmas Day."

Strolling up and down, delighted, everywhere he saw the shops
Full of caps and coats and mittens, sleds and skates and lollipops,
Every child though high or humble, from the slums to Riverside,
Had a present in its stocking, and a share of Christmas-tide.
"Ho!" cried Santa Claus, "Manhattan has a thousand of my name,
Any one of which can beat me at the good old Christmas game,
So I'm going back to Greenland by the icy northern sea,
For these open-handed people have no longer need of me."

Had a Bad Heart.

[New York Tribune:] A noted physician the other day was called upon to examine the heart action of a college classmate's son.

"You've got tobacco heart, I guess," said the physician.

"But, doctor, I haven't"—protested the young man.

"Go 'way now; I'm busy.'"

Later on the father met the physician and told him that his boy hadn't smoked for four years.

"Well, then," said the physician, "the boy must be in love."

repertoire to the Hippodrome, and another musical offering of decided merit will be contributed by Nardini, reputed to be the world's greatest feminine accordionist.

Three photoplays of Hippodrome quality will complete this ten-feature bill which, on paper at least, has all the earmarks of a real show.

Hamburger's Arrow.

This house shows a programme of quality for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday on the fifth floor of the Hamburger building. A two-reel Vitagraph "Beauty Unadorned" is a special feature by Sidney Drew. Shorn of their false hair, wigs, teeth and a few other things two adventurers come to grief. Their innocent victims are disillusioned and resolve to get married.

A Pathe cartoon film, "Col. Heeza Liar in Africa," by J. R. Bray, is one of a series which has taken the country by storm. Col. Liar penetrates the desert and meets with surprising adventures. He hatches an ostrich egg, is saved from a hungry bear by a sleeping porcupine, is chased by an angry tiger which he escapes in a novel way, overcomes another bear by getting him drunk, is rescued by a frolicsome monkey and finally leaves the desert triumphant, having killed a regular menagerie all at one shot. On the same reel is "Glimpses of Pond Life" educational views of minute crustacea which are prevalent in stagnant ponds. An idea of their size and how they are magnified is obtained from the fact that their eyes are no larger than the point of a needle.

Clune's.

At Clune's Broadway Theater next week for the first three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be shown a picture unusually appropriate for the week "The First Christmas," a beautiful heart interest drama of the greatest of all holidays. It was made by the Edison Company and the stellar actors of that organization took part in its production.

It will be shown in conjunction with a new high-class bill of motion pictures, including comedy, drama, scenic and educational films, as well as a new Pathe weekly showing the happenings of the week past in animated motion photographs, and more Mexican war views of fighting will be shown. A special feature of these is the showing of the complete work-up of the Red Cross corps.

Miller's.

The programme at Miller's Ninth and Main-Street Theater for today and tonight includes an absorbing two-reel comedy drama of the Northwest called "Cynthy," and a mystery drama with Weber and Smalley entitled "The Haunted Bride" besides two good comedy pictures. The special added attraction is one of the famous Kinemacolor subjects of colored pictures which are only shown at this beautiful playhouse.

These pictures are projected by a specially constructed machine and are shown on that wonderful plate-glass mirror screen and it alone will be worth going a long ways to see. Though these pictures were secured at a big extra expense the management wishes to impress upon all that there will be no advance in prices and in order to give all a chance to view these subjects they have arranged to make but two changes of programme a week, on Monday and Thursday.

A musical programme of excellence is always a feature at Millers, including as it does, solos by the popular soprano, Betty Stokes.

Mantell.

There is today on the stage no actor with a repertoire more extensive than that possessed by Robert B. Mantell. It is doubtful, indeed, if there has ever been another actor whose repertoire covered a range so vast or who had ready for instant recollection so many parts at his command, including tragedy, comedy and drama, other than that of the classics and Shakespeare.

Mr. Mantell's repertoire for the Majestic Theater beginning on Monday, December 29, is as follows:

Monday night, December 29, "King John;" Tuesday night, December 30, "Hamlet;" Wednesday matinee, "The Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday night, "Macbeth;" Thursday, January 1, "King Lear;" Friday night, January 2, "King John;" Saturday matinee, "King John;" Saturday night, "Richard III."

Gaby Coming.

Gaby Deslys will pay her first visit to Los Angeles on Monday, December 29, when she comes to the Auditorium for an engagement of three nights. This is Gaby's first American tour, and she is being accompanied by the big Winter Garden Company, which includes, in addition to Gaby, a big chorus and a special orchestra, and such well-known people as Harry Pilcer, Joseph W. Herbert, Forrest Huff, Fritzi von Busing, Edgar Atchison-Ely, Louise Meyers, Arthur Lipsen, Hattie Kneitel, Percy Lyndall and others. Gaby, of course, is too well known to require detailed explanation here; suffice it to say, she is the highest-priced artist in the world today. For example, it is estimated that her tour of the Pacific Coast, which will continue for less than ten weeks, will net her over $51,000.

She travels in state on a special train, and is accompanied by a personal retinue which would do credit to a queen. To Los Angeles she will bring her famous collection of gems, and over 150 complete changes of costumes, and to those who want to know it should be said the vehicle is entitled "The Little Parisienne," a modern three-act musical comedy. In this Gaby plays the leading feminine role, and the play is not as some suppose a vaudeville show but is a straight-way musical play.

Auditorium.

At last the wishes of fully 50 per cent. of the Los Angeles theater-going people will come true when the "Mission Play," which for two years has held sway in its own playhouse at San Gabriel, will be moved in its entirety to the spacious stage of the Auditorium, the big Fifth-street playhouse. Thousands have wished to make their pilgrimmage to this wonderful story of the founding of the early missions, but it is a long trip from work, office or store in the heart of Los Angeles to the home in the southwestern suburb or Hollywood or Vernon, a hustle and bustle for dinner, then the dressing for the play, the journey to a Main-street connection, and an interurban car, only probably to reach the San Gabriel playhouse with the first act half finished, and that is why but 10 per cent. of the inhabitants of Los Angeles have witnessed the interesting story of the founding of the early California missions.

There is something about this story that John Stephen McGroarty has woven around those who heard our early history, that is compelling. It is hardly a play; it is more a pageant, and those who accept it for what it frankly is, a picture of three periods in the history of the California missions, cannot fail to be interested in the noble work. No spectator can help being touched by the profound sincerity behind the work. There is a charm and an earnestness and a simplicity that is appealing. We talk of our fiestas, and the beauty and color of our yearly carnivals, but in the second act of this play, with the the 200 people that the Auditorium stage will admit, a fiesta of dancing, singing and early Spanish costumes, will be given that will rival all of the outdoor pageantry.

It is a play without a heroine, without the romances of the sexes; no problem will be presented, and still it is a story that thrills of its own unbroken interest. It is history in the making, as side by side the cross and sword work together, and incongruous combination, but not unfamiliar either in Europe or America. The limited engagement will open on January 1, 1914, and the mission bells will ring in with their sweetest strains the story of the mission fathers within the precincts of the Auditorium walls.

Tally's Broadway.

Jack London's "Sea Wolf," one of the most remarkable motion-picture productions of the year, was productive of such wonderful business at Tally's Broadway Theater the past week that Mr. Tally was compelled to announce a second week's showing commencing tomorrow matinee.

Woodley Theater.

It has been definitely announced that Manager Woodley's wonderful invention whereby the giant multiple organ can be played from the keyboard of the Steinway Grand piano, in conjunction with the piano, harp, brass, humanitone, etc., will be given its first public try-out today, in connection with an entire new change of pictures.

Perc Garratt has been practicing with the new device and finds that he can do as much from the piano as at the organ itself, and as it enables the use of the piano at the same time, too, the great organist is likely to forsake the organ keys altogether.

A splendid mutual programme has been provided, which will form an admirable supplement to the interest taken in the wonderful organ music, some of the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday features being pronounced the best which have ever graced a mutual programme.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Dear Bootle: Your letter from Oregon awaited us when we returned from Russia. We hope you mean to be back in Los Angeles for Christmas. We do. This is our very last week, and we shall bid a long farewell to all our greatness all too soon now. We have booked our passage on the Coronia and are torn between our reluctance to leave the scene of our social triumphs and our urgent desire to get back and tell everybody at home all about it.

Directly we returned from that short but thrilling visit to Petersburg we found ever so many fascinating invitations awaiting us and have been tortuously crowding in as many as we possibly could. Often three and four a day! One of the jolliest affairs was the tea party at Sir Thomas Lipton's. He certainly is a darling—and still a bachelor. Full of humorous anecdotes and one of the easiest hosts. He has the art of unaffected entertaining down to a science. His tea parties are quite a feature and one meets all the most interesting people in London at his cosy bachelor at-homes. The Clancartys were there that day. Lady Clancarty is the second countess, you know, the first having been the famous and beautiful Belle Bilton, who graduated from stage to peerage and played both roles with such distinction that society with a big "S" took her into its innermost sanctums. She died about four years ago, and the Earl, still handsome and debonair, married his present countess, who is only 24 and pretty enough to wear the present fashions in their most pronounced entirety and still look a dream. Her eldest stepson is nearly 22 and is in Canada, while the second son, aged 17, is soon leaving for Rhodesia. Her own baby is 2 years old and they are immensely proud of him.

We are going to their place, Garbally Court, on Friday, and are looking forward to it immensely. We are so interested in them, for, although there is twenty-five years' difference in their ages, they seem supremely happy.

We teased Sir Thomas shamefully and I asked him how many proposals he had had. He tried to look deprecating, but Lady Clancarty declared that she knew of one—a rich widow—whose name she promptly divulged. From the way Sir Thomas blushed we knew it must be true, although he gallantly repudiated it, of course. I told him I should probably be the next and asked him if he liked debutantes. Of course, he does. So we have made a really truly "date" for 1915, when he comes to the Pacific Coast for the exposition yacht race. That gives me over a year for serious self-communion—and a little practice. In the meantime I am the very first person to receive one of his darling gold-and-enamel emblems of his yacht now building, which is to be called the "Four-Leaved Shamrock" and bears a four-leaved clover in the center of its flag. He has them made in the form of a brooch as souvenirs for his very special lady friends. Now I shall be consumed with curiosity to know who gets the others. But in any case they won't get them until September, when the race is held.

We are so distrait because we shall have to leave before the picture ball, which is to be held at the Albert Hall two weeks hence. Everywhere we go gorgeous dresses are being prepared for it—and, really, we must have a picture ball in Los Angeles. Everyone has to represent a famous picture. Lady Diana Manners, who is one of the high-spirited young ladies who help to keep the newspapers in piquant society paragraphs, is going as a Greek goddess copied from a Venetian picture, and it is going to be diverting to see her and various Gainsborough, Romney, Morland, Greuze and Michaelangelo beauties tripping the fantastic tango.

For, of course, everyone will tango. Tang and the world tangs with you, waltz and you waltz alone in England just now. Tango teas, dinners and suppers are the sole form of entertainment. There are a bewildering number of steps to the tango—most of them quite proper—but it is emphatically a jolly dance and makes for merriment. One old judge amused us the other day by explaining what a godsend such dances were to a stodgy nation like England—the best antidote they could have.

We went to one very smart tango tea at Prince's restaurant, which is a strawberry pink salon where they cater exclusively for the haute monde doree, meaning the frisky aristocratic rich. Many of the steps were quite slow and decorous a la minuet, gradually evolving into something more energetic as a finale—altogether a dance for which one would prefer to choose one's partner with exquisite care. We came across the L. M.'s of San Francisco there. Why will dear Mrs. M. have her tailored suits made to fit so perfectly? A perfect fit is the cruelest thing her tailor could give her, with her figure. Another well-known American was present—the New York Mrs. S. F.—dressed like a duchess. So we knew she wasn't one because all the duchesses here dress in tweed and blue serge and don't look in the least like duchesses. Which is a little confusing at first.

But that only applies to the daytime affairs. In the evening the dresses are elaborate and beautiful—and quite as daring as anything we must not wear at the Country Club. One head-dress took my fancy at the Fulwell's ball the other evening—a perfect black ostrich feather about twelve inches long, with the stem encrusted in diamonds, fastened in the center of the forehead and standing almost bolt upright. A diamond band around the temples kept it in place! Lady Dorothy wore it with a very slim black chiffon gown most cleverly draped and apparently only lined with two thicknesses of white chiffon and no petticoats! Black satin shoes with diamond buckles and a diamond ornament at the waist completed the striking picture. Of course, she is very pretty, with one of those soulful sort of faces that can do so much damage.

By the way, they are wearing black shoes for evening wear with every color gown here, even the white dresses, and we have seen more than one jeweled anklet worn on the same side as the slit. They certainly look pretty, but when I fixed one up and rather fancied myself the mater sent me up to take it off.

Oh, I could rattle on for hours, Bootie, dear, but we have a party on tonight and I must away.

Your ever affectionate

The Hostess of "Whitehall."

Mrs. Charles Wellington Rand and her daughter, Miss Rand, of "Whitehall," Wilshire boulevard, who have [illegible] in Chicago, New York and Boston for the past six weeks, returned on Friday, and are again in their enjoyable Los Angeles home. The journey was one combining business and pleasure, and was exceptionally satisfactory in its outcome. [illegible] return in fine health and spirits, prepared for a joyous California winter.

Two Debutantes.

Mrs. West Hughes's party Friday was a charming affair, the honored guests being Miss Louise Hunt and Miss Constance Byrne, two young buds of this season. Pink Killarneys graced the center of the table and corsage bouquets of Cecile Bruners and lily of the valley marked places for Miss Daphne Drake, Miss Ruth Winslow, Miss Helen Ives and Miss Mary Hughes.

Miss Anderson's Plans.

The first week of the new year will bring the fashionable wedding of Miss Ruth Anderson, daughter of Mrs. M. J. Anderson of the Beverly Hills Hotel, and M. Clarence Mattinson of Gibson City, Ill., which will be held at the picturesque hotel January 6, in the presence of many guests.

The young people, who are among the most popular of the younger set, have chosen for their bridal party Miss Blanche Kellie of Hollywood, who will serve as maid of honor, and the Misses Elizabeth Wood, Dorothy Mills of Colorado, Katherine Walsh of Iowa and Florence Clark, who will do honors of bridesmaids. Little Virginie and Billie Lyon are to assist as flower bearers, and J. B. Carlock will be best man.

Miss Anderson was educated at Marlborough, later having finished at Mrs. Scoville's school in New York City, while the groom-to-be, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Mattinson of Gibson City, is a graduate of the Northwestern Law School and is now associated with the First National Bank of Gibson City, of which his father is president.

Mr. Mattinson and his bride will enjoy a pleasant honeymoon trip and after March 15 will be at home to their friends at Gibson City.

Mrs. Marble Hostess.

Notable among affairs of Friday was the large reception given by Mrs. William Carey Marble of No. 1970 Morgan place, who entertained 250 guests in honor of her aunt, Mrs. A. W. Dickinson, of Easton, Pa. Holly berries and red roses formed pretty holiday decorations throughout the home. Mrs. Marble, attired in a handsome creation of pale pink silk brocade with drapes of blue tulle edged with mink, and Mrs. Dickinson in white satin brocade with panniers of black chiffon, were assisted by Mrs. J. M. C. Marble, Mrs. John E. Marble of Pasadena, Mrs. Earle Y. Boothe, Mrs. Charles Barrington, Mrs. Thomas Lee, Mrs. Harry Logan, Mrs. Fowler Shankland, Mrs. Curtis Williams, Mrs. J. R. Pinkham, Mrs. Roy Koster, Mrs. Edward Johnson, Miss Edith Maurice, Miss Marble and Miss Helen Newlin.

Yesterday's Breakfast.

An informal breakfast yesterday was presided over by Mrs. Lawrence Rowland Sevier, who entertained her guests at her home, No. 1014 Park View avenue. Deep pink roses were used with other rose-tint appointments, and the table presented a pretty picture. There were covers for Mrs. Charles Goldthwaite, Mrs. Dwight Hart, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mrs. Charles Noyes and Mrs. Marble Parsons.

Bridge Tea.

Mrs. William Howe Kennedy was a charming hostess recently when she entertained with an elaborately-appointed bridge-tea party at her beautiful residence on Serrano avenue. The entire home was done in a pink scheme, the table bearing an imported basket filled with Cecile Bruners and violets. Pink-shaded candelabra and other dainties in the same shades completed the artistic arrangement. This pleasant afternoon function was planned as a courtesy to Mrs. Herbert S. Collins, who is a winter guest at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena. Mrs. William Henry Akin assisted the hostess in entertaining at the party, which is the first of a series.

Have Returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hight, the latter formerly Miss Maree Gillespie, have returned from their honeymoon spent in the north and are at home to their friends at the Alexander in Long Beach. The bride, who is a daughter of Mrs. M. E. Gillespie of this city, is a favorite among her friends.

At Annandale.

The dinner-dance last evening at Annandale was a delightful success and the clubrooms never looked prettier. Christmas bells, holly and ferns were arranged in artistic profusion both about the rooms and on the tables. Dr. and Mrs. West Hughes of this city were host and hostess at one of the tables, which seated Dr. and Mrs. Walter Lindley, Dr. and Mrs. Robert P. McReynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst and Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Phillips. At another table presided over by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. King there were name cards for Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hoak, Miss Ethelyn Walker and Harry M. Jack. Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Auten had at their table Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Post, Mrs. Hill and Mr. Shaw.

Mrs. Foster Hostess.

Mrs. Jack Foster of West Twenty-eighth street was a dansant hostess yesterday afternoon when she complimented Miss Helen Jones, charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carlos Jones, who was introduced a fortnight ago at a large party. Miss Louise Hunt, who will make her debut this month, was asked as a special guest, and others present were Miss Juliet Boileau, Miss Sally McFarland, Miss Katherine Chichester, Miss Katherine Johnson, Miss Constance Byrne, Miss Aileen McCarthy, Miss Albertine Pendleton, Miss Amy Bush, Morgan Adams, John Lake Garner, Jr., Wells Morris, Maynard McFie, Paul Grimm, Paul Herron, James Horan, John Rankin, Craig McClure, A. Salisbury, Nat Head and William E. Reed.

Visitor Honored.

Miss Marjorie Metcalf, who has been the house guest of Mrs. Jack McNeil at her residence, No. 1822 Roosevelt street, will leave today for her home in Detroit. Miss Metcalf has been in Los Angeles three months, during which time she has been entertained at many elaborate parties. One of the recent affairs was the informal card party given Wednesday by her hostess, who also entertained with a card matinee yesterday. Prizes were won by Mrs. R. S. Waglinn of Whittier, Mrs. Harry D. Hazard and Miss Metcalf. The decorations were in keeping with the holiday season, a Christmas tree occupying one corner of the large living-room.

Home Wedding.

A wedding of interest took place Friday evening, December 5, at the home of the bride's mother, when Miss Irma D. Schramm was united in marriage with Robert Alexander Pulfer, Rev. Merkel officiating. After a motor tour through the State the couple will return to this city, where they will make their home.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bayly, Jr., announce the marriage of their sister, Mrs. Imogene Maure of Chicago, to Barbee S. Hook of this city. The wedding was held December 5 in the East.

From New York.

Ella Carr Patterson of New York and Chicago, who was referred to by Mary Garden as "the Maud Powell of the banjo," has just arrived in this city, and music lovers are rejoicing over the event. She has the distinction of being the only banjo soloist who has ever appeared on the Lyceum platform as a star, and with her company has opened some of the largest lecture courses in America.

Young Hostess.

Smart among affairs of the season was the card party given by Miss Wilhelmina Chancellor at her home on Alta drive Tuesday evening. The rooms were elaborate with choice flowers, the color selection having been made to harmonize with the tapestry and silk hangings on the walls. Hand-painted score cards in pink were used, and corsage bouquets of pale-pink sweet peas were given as favors, the Misses Maxine Chancellor, Madeline Purdon and Marion Ryan having distributed the blossoms from gold baskets. The guests included Mrs. F. Hartman and Dr. Herbert True, who won the prizes, and Miss Wallace, Miss Harvey Wallace, Miss Ruth Scarborough, Miss Alpha MacKnight, Miss Dorothy Trask, Miss Simmons, Miss Eloise Chancellor, Brownfield Wilkerson, C. S. James, Mr. Mull, Mr. Harper, Mrs. Wallace, Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Miller, Mr. Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. Pomeroy and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Linthicum.

Mrs. Woolwine Honored.

Mrs. Woods Rayburn Woolwine of this city, who left a short time ago for the South and East to visit relatives, is now in Memphis, the journey having been made with Miss Martha Woolwine, also of this city. While in the southern city Mrs. Woolwine has been a center of attraction, many lovely affairs having been given in her honor, among them a large reception, presided over by Mrs. John R. Pepper, who also honored Mrs. William Woolwine. Mrs. Pepper's home on Poplar avenue was elaborate with flowers and foliage in honor of the visitors. In the living-room the holiday season was suggested, while in the drawing-room, where the guests were received, white chrysanthemums lent their beauty and grace. The dining-room was especially attractive in pink, and a handsome cluny cloth covered the table, which was centered with a gold basket filled with pink Killarneys.

Miss Metcalf has been in Los Angeles three months, during which time she has been entertained at many elaborate parties. One of the recent affairs was the informal card party given Wednesday by her hostess, who also entertained with a card matinee yesterday. Prizes were won by Mrs. R. S. Waglinn of Whittier, Mrs. Harry D. Hazard and Miss Metcalf. The decorations were in keeping with the holiday season, a Christmas tree occupying one corner of the large living-room.

Home Wedding.

A wedding of interest took place Friday evening, December 5, at the home of the bride's mother, when Miss Irma D. Schramm was united in marriage with Robert Alexander Pulfer, Rev. Merkel officiating. After a motor tour through the State the couple will return to this city, where they will make their home.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bayly, Jr., announce the marriage of their sister, Mrs. Imogene Maure of Chicago, to Barbee S. Hook of this city. The wedding was held December 5 in the East.

From New York.

Ella Carr Patterson of New York and Chicago, who was referred to by Mary Garden as "the Maud Powell of the banjo," has just arrived in this city, and music lovers are rejoicing over the event. She has the distinction of being the only banjo soloist who has ever appeared on the Lyceum platform as a star, and with her company has opened some of the largest lecture courses in America.

Young Hostess.

Smart among affairs of the season was the card party given by Miss Wilhelmina Chancellor at her home on Alta drive Tuesday evening. The rooms were elaborate with choice flowers, the color selection having been made to harmonize with the tapestry and silk hangings on the walls. Hand-painted score cards in pink were used, and corsage bouquets of pale-pink sweet peas were given as favors, the Misses Maxine Chancellor, Madeline Purdon and Marion Ryan having distributed the blossoms from gold baskets. The guests included Mrs. F. Hartman and Dr. Herbert True, who won the prizes, and Miss Wallace, Miss Harvey Wallace, Miss Ruth Scarborough, Miss Alpha MacKnight, Miss Dorothy Trask, Miss Simmons, Miss Eloise Chancellor, Brownfield Wilkerson, C. S. James, Mr. Mull, Mr. Harper, Mrs. Wallace, Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Miller, Mr. Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. Pomeroy and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Linthicum.

Mrs. Woolwine Honored.

Mrs. Woods Rayburn Woolwine of this city, who left a short time ago for the South and East to visit relatives, is now in Memphis, the journey having been made with Miss Martha Woolwine, also of this city. While in the southern city Mrs. Woolwine has been a center of attraction, many lovely affairs having been given in her honor, among them a large reception, presided over by Mrs. John R. Pepper, who also honored Mrs. William Woolwine. Mrs. Pepper's home on Poplar avenue was elaborate with flowers and foliage in honor of the visitors. In the living-room the holiday season was suggested, while in the drawing-room, where the guests were received, white chrysanthemums lent their beauty and grace. The dining-room was especially attractive in pink, and a handsome cluny cloth covered the table, which was centered with a gold basket filled with pink Killarneys.

Mrs. Bostwick Home.

The many friends of Mrs. M. A. Bostwick of No. 422 West Adams street will be pleased to learn of her return from a fifteen months' tour of the world. This is the second time Mrs. Bostwick has circled the globe, her first trip having consumed about three years.

Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross T. Hickcox entertained last week with a dinner party, honoring Capt. and Mrs. Louis Chappelear. There were covers for Mrs. M. H. Skinner, Col. Story, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Kress and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Weller.

For Mrs. Piana.

A violet and pink luncheon was the pleasure provided last week by Mrs. A. R. Smith, when she entertained Mrs. Isabel Curl Piana. The repast was enjoyed by Mrs. James L. Preston of Glendora, Mrs. D. I. Drown of Van Nuys, Mrs. Jack Warren of Riverside, Mrs. Vernon Withinger, Mrs. J. J. Givon and Miss Helen K. Smith. Following the luncheon a reception was given, and assisting ladies were Mrs. Drown, Miss Ruth Cunningham, Mrs. Frank Murray, Mrs. Holmes Ellis and Miss Ethel McDonald. Violets and Cecile Bruners were attractively arranged in the dining-room, while the living-room was gay with carnations and palms.

To Receive.

Miss Lucille Willa Siegel, the popular young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nate Siegel of No. 980 Gramercy drive, whose betrothal to Dr. James Steinberg, formerly of New York, was announced last week, will be at home to her friends Tuesday afternoons during this month and January.

Mrs. J. Earl Heber of West Ninth street had as guests last week members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club, whom she entertained with a luncheon at the Vanity Fair Tearoom.

Bridge Tea.

One of the most delightfully appointed affairs of the season was the large bridge tea with which Mrs. Frank B. Harbert and Mrs. Edward S. Butterworth entertained yesterday at the home of the former, No. 1400 Gramercy place. Madam Chatney, Cecile Bruner and white Cherokee roses and ferns were combined with pink tulle ribbon in the development of an exquisite color scheme. Daylight was excluded from the rooms and the lights were shaded in pink. Mrs. Harbert, gowned in an attractive white Chinese-embroidered crepe, and Mrs. Butterworth, dainty in a shell pink charmeuse, was assisted by the nieces of Mrs. Harbert, Miss Alice Prince and Miss Gertrude Flood.

Following the games of auction, handsome prizes were awarded to Mrs. Tom Fox and Mrs. J. C. Cribb, and an elaborate tea was served. While the tables were being arranged, the guests were entertained by vocal selections from Mrs. Foster Price and readings from Mrs. Lionel Redpath. Place favors were pink baskets adorned with tiny roses and filled with salted almonds, and the ices, cakes and candies carried out the same color scheme. Place and score cards were adorned with daintily-gowned girls.

Those enjoying the hospitality of the afternoon were: Mrs. J. H. Davidson, Mrs. T. H. Reynolds, Mrs. Joseph Mesmer, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. George L. Crenshaw, Mrs. Joseph Carlyle Wilson, Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. G. L. Simpson, Mrs. Edward F. King, Mrs. William Read, Mrs. L. G. Hull, Mrs. George Prince, Mrs. M. H. The meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Marengo-avenue school was held in the school building on Tuesday afternoon, when a large number of members and their friends enjoyed the excellent programme planned. She contended that many of the diseases which most children have are unnecessary.

The members of the Die Schwalbe Club, which is famous in Alhambra circles for its delightful and elaborate affairs, are making their plans for a New Year's party at their clubhouse. Many invitations will be issued, and it promises to be one of the most important events of the holiday week.

The Alhambra Round Table met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Fleming on West Grand avenue on Friday afternoon with an unusually large attendance. A most interesting programme was given by Miss Jennie Lane and Mrs. Watson with the assistance of Mrs. Fleming, who is a talented musician at the piano. The history and compositions of the romantic composers—Weber, Schumann, Schubert, Mendelssohn and Chopin—were the study for the afternoon. Miss Lane read a paper on Chopin, his mazurkas, nocturnes, polonaises and etudes and what inspired him to write them. Mrs. Fleming interpreted each composer's work, giving a most charming programme in itself, including Mendelssohn's "Hunting Song," Schumann's "Traumerei," Schubert's "Carnival Pranks" and "Serenade" and Chopin's "Mazurka in B Flat" and "C Sharp Minor Polonaise." Sierra Madre.

ON TUESDAY evening the ladies of the Eastern Star entertained with a most delightful banquet at the Woman's Club house, the guests being the members of the Masonic Lodge. The installation of new officers took place and the decorations were most effective. Poinsettias were used on the tables and a red and green color scheme was carried throughout. Mrs. Sauth of Los Angeles sang and was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Patterson of Hollywood. W. E. Walker was toastmaster for the evening, while R. A. Frazier of Ocean Park was installing officer. Mrs. Alice Staples, who is the Matron for the coming year, presented Mr. Frazier with a book and Mrs. Mitchell of Los Angeles a bouquet of roses. Mrs. W. E. Walker was presented with a Past Matron's pin and Mr. Stevens with a Past Patron's pin.

Miss Mildred Sherman entertained the members of the Eleven and One Club with a slumber party at her home Saturday and Sunday. The guests assembled Saturday evening and remained until Sunday evening. Sunday afternoon the club and their friends went by motor to the old San Gabriel Mill near Oak Knoll. This is the club's annual affair, and a very delightful time was spent by those present, who were the Misses Ruth Sparks, Anna Janson, Avis Preston, Mertie Preston, Hilda Caley, Maybelle Caley, Verna Trible and Marion Decker.

By far the largest audience of the club year gathered together on Monday afternoon at the Woman's Club house to hear a programme of old-time songs presented by Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst, assisted by Mrs. Abbie Munroe, accompanist; Miss Hazel Hill, pianist; Miss Martha Hyde, vocalist, and Miss Helen Ross, whistler. Mrs. Hawxhurst sang a number of songs of our mother' time in costume, which were heirlooms of her family and friends, and gave an entertaining talk on the songs and their composers. After the programme tea was served in the dining-room by Mesdames Osgood and Kelly.

A jolly party gathered together one evening last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. Gay and spent the evening with cards. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Beard, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Yerxa.

The Modern Priscillas and a few friends were entertained on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Gertrude Cook. An enjoyable musical programme was rendered by Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst, Mrs. Donald Ashmore, Mrs. C. B. Green of Pasadena and the Misses Hazel Hill and Munroe. Later in the afternoon refreshments were served and about thirty-six were present.

Glendale.

ONE of the leading society events of the week was the fancy dress party given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hutton Monday evening at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pirtle on Glendale Heights. Among the costumes present were Indians, Spanish cavaliers and dancers, clowns, darkies, Dutch frauleins and pretty flower maidens. Prizes were awarded for the most originally-dressed character. The principal diversion of the evening was dancing. At shortly after the midnight hour the company sang, "Auld Lang Syne," and departed for their homes. The Los Angeles guests included Dr. and Mrs. Harden, Dr. and Mrs. Voorhees, Dr. and Mrs. Montague, Dr. and Mrs. Homan, Mr. and Mrs. Schweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Wheat, Mrs. Hampton Hutton, Miss Hutton, Mrs. Voorhees, Sr., Dr. Charles McGowan. The Glendale guests included Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Miss Boswell, Mrs. Gibbs, Miss Morris, Mr. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Pirtle and Mrs. Owen.

The Monday Afternoon Club of this city was a guest this week of Mrs. I. N. Hall and her two daughters, Mrs. J. T. Anderson and Miss Belle Hall, at their home, No. 124 North Glendale avenue. The affair was in the form of a Christmas Kensington and for this event the rooms of this home were abloom with dozens of pink and white roses and considerable greenery. A short musical programme was given by various members of the club, this being followed by Christmas stories told in an entertaining way. The refreshments which concluded the activities of the afternoon were also suggestive of Christmas.

Rev. and Mrs. George Eley have for the past week or so been the recipients of many social attentions in the form of dinners, parties, etc., the affairs being given to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. These social affairs were given by both Glendale and Los Angeles friends and relatives and prove the popularity of this aged couple.

A prominent society event was the marriage of Miss Evelyn Ryan, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan of No. 809 West Fifth street, and William Leo Wheeler, the affair taking place at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, officiating. The romance which culminated in this marriage is of five years standing and the principals are popular young people of this city. Only immediate friends and relatives of the young folks were present. Immediately after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler left for an auto honeymoon of several weeks, after which they will be at home to their many friends at the Monte Vista apartments, No. 1320½ Hawthorne street, this city.

Forty members of Chapter W. P.E.O. of Los Angeles, were entertained recently by Chapter L, of this city, at an all-day meeting held at the home of Mrs. I. N. Hall, No. 124 North Glendale avenue. The decorations were suggestive of Christmas, holly and other greenery being used with beautiful effect in the various rooms. The elaborate luncheon served was a regular English holiday feast, consisting of roast turkey, cranberry jelly, plum pudding, etc., this being served on small tables, each bearing a holly centerpiece. Mrs. William Diffield and Mrs. Pearl Lindsay-Coulsilin of Los Angeles rendered original vocal selections. Mrs. Nat Spencer gave a number of readings, and Mrs. E. L. Younglove gave a review of magazine Christmas stories.

To Get Rid of Wrinkles and Bad Complexions

(From Beauty's Mirror.)

It is more important now than during the period of profuse perspiration, to keep the pores clean. All cosmetics clog the pores. In winter this interferes greatly with elimination of waste material, injuring instead of aiding the complexion. Ordinary mercolized wax serves all the purposes of creams, powders and rouges, giving far better results. It actually peels off an offensive skin, at the same time unclogging the pores. Minute particles of scarf skin come off day by day, causing not the least pain or discomfort. Gradually the healthy, younger skin beneath peeps out, and in less than a fortnight you have a lovelier complexion than you ever dreamed of acquiring. Mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is spread on nightly like cold cream and washed off mornings. One ounce usually suffices.

For removing wrinkles, without stopping the pores with pasty stuff, here's a never-failing formula: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this daily for awhile; every line will vanish completely. Even the first application gives surprising results.—[Advertisement.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

This plan makes a pint of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchial asthma.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pine is one of the oldest and best known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

The prompt results from this mixture have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Omega Oil for Cold in Head and Catarrh

Put a teaspoonful of Omega Oil in a cup of boiling water, then inhale the steam which goes through the passages of the nose and throat. This simple treatment gives quick relief.

A Special Demonstration for Deaf People

To prove conclusively that miracles did not end with Bible times, and that science and electricity are performing more miracles today than ever before, a special demonstration of the remarkable powers of the Turner-Acousticon to make deaf people hear will be conducted by the General Acoustic Company during the holiday season.

All the people of Los Angeles and neighboring cities who are in any way afflicted with deafness are invited to visit the permanent offices of the General Acoustic Company in the Security Building Los Angeles, and have their hearing brought back by the wonderful six-tone "electrical-ear" of the Turner-Acousticon—one of the most remarkable productions of science and electricity ever performed—for one hour free of charge.

At the end of this time each one of the hundreds of people who are expected to accept this invitation will know absolutely that their sense of hearing has been brought back for an hour, at least, and that it can be benefited permanently by the same instrument.

Arrangements have been made to give all visitors special attention during the holiday season. Why be deaf when it isn't necessary? Accept this invitation today. General Acoustic Company, 927 Security Building, Los Angeles.

Owes Her Life to This Lung Medicine

The manufacturers of Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for Throat and Lung affections, regret that all sufferers of these serious troubles do not take the trouble to investigate for themselves what this medicine has accomplished during the past fifteen years in a number of cases. Read this:

Griffith, Lake Co., Ind.

"Gentlemen: About September 10, 1908, my mother-in-law was taken sick with Catarrhal Pneumonia, which developed into Lung Trouble. In January, when Rev. Wm. Berg, of St. Michael's Church, at Schererville, Ind., prepared her for death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alterative, and see if it would not give her some relief. The attending physician declared she had Lung Trouble and was beyond all medical aid. So I immediately had Rev. Wm. Berg to send for a bottle. Practically without hope for recovery, I insisted that she try the Alterative, which she did. I am glad to say that she soon began to improve. Now she works as hard as ever, weighs twenty pounds heavier than she ever did before she took sick, and is in good health."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by The Owl Drug Co., and leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—[Advertisement.

Unnecessary Fat

Mankind was intended to be shapely—not too fat, not too lean, but just the happy medium between the two—symmetry. Any addition to this is unnecessary. There is no reason why the people with double chins, too ample bosoms, too generous waist lines and hip measurements, cannot decrease their weight and become slim without the necessity of dieting, violent exercise, or the danger of becoming wrinkled or flabby. The famous Marmola Prescription (known the world over) has been used successfully by so many stout people that it is hardly possible you have not heard of it. It will be good news to you that this harmless obesity remedy is now sold in tablet form. Each one of the Marmola Prescription Tablets contains an exact dose of the same safe, effective ingredients as the original prescription and, like it, reduces at the uniform rate of a pound or more a day. The cost of slimness is moderate. A 75c case lasts a long time and gives lasting benefit to any overfat man or woman. Get it from your druggist or the Marmola Co., Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Here is an opportunity to lose your unnecessary fat safely at a nominal expense.

One hot day will often spoil hours of work. You can wash a pretty waist most carefully, wear it in the heat, and come home mussed and stained with perspiration. There is nothing as good for removing those stains as Fels-Naptha Soap and cool water. Hot water seems to set the stain, and Fels-Naptha Soap does not need hot water to do its work.

DRUDGE

Fels-Naptha Soap will not fade the pretty colors of your summer clothes. It gives perfect satisfaction with little work. It cleans everything in cool water, with hardly any rubbing and no boiling. It is certainly the soap for the woman who suffers with the heat. It will save her many a weary hour of hard, hot work.

Miss Prettygirl—"Anty Drudge, I want to show you some of the things I am making for my wedding outfit. I am trying to do as much as I can this summer, for Charlie and I want to be married early in the fall, but the work gets so mussed up with my hot hands I am afraid it won't look very fresh."

Anty Drudge—"Never mind that, my dear. I can tell you how to make your pretty things look as fresh and dainty as though they had never known hot weather, or sticky hands. Just wash them out carefully in the Fels-Naptha way with Fels-Naptha Soap, which restores the original daintiness of everything that is washed with it."

MRS. JOHN K. SHIELDS.

Wife of the Senator from Tennessee Is Spending Her First Winter in Washington and Is a Valuable Acquisition to Official Society.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Southern society is paramount at the present juncture of time and one of the most dignified and accomplished of the new hostesses is the wife of Judge John Knight Shields, elected to the upper house while serving as Chief Justice of Tennessee, which has been her home these many years. But she is a Virginian and comes from one of the illustrious families in the Tidewater section of the Old Dominion which have held almost feudal sway during the shifting scenes which followed Sir Walter Raleigh. Mrs. Shields was married to the Senator a little more than a year ago in her home in Knoxville, one of the most hospitable and beautiful homes in the eastern part of the State. By a former marriage to a well-known resident of East Tennessee who died many years ago, she has two children, who will be most welcome additions to the official set. Her only daughter, Miss Jeanette Cowan, is in Boston taking a finishing course at a small, select school, after having spent four years in a well-known scholastic institution in Lausanne, Switzerland. Her son, called for her grandfather, Robert Swepson Cowan, is a junior at Princeton and a familiar figure at the holiday balls at the capital.

"Who can find time for anything except the serious business of living?" said Mrs. Shields, discussing her plans for the winter. "Once upon a time I devoted hours daily to reading. take keen delight in literature, what might be called pure literature, and I conscientiously worked my way through all the staid reviews of good books and then made a choice of the books themselves. History, biography, books of travels, philosophical essays and above all, the books on social and economic conditions appealed to me and took up much of my time. Then I always did enjoy a good piece of fiction and among my friends we had a habit of reading the best of the large output and comparing notes. This ideal existence seems a long time off and I feel gratified now to be able to glance through the headlines of my favorite papers and only on rare occasions can take a genuine leisurely review of the magazines. But I find life in Washington very pleasant, and it will possibly be enhanced when I get my home in a liveable state. I sold my dear old place in Knoxville, but those of my treasures which will fit in the rather circumscribed area of my Washington home I have around me. I have bravely begun my round of calls and am keeping my days at home and by degrees I shall drift into the routine and feel that I have known no other existence. I hear Washington has that hypnotic influence. You just get accustomed to the details, to meeting delightful people, to hearing all they have accomplished in the world's work, and to thinking on a national plane rather than the local. Home pleasures have always appealed to me strongly and I rejoice that it is quite the proper thing in Washington to discuss your home and the various devices for its comfort. I hear all about the market price of food. For the past year, I have enjoyed that beautific state of having a fine farm to serve as market for my family, where fresh eggs, plump fowls, tasteful turkeys, and the best vegetables and fruits are found. When my friends have been solicitous over the price of turkeys, I knew a fine gobbler destined for our Christmas dinner was strutting about the barn yard.

"This farm is 'Clinchdale' in the fertile and beautiful valley over which the tall and majestic peak of the Appalachian range the Clinch mountain towers. Judge Shields has found his principal joy and a substantial addition to his income in this farm which is mainly devoted to stock. It is a wonderful place if only the scenery and splendid ozone are considered. In Switzerland, perhaps, the Clinch mountain would not inspire enthusiasm, for it is less than 2000 feet but to those who love it as a familiar spot in a landscape it seems a veritable Mount McKinley. The farm is covered with that fine and rich herbage which makes parts of Tennessee among the best pasture lands of the world. Many varieties of horses are reared, including Shetland ponies, and cattle and sheep. We have such fertile land in these valleys that I think we all would be wise to give over more land to the raising of food stuffs. To judge by the controversies always progressing, it behooves every ... make future provision for providing his own food.

"As Christmas is approaching, I feel I shall miss many features of our local celebration. We are in a famous section of the country where much history has been written and where the eyes of the world have been focused for many years. Quite near is the Smoky Mountains and the very name brings up memories of stories which stirred the entire nation and of noble women who at once began to labor to improve conditions. Charles Egbert Craddock made the section nationally well known, and before Christine Reid was a pioneer writer followed at varying intervals by John Fox and others of less celebrity. Mary Halleck Foote wrote much of Smoky Mountains and its feuds and another native Tennessean Will Allen Drumgoods.

"This is the phase of the mountain history presented by contemperaneous literature, but we who have known the mountain people long before the mirror of them was held before the world, know how to appreciate their sterling qualities. We were for a long time very sad over the relentless figures constantly printed showing the state of illiteracy in Tennessee much of it among these simple sterling people, who had dwelt in the solemn fastnesses of the peaks since long before the British Red Coats began their predatory war among them. I am glad we can show a more encouraging state of affairs about our whites who live in the mountains. We are lowering that record rapidly. One feature is with the coming of learning our mountaineers are not losing their simple rural virtues. No where on earth can be found such truthful, honest and virtuous people. Contact with the world, introduction to the delights of modern progress, made possible by the rural free delivery, the telephone and the ubiquitious commercial vendor have not affected them in the spiritual sense. Nor has it made them unduly anxious for the material comforts of this world.

"The philosophy of these people is a devout belief in following what is known to be right and then to enjoy life to its fullest extent. They live in the land of the sky, where charm of earth is only equalled by the heavens in their changing colors, where primeval forests still echo the soft song of the wild birds and where nature is a generous and gracious mother. They delight in the affection of their children and they have as well known patriarchal families. If they have a comfortable spot to dwell and their idea of comfort and ours is widely different, plenty of good food and their native woods and streams provide that without much exertion, what matter if they are crowded and not clothed according to the latest mode. After all, what have any of us except a shelter, some food and a few clothes? Every other possession is extraneous, consists only in a knowledge of what we can have. The mountaineers are sound philosophers in a way, though naturally one would wish the children would have better opportunity to make their way in the world. Many are content to go the way of their father, till their few acres and own flocks and eke a living one way or another.

Mrs. Shields has spent much time in foreign travel and it is one of her principal diversions. Her daughter, Miss Jeannette Cowan, after being instructed privately was sent to Lausanne, the lovely little town on Lake Geneva, as famous for its pensions for young ladies, as it is to the traveler for its excellent small hotels. Mrs. Cowan, as she was then, spent much of her time during these four years in the remote parts of Switzerland and she learned much of the people. Her own kindly interest in the mountain people of her adopted State made this sojourn of vast value. She also spent much time in the nearby capitals, Paris, Berlin and the cities of Italy. During the vacation with her son and daughter she visited almost every accessible part of Europe and many parts of the Levant.

Mrs. Shields is the daughter of the late William Edward Dodson, of Mecklenburg, Va. Mr. Dodson lost his wife when his daughter was a mere infant and later removed to East Tennessee where he became a powerful force in his community.

"East Tennessee takes the women question quite seriously," said Mrs. Shields, "and it looks as though votes for women were an accomplished fact. All that is best in our State seem to favor giving the women a vote, my husband, a notably conservative man, is enthusiastically a supporter. I feel as though I should not take much credit in any way though personally I have always indorsed the movement. I have never been an active worker for the cause, as my talents do not all incline towards public service of any sort. I should be glad to see women get their rights and to aid in the reorganization of all that needs it in the scheme of the world. I shall most assuredly vote if I am given the privilege and I shall endeavor to know all that relates to my civic duty."

Judge and Mrs. Shields are generous hosts, especially to visiting Tennesseeans. They entertain the Congressional convention contingent frequently and are keeping up the hospitable traditions so well maintained by the beloved "Bob" Taylor and his charming wife.

KING AWAITS OPERATION

Monarch Who Has Been Ann[illegible] from Time to Time with Oti[illegible] Consults Bordeaux Specialist [illegible] Will Have to Go Under the Knife Again.

MADRID, Nov. 22. — Spain [illegible] heard with some concern that King Alfonso has been for some time suffering from otitis, and has from [illegible] to time consulted Dr. Moore of Bordeaux, about the complaint. Recently his Majesty underwent an operation on the left ear.

Generally the operation is successful in checking the disease, but in the case of Don Alfonso it was not followed by any alleviation of the complaint. A fresh operation, of a somewhat dangerous character, will become necessary.

Meanwhile, things are looking [illegible] brighter for the monarchy of Spain. Of late a number of Republicans [illegible] started to re-examine their [illegible] and among these Republicans [illegible] most eminent is Melquiades Alvarez, ex-professor of law at the University of Oviedo, and one of the finest Spanish orators. In the same [illegible] attitude are Azcarate, ex-leader of [illegible] Republican party; Perez Galdos, [illegible] great novelist; Senor Labra, the [illegible] ister under the old Spanish Republic, Jose Fernando Gonzales and [illegible] personalities of republicanism [illegible] owing to their advanced age, [illegible] them will be unable to lend more than a passive aid to Melquiades Alvarez.

The position taken up by the [illegible] marks a revolution in Spanish practice. In a recent speech, delivered [illegible] a banquet at which 2000 persons from all over Spain were present, he [illegible] offered to rally to the monarchy [illegible] has sketched the programme of [illegible] party, the Reformist party. [illegible] means the break-up of the old [illegible] tem of the two parties, which [illegible] cally shared the spoils of [illegible]. There have always existed in Spanish politics Republicans who have come to terms with the monarchy, but till now, they have always [illegible] ranks of one or other of the dynastic parties.

The appearance of Melquiades Alvarez as a monarchist will be a solution of the political problem for thousands of persons in the middle class. The immense majority of the [illegible] class has kept apart from any political party, because none of them represented its aspirations and [illegible] Liberal and Conservative parties have become converted into bodies with [illegible] other object—publicly admitted [illegible] the frankest cynicism—than the [illegible] protecting their friends and [illegible] and to traffic secretly with [illegible] terests. He who would not [illegible] this policy of corruption was [illegible] matically excluded from the [illegible] parties.

As for the Republican party, [illegible] lost all its prestige after nearly [illegible] a century of vainly [illegible] advent of the revolution, after [illegible] ting up into countless fractions [illegible] the question of leadership, and [illegible] some of its chiefs had sold [illegible] litical power for gold. The [illegible] party — the only one which [illegible] stitution resembles the European [illegible] tical parties—was unable to [illegible] middle class which does not [illegible] dwell indefinitely in opposition.

The party of Melquiades Alvarez [illegible] his work, and his followers will [illegible] be dubbed Melquiadistas, [illegible] quiades's men: but great as the [illegible] cal value of the leader may be, [illegible] is no doubt that the party will [illegible] pose its will on him, and will [illegible] without him. The Reformist party would mean little if it had not incorporated within itself the [illegible] for the last eight or ten years [illegible] drunk deeply at the fountain of European culture. They will be the [illegible] of the new party, Melquiades Alvarez the spokesman, and the Spanish middle class the muscular system which will guide it to victory at the [illegible] box.

"KILL THE RABBITS."

French Peasants Waging a [illegible] less War on the "[illegible]" [illegible] Have Come to be a Pest.

[Special Correspondence of The [illegible]]

PARIS, Nov. 15.—An extraordinary war of rabbit extermination has [illegible] started in France, and particularly at Conde-en-Brier where the [illegible] pest causes serious mischief.

At Conde-en-Brier several [illegible] farmers and peasants have [illegible] great demonstration against the [illegible] tence of all rabbits. Here, [illegible] by twenty mounted gendarmes [illegible] marched in procession through [illegible] streets, headed by a juvenile [illegible] bearer and a brass band. A [illegible] of gigantic stature followed, [illegible] aloft a shield on which was [illegible] dead rabbit.

Then came a troop of [illegible] who, after shouting "Death to [illegible] bits!" intoned a stirring melody—[illegible] Anti-Rabbit March"—the [illegible] lines of which translated are as follows:

Richard, Richard, don't [illegible]
Do your best, and blaze away,
Kill all rabbits you can find,
And you'll sleep at night with [illegible] mind.

M. Couesnon, the local deputy, [illegible] ing solemnly promised to plead the cause of the "Anti-Rabbitists" in the Chamber of Deputies in Paris, [illegible] meeting dispersed amid cheers [illegible] "liberated lands" and cries of "[illegible] to the coney scourge."

OVER TWO MILLION BOOKS.

So Great Is the Regular [illegible] the Congressional Library [illegible] Shelves Will Soon Be Full.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO [illegible]]

WASHINGTON, Dec. [illegible]—[illegible] brary of Congress now [illegible] 2,128,255 books and pamphlets, [illegible] having been added during [illegible] 862 volumes, a record but [illegible] ceeded in the last fifteen years. [illegible] figures form the chief feature of the annual report of Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress.

The report points out that [illegible] has been the increase in [illegible] pamphlets in recent years that [illegible] all the available shelf room will [illegible] been occupied.

During the year 11,000 [illegible] were received in gifts, among [illegible] there were many books of [illegible] pertaining to the earlier history of the country and the diplomacy of the Confederacy.

Much attention in purchases [illegible] was paid to the literature of [illegible] architecture.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Electricity [illegible] soon be so cheap in Berlin that [illegible] poorest families will use it for [illegible] ing purposes in place of petrole[illegible] it will be used even for cooking [illegible] heating because no kind of fuel [illegible] be able to compete with it.

This material reduction in [illegible] is promised by the company wh[illegible] supplies the city with its electri[illegible] current. Some time ago it acqui[illegible] lands with extensive deposits of [illegible] nite or brown coal, at Bitterf[illegible] eighty-three miles south of Berl[illegible] and decided to build a power pl[illegible] there to generate electricity for B[illegible] lin. Upon further exploration, ho[illegible] ever, the deposit of lignite turned [illegible] to be so enormous that the compa[illegible] determined to build a plant lar[illegible] enough to supply all the towns wit[illegible] in a radius of about 100 miles. T[illegible] embraces the greater part of Saxo[illegible] where manufacturing towns are ve[illegible] numerous, and the Thuringian Stat[illegible] as far west as Gotha. The plant w[illegible] go as far as is now possible in tur[illegible] ing coal directly and economical[illegible] into electricity. The lignite, whi[illegible] will be mined largely by machiner[illegible] will be hoisted from the shafts d[illegible] rectly to the boilers by automat[illegible] elevators and fed into the fire box[illegible] automatically. The company think[illegible] that it has an ample supply of li[illegible] nite for nearly a hundred years.

EDITORIAL DISTRUST.

German newspapers are deep[illegible] distrustful of the attitude of th[illegible] United States toward the republics o[illegible] South America. Articles are pub[illegible] lished regularly in which America [illegible] accused of cherishing the idea o[illegible] eventually establishing a protectora[illegible] over all South America, and wit[illegible] the approach of the opening of th[illegible] Panama Canal their appearance [illegible] becoming more frequent. A charac[illegible] teristic article is published by th[illegible] Tageblatt from its correspondent a[illegible] Buenos Ayres. This corresponden[illegible] says:

"South Americans are beginning to perceive that with the opening of the Panama Canal an era of economic and political guardianship by the United States, coupled with the forcing out of Europe, will be inaugurated in all the twenty Latin-American republics. This realization gained such ground lately that it seemed necessary to the farsighted Yankees to send their leading statesmen on speaking tours, in order to dispel the suspicions of their sister republics. As a result the political opponents, Roosevelt and Wilson, have united to defend the interests of the Union and divert South American suspicion upon Europe. Theodore Roosevelt interrupted his triumphal propaganda trip to Buenos Ayres at Rio de Janeiro and sang there an inspired song of praise of the Monroe doctrine, the strict upholding of which, he said, was a vital question for all South American States. True to his soothing purpose, he quietly abandoned the aggressive, imperialistic form of the doctrine as formulated by himself, and said the Union had no thought of territorial conquests, but had in mind only a policy of mutual trust, in the sense of a Pan-American community of interest directed against the Old World. In spite of this, he claimed for the Union the right to 'exercise the international police power' against the South American republics, in other words 'annexation,' in case the South Americans should show themselves incapable of upholding 'civilization.' Speaking further on his policy of leaving Europe out in the cold, Roosevelt declared that the nineteenth century was the century of North American development, and that the twentieth belongs to South America.

"Where Roosevelt confined himself to defending the Union against suspicions of imperialistic purposes, President Wilson proceeded directly to the attack by picturing Europe as the real enemy of South America. His address before the commercial congress at Mobile was really directed at South America. The aims of the Union, he said, had naught to do with pecuniary consideration, but were decided solely by 'the demand of morals.' The principal enemy of these common American morals, however, was foreign or European capital—from which the South American states must emancipate themselves. The Panama Canal, he declared, was the chief bulwark of Pan-America's common interests against this destructive outside influence, and would facilitate the emancipation of the South Americans from the foreign mammon. In this they could depend upon the aid of the Union.

"In Brazil and Argentina the people are just now somewhat under the spell of Roosevelt. There is no lack, however, of important South American personages who see the Panama Canal and the Yankee friendship in their true light."

SIX MILLION LAWSUITS.

Nearly 6,000,000 lawsuits are fought out in the German courts yearly. This number does not include criminal cases; the myriad of proceedings to recover a penalty, nor the quasi-criminal actions brought for insult, etc. The figures mean roughly one lawsuit for every eleven person in the empire, counting women and children, and since each suit involves at least two persons, the proportion is much greater, even allowing for the fact that many persons are chronic litigants, conducting a number of lawsuits at the same time.

These facts are made the basis for an article in a current German publication by a Dortmund jurist. He refers to the situation as a "lawsuit plague," and says it demands more victims yearly than does tuberculosis. The cost, both in time and money, is enormous. A case which goes to the Imperial Supreme Court requires at least three and one-half years for final disposal. Costs in two courts in a suit for an object valued at not more than $12 amount to $20; for an object worth up to $120, the cost is $111. Germans pay to lawyers each year $7,500,000, in actions on account, involving $12,500,000, in cases where the debt is not denied.

Articles are published regularly in which America is accused of cherishing the idea of eventually establishing a protectorate over all South America, and with the approach of the opening of the Panama Canal their appearance is becoming more frequent. A characteristic article is published by the Tageblatt from its correspondent at Buenos Ayres. This correspondent says:

In the so-called collegial courts, that is, courts presided over by two or more judges and corresponding roughly to American courts of record, parties to the suit may not represent themselves, but are compelled to engage attorneys. This is true even in the case of litigant attorneys for themselves.

The author of the article in question cites a case which is, he declares, by no means unusual. One farmer sued another to compel the return of a saw. The trial court decided in favor of the plaintiff, and the case was appealed. In the meantime, the saw was lost. The putative owner thereupon brought action to recover its value. The parties being unable to agree, an expert was called, who testified that the saw was worth 12 cents. The process lasted three years and the costs amounted to more than $25. The writer says it should be impossible to set such ponderous machinery in motion for trivial cases, and commenting on this tendency in the German people, says: "The German Michael will sue the shirt off his back in order to obtain a decree in black and white in the King's name, setting forth his theoretical rights."

MRS. PAGE TO STIR LONDON.

Wife of the American Ambassador Has a Programme of Lively Entertainments for the Season.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Hines Page, the wife of the American Ambassador in London, is expected by her countrywomen in exile in England to wake up things considerably in the British capital. It is known that several dances, or even larger affairs, are to be given at the new United States Embassy in Grosvenor Square during the winter and early spring season, but, in addition to these, it is believed that she will make her personality and influence felt in many unexpected and unique directions.

Mrs. Hines Page made almost her first public appearance since her arrival in London when she opened the Englishwoman's Arts and Handicrafts Exhibition at the Maddox-street Galleries. Lady Brassey introduced the American Ambassadress, who contented herself with reading a few sympathetic remarks.

The stalls were attractively set out with a profusion of pretty and useful articles and some historic odds and ends added considerably to the interest. A cap worn by George IV., a collar that belonged to Charles I., and some belongings of Queen Charlotte were all handed down in one family, to which Queen Victoria had presented them as a girl. A fine piece of early Nankin that was owned by Henri II. of France, and some ancient Delft ware were other objects which attracted attention.

Later, Mrs. Hines Page gave a dance for her daughter, which, however, was quite an informal affair. The Ambassador did not make his appearance until late in the evening, as he had an engagement elsewhere that night. Just a few young people, friends of Miss Page, came in after dinner and a pleasant evening was spent.

EUGENIE HAUNTED.

The Crisis in Mexico Recalls the Days When She Was Empress of the French.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—There is no man or woman in society in England who is watching the crisis in Mexico with so much breathless and poignant interest as former Empress Eugenie, who lives in seclusion at Farnborough and loves so devotedly the Queen of Spain.

So also would the former Empress Charlotte were she not mercifully regardless of everything that has happened since her husband, Maxmilian, was shot by the Mexicans nearly sixty years ago. But Eugenie in her old age of wonderful health remembers everything—her own part in spurring on Napoleon III in this grandiose scheme for establishing an empire in Mexico and the unlucky Maxmilian of Austria's acceptance of the throne. Nor can she forget how two years later the Empress Charlotte came to Paris and begged in vain that Napoleon should send help to Maximilian, whose position had become desperate.

Repulsed in Paris, Charlotte went to Rome and flung herself at the feet of the Pope, imploring his assistance and intervention on behalf of her husband. But, while Europe dallied, Maximilian was captured and shot by the Mexicans as a usurper. The shock overthrew the widowed Empress's reason. That was in 1867, when she was only 27 years old. Today, at the age of 73, she lives in seclusion at the Chateau de Bouchoute, which her brother, the late Leopold of Belgium, despite all his failings, provided for her.

It is a tragedy that for ever haunts the other widowed ex-Empress, for Maximilian's death was the result of Napoleon's desertion of him, and that at a time when Eugenie's influence was greatest in the councils of the Second Empire. Whose lot, one wonders, is the more terrible—that of the imperial religieuse at Farnborough haunted by the thought of her lost throne, her dead husband and son, or that of the mad, forgetting Empress at Chateau de Bouchoute with her only pleasure a childish passion for long white kid gloves and her unceasing questions: "When will Maximilian return? Where is his Imperial Majesty?"

SERVANT PROBLEM ACUTE.

Miss Saunders Complains That Bulgarian Girls Are Sadly in Need of Training.

SOFIA, Nov. 29.—"Life in Bulgaria today is full of difficulties," says Miss Grace Saunders, who has been at work here for two years on behalf of the World's Students' Christian Federation and who previously lived in Canada.

"The homes of the Bulgarians are exceedingly comfortless and tasteless. There is no attempt at daintiness or refinement. Even the maid-servant will open the door in the most uncouth garb and with neither shoes nor stockings on. The domestic servant problem is quite acute here, too. Maids are hired at a fair which is held twice yearly, and they belong to a very rough class.

"The Bulgarians are also somewhat materialistic. I was quite shocked at first at the matter of fact and mercenary fashion in which many of them regarded marriage. But I have seen a needed change for the better during the two years I have lived amongst them. The Bulgarian girl is very reserved. But she is quite responsive if she is taken in the right way. Many of them are attractive in apearance, but they have not the delicate aquiline features of the Roumanian.

"Unfortunately, she is handicapped by lack of training, discipline and tradition. The generation that is now growing up has little in common with the generation that preceded it. The mothers of yesterday have lived narrow, sheltered, domesticated lives, while the daughters are allowed almost unlimited freedom. They come up to a big town, at the age of 17 or so, to begin their university career. To make matters worse, their chief literature is Russian of a not very inspiring kind. Very few know any English at all, which is a pity, as English or American literature would be much healthier for them. There are a great number of Socialists among the students, and socialism in Bulgaria goes hand in hand with an entire absence of religious belief or slightest idea of how to amuse themselves. They seldom even went for walks, although the surroundings of Sofia are really beautiful, until we organized walking excursions. Now I am going to start toboganning and winter games.

"The majority become teachers. There are very few openings for educated women here at present, though, curiously enough, there are quite a number of lady dentists. They go to Russia, Austria and Germany to study and are usually very skillful."

FOXY POLICE PREFECT.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 29.—If M. Heinnion, the new Prefect of Police in Paris, goes on in the way he has begun, he will assuredly become the friend of every woman in France.

Officially, he has two waiting-rooms for visitors. One is for men. It is dark and rather dingy. The bareness of the walls is relieved by a railroad map of France and on the table is a directory.

But the women's waiting-room is furnished with far greater care. In one corner is a superb Louis XV. dressing table provided with all kinds of articles, even rice powder, lip pencils, carmine, sprays containing scents to suit all tastes, bottles of toilet water and a manicure set.

It is believed that the new Prefect found on first assuming office that women with whom he had appointments on official affairs were often late. It is understood that the only disadvantage which he now finds is that his doorkeeper has difficulty in convincing visitors that their turn has come to leave the waiting-room for the Prefect's office.

HOLD DRIVER FOR HOMICIDE.

Chauffeur Whose Carelessness Drowned Isador Duncan's Children Bound Over by Paris Judge.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Morverand, the driver of the automobile which plunged from the roadway, near Neuilly-sur-Seine, into the river, carrying with it to their death the two children of Isadora Duncan, the American dancer, and their governess, was sent to the Correctional Court Tuesday on a charge of homicide through imprudence.

The examining magistrate, M. Kastler, concluded his investigation of the accident, which occurred on April 19. The machine had been brought to a stop on the roadway and the chauffeur descended and turned the crank. The speed gear had been left on by an oversight and the machine shot forward and plunged into the water. Instead of attempting to aid those imprisoned in the car the chauffeur ran half a mile to a police station to summon help, which arrived too late.

Fruitola
TRAXO

Here are the pictures of our two sovereign California Remedies—FRUITOLA and TRAXO. This is just the way they will look when you see them on the druggist's shelf or counter. We put these pictures here for your protection because our remedies are so good and efficient that we have imitators. We want you to get the original and genuine preparations, and when the medicine you buy is put up like the above pictures, you will know that you have the genuine article. Take no imitation or substitute.

EVERY fair minded man and woman will admit the too great proneness of the present age toward surgical operations. A little unusual pain in liver, kidney, stomach, or intestines seems to so work upon the imagination of the average individual as to call for an operation for gall stones, stone in kidney or bladder, appendicitis or some other like trouble.

You know this to be true, and if you will reflect a moment, you will also know that it is sheer nonsense.

Fits of indigestion, cramps, constipation, pain in the region of the liver, are simply danger signals to the intelligent mind, but do not of necessity call for an operation.

Our way, the simple, commonsense way, is to administer reasonable doses of

FRUITOLA and TRAXO

—pure fruit and vegetable products which treat the stomach and intestinal tract in Nature's way.

Their mild and stimulating action will dislodge every particle of viscid or hardened matter held within the folds and angles of the intestinal tract and carry it away as natural waste.

They are stimulating, soothing and strengthening to mucous lining and muscular walls and bring about a condition affording perfect digestion and assimilation of food. This simply means restoration to normal health.

These admirable qualities of FRUITOLA and TRAXO are the evidence of relieved thousands who gave testimony to the fact in our little book which will be mailed free upon your request.

Nearly all druggists sell these remedies. If your druggist does not have them, correspond with us and we will see that you are supplied.

RESTORE GARDEN OF EDEN BY MODERN IRRIGATION.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The first step in the work of restoring the prosperity of Mesopotamia, once the granary of the world, by means of irrigation, is described in a Constantinople dispatch to the London Daily Mail. Sir William Wilcocks, who designed the works for the Turkish government, often asserted that the Garden of Eden once flourished in the district between Babylon and Bagdad.

The formal opening of the Euphrates barrage takes place on Friday. The barrage, which is at Hindia, about forty-seven miles north of Bagdad, is the first completed part of the extensive irrigation works undertaken by the Young Turk government for the improvement of Mesopotamia. The construction was intrusted in February, 1911, to Sir John Jackson. The barrage consists of masonry piers with thirty-six openings fitted with sluices to hold the water to the desired level. There is also a navigation lock for barge traffic.

Below the main barrage is a subsidiary one constructed with a lock of the same size. The water level can be raised to sixteen and one-half feet, enabling an extensive area of rich land to be irrigated. Upstream the ancient Hilla channel, leading to Hilla and Babylon, has been cleared for a distance of fifty miles. This allows the utilization of the water of this area also.

Further work still remains to complete the scheme of converting the country into a second Egypt and restoring the ancient granary to the empire. Notable among the uncompleted works is the Habbania escape, which will allow the surplus floods to flow into an adjacent lake, thence to a large natural depression, thus avoiding the submersion of the area between the Euphrates and Bagdad.

Says Sage Tea Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Luster.

Gray, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur, but whats' the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at drug stores here for about 50 cents. Millions of bottles of "Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after just one application, the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth; gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur," and the folks using it are enthusiastic. Agents, Sun Drug Co.

RILEY'S POEMS AND PROSE WORK

Complete Collection Has Been Completed.

Many Unpublished Compositions Obtained.

The Legitimate Part Played by His Dialect.

[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times:] After a year of diligent investigation and research the editors in charge of the work of compiling the first absolutely complete collection of the works of James Whitcomb Riley, in both prose and poetry, have announced that they have recovered what they believe to be all of the compositions of the famous poet still in existence.

The work on the complete collection was begun with but little hope of success, as Riley's works were scattered far and wide over the land. The files of defunct newspapers, to which the poet had at different times contributed, were carefully searched; his correspondence was examined; his friends were canvassed for any information they might have, and at length some 200 poems which have never before been published were found. In addition a large number of prose compositions were brought to light, works of the poet of whose existence he alone knew.

James Whitcomb Riley has succeeded as a poet in spite of the prediction of many of the greatest literary critics that his works were not the kind that would live. Eastern men of letters were slow in accepting his dialect verse, and it was only after he had recited before them that they began to realize the wonderful possibilities of dialect poetry as a medium of interpreting the true feelings and the simple philosophy of the homely people from whom the poet drew his inspiration.

Time and again Riley has been asked how he himself accounted for his success. Invariably he would reply in a most typical manner, "I guess there had to be someone to do that sort of thing, and the good Lord just picked me." It was in a recent interview, however, that for the first time he told of the actual work he had done in making his poetry come to possess its strange appeal.

In recovering Riley's "lost" works, the editors of the complete edition found that as far back as 1879 Riley had been thinking along the line of "appeal." There were many evidences of this thought in some of his later writings, but that he should have been seeking for a basis of universal appeal so early in his career was indeed a revelation.

HIS IDEAS ON POETRY.

The first poem found which disclosed the poet's ideas on poetry is one entitled "The Ginoine Ar-Tickle," which was found in the files of the old Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune under date of November 8, 1879. Typically characteristic of Riley, it gives his views on poetry in a more readily understandable fashion than anything that might be said. It follows:

"Talking o' poetry—there's few men yit
'At's got the stuff biled down so's it'll pour
Out sorgum-like, and keeps a year or more
'Jes sweeter ever' time you tackle it!
W'y all the jinglin' truck 'at hes been writ
Fer twenty year and better is ac pore
You can't find no sap in it any more
'N you'd find juice in puff-balls!—and I'd quit!
What people wants is facts, I apprehend;
And naked Nature is the thing to give Your writin' basis, eh? And I contend
'At honest work is allus bound to live.
Now them's my views! 'cause you kin ricommend
Sich poetry as that from end to end."

Again, in "A Tale of the Airly Days," a poem written in 1886, a similar idea was expressed, in the following way:

"Tell of the things jest as they was—
They don't need no excuse!—
Don't tetch 'em up like poets does,
Tel theyr all too fine fer use."

In "Poems Here at Home," written during the summer of 1892, which is the best known of all the Riley verse in which the poet has sought to give utterance to his thoughts regarding poetry, the following oft-quoted lines appear:

"What we want, as I sense it, in the line
O' poetry is 'somepin' Yours and Mine—
Somepin' with live stock in it, and outdoors,
And old crick-bottoms, snags and sycamores;
Putt weeds in—pizen vines and underbresh,
As well as Johnny-jump-ups, all so fresh
And sassy-like!—and groun'-squirils, yes, and 'We,'
As saying is—'We, Us and Company.'
No 'Ladies Amaranth' and 'Treasury' book—
Ner 'Night Thoughts' nuther—ner no 'Lally Rook.'
We want some poetry 'at's to Our taste,
Made out o' truck 'at's jest a-goin' to waste
'Cause smart folks thinks it's altogether too
Outrageous common—'cept fer me and you!—
Which goes to argy, all sich poetry
Is 'bliged to rest its hopes on You and Me."

SECRET OF HIS SUCCESS.

Perhaps better than anything else one might select, these poems disclose the secret of the poet's success. First of all, their utter artlessness, which is characteristic of all his writings, is bound to attract. Second, his ability to take his audience into his confidence, to put himself at "you and I" with the world, is a manner which is bound to win the love and sympathy of those who read his works.

In speaking of the matter, Riley himself said: "The public desires nothing but what is absolutely natural, and so perfectly natural as to be fairly artless. It cannot tolerate affectation, and it takes little interest in the classical production. It demands simple sentiments that come direct from the heart. Thus I learned to judge and value my work."

Having written his first poetry merely for recitations, as he was conducting a lecture tour throughout Indiana when most of his best early verse was written, Riley had an opportunity to judge exactly what impression his various poems had on the average mind. Whenever he found that a particular type of poetry failed to make an impression or did not meet wholly with the approval of his hearers, he sought to learn the reason for his failure and remedied it immediately.

In this connection he said: "Occasionally at first I had presumed to write 'over the heads' of my audience, consoling myself for the cool reception by thinking my auditors were not of sufficient intellectual might to appreciate my efforts. But after a time it came home to me that I myself was at fault in these failures, and then I disliked anything which did not ring true to the hearts of my hearers."

In his work on the lecture platform Riley came to realize also that the easiest verse to recite was that which was conversation, simple and direct. He did not cast about for unusual phrases. He interpreted his thoughts in the manner in which the [illegible] people would understand them. He did not employ inverted [illegible] structures.

His use of dialect was careful and thoughtful. It was always apropos. He used it when it would serve the purpose better than anything else. Thus he was able to convince the [illegible] critics that dialect was as legitimate a form for poetry as non-dialect, and that through it one could express a fine sentiment and feeling as through classical verse.

An excellent example of Riley's dialect poetry, written with great forethought and with the deliberate purpose, one may almost say, to show the possibilities of dialect verse, is one of his early poems which he wrote for recitation, entitled "Tradin' Joe," [illegible] in 1874.

The poem was written when Riley and a friend, Will S. Otwell, were taking part together in a number of public entertainments, and was constructed as much like prose as possible. In introducing the poem in his early lectures, Riley said:

"However dialect expression may have been abused, certain it is that in no expression is there better opportunity for the reproduction of pure nature. In artlessness of construction the dialect poem may attain even higher excellence than the more polished specimens of English. Its great defect seems to be that, as written or printed, the real feeling it contains is overlooked by the reader in the contemplation of its oddity. That it is more widely copied by the press than any other type of versification I am inclined to think is the result of superficial regard for its general abandon rather than a wholesome recognition of its real worth, which, though always more than half buried in the debris of rhetoric, is the more precious when unearthed. Hence it is that we are so tardy in admitting it has any worth whatever, much less its very superior worth of theme and truthfulness to life.

"And now before leaving a theme which, to myself at least, has been for years the source of infinite interest and delight, I will ask you to bear with the narration of a story from real life, in which I will depart from the original form of narrative only as the rhythmical requirements demand."

As recited by Riley, the poem "Tradin' Joe" sounds all the world like prose and by critics is held to be one of the best proofs he offered in behalf of his poetical theories.

HISTORY OF THE POEMS.

In the biographical notes which have been included in the biographical edition, the name under which the complete works of the Hoosier poet will be published, elaborate explanations of all of Riley's compositions are given. The history of each poem is supplied, as well as much interesting and valuable information which goes to form the connecting link between the poet's literary career and his writings.

In addition to the notes, the new edition of Riley contains many illustrations, including photographs of the poet, his family, scenes of his boyhood made famous in his dialect poems, and facsimiles of his most famous manuscripts, also two bibliographies, giving a complete list of all books of Riley verse previously published as well as a list of all articles in print about him and a list of all Riley poems set to music, and so forth.

The entire work is carefully indexed by titles, by first lines and [illegible] and by subjects.

Riley himself has assisted in the editing of the biographical edition. He has passed on every line and stanza of poetry which is included, so that each of his compositions now appears in the final form in which he would have it go down to posterity.

WELSH AND IRISH MAKE UP.

Former Antagonism Between Two Races in the Colliery [illegible] Almost Disappears.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DUBLIN, Nov. 15.—A revolutionary change has come over the relations between the Welsh and the Irish people during the last few weeks. The racial feuds that were so prominent a feature of life in the colliery districts have entirely disappeared and a growing spirit of fraternity has taken their place.

Less than ten years ago acts of violence between rival nationalities in Wales were a matter of weekly occurrence. Whole territories inhabited by Irish people were periodically overrun by infuriated [illegible] Welsh colliers, who did great damage to Irish property and people. [illegible] of this terrorism was due to religious fanaticism, but most of it proceeded from a feeling that the appearance of Irishmen in the colliery [illegible] meant a low standard of wages.

So far as the wages question is concerned, Irishmen, with the [illegible] support of trade unionism, have succeeded in dissipating that [illegible]. Indeed, it is now agreed that three-fourths of the trade union officials in England and Wales are natives of the Emerald Isle.

Redmond's call to his countrymen in Great Britain to support the Welsh in their demand for the disestablishment of the Anglican church in the principality is another factor in healing the breach that had so long divided the two Celtic races. The Welsh and the Irish are no longer antagonistic peoples.

TEACH INSANE LIKE CHILDREN.

New Method Adopted by an Ohio Hospital.

Good Results Gained in Notable Cases.

Other States Are Watching the Innovation.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] Three hundred inmates of the State Hospital at Massillon are going to school studying arithmetic, reading, geography, music, etc., the same as pupils in other schools.

This school, started by Dr. H. C. Eyman, is the first effort of that sort in the treatment and care of the insane. It is being watched with much interest by other States.

The general purpose is to stimulate mental effort, to call back the patient-pupil as nearly to normal as possible, to occupy the attention during the day, to combat the tendency to moody reflections, to stay the progress of mental disorder, and give nature a chance to repair damages.

It has succeeded beyond the expectations of those instrumental in founding it. It is credited with contributing substantial results in some notable cases.

The problem of what to do with the inmates of the hospitals is the big one constantly before the eyes of the managers. Of necessity they must be kept interested and busy. Idleness is fatal.

The school was started to appeal to the large numbers. Patients are gathered at certain hours of the day in the big recreation hall. The methods of the school are suited to the possibilities of the pupil. They are able to handle the work with ease and with many indications of enjoyment. In mathematics the problems, while involving figures, are made local and easy of application. It is not merely the problem of adding two and two and making four. It is, if a man owned two cows, or pigs, or chickens, and bought two others, how many cows, or pigs, or chickens would he then have. They see the cows, the pigs and chickens, and the problem is made easier.

Recently they were given a problem like this: If three men hired a pasture for $20, one having ten cows, one having four and the other six, what part of the rent would each have to pay?

A dozen patients solved it, and nearly all in the room understood enough about it to try with fair results.

The work of the school has been slow because of the lack of suitable instructors. Dr. Eyman has done a considerable part of the work personally, though he has found some employes able to render effective aid.

If school work is finally proved capable of substantial results it will open a new field for trained instructors of the insane, in which people fitted for the work could find lucrative employment and render a large service to the afflicted.

Donations of money to the hospital from friends of Dr. Eyman made it possible to erect a building known as a recreation and education building. That building houses the school. In so far as patients are interested in the work of the school, they are allowed to take part in pool and billiards, to engage in bowling, to play [illegible] and baseball, and there are many proficient players in each of these forms of amusement.

All these games are a part of the [illegible] work. They provide healthful amusement, excite mental interest, [illegible] energy and stimulate activity for the physical and mental betterment of the patient.

Under the direction of Dr. Clark [illegible] of the hospital at Newburg [illegible] are doing a great deal of manual labor and are manufacturing a wide range of articles and doing valuable work.

An exhibition of the work of the patients has been made ready there and the public will have a chance to see it shortly.

[illegible] there is a genius in constructing fancy articles out of colored stones and cement. He made the huge gate posts at the entrance and the fountains and flower vases all about the lawn. He spends the summer gathering the colored stones from the brook and works during the winter constructing his fountains, vases and other objects.

[illegible] has been employed as far as [illegible] has been employed as far as possible in handling the hospital patients, but Dr. Eyman is the pioneer in the field of educational activity. The State Board of Administration is pleased with the work done.

Dr. Eyman in his report says: "[illegible] per cent. of cases admitted [illegible] cases and without plan on the part of the officials the hospital [illegible] last year very largely as a [illegible] establishment."

PADDY'S PIGS SCARCE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—The present state of the bacon industry in Ireland is not satisfactory, although it is difficult to discover where the fault lies. Paddy's pig is all right as a money-maker, but, unfortunately, there are not sufficient of him either to supply the home or the European market.

For some time past the subject has engaged the attention of the Limerick and Clare Farmers' Association and at a recent meeting complaint was made that the prices paid for pigs in the south were lower than those paid in the north of Ireland. Exception was taken to this statement by one of the large bacon curing firms in Limerick, and they were able to show that the local prices and northern prices at the period of the complaint were practically level. Moreover, they contended that if the average be taken for a year it will be found that the prices ruling in the south are considerably in excess of the northern figures.

Irish farmers during the past six or eight months have been obtaining about $1.20 per hundredweight for their pigs over and above the prices prevailing in Denmark, notwithstanding the fact that Danish bacon is the keenest competitor the Irish article has to face in the markets of Great Britain. The killings in Denmark of pigs suitable for the English trade are now 45,000 to 50,000 per week as against 25,000 in Ireland, although the Danish farmer sells his hogs at a price at least a dollar below his Irish rival. Nevertheless these figures are not satisfactory, particularly when it is recalled how once Irish bacon ruled the British breakfast table.

Turn the Baby's Tears to Laughter

A Gentle Baby Laxative Will Quickly Relieve the Usual Cause of the Trouble.

WALTER J. KIRCH.

It is often difficult to tell just what is the matter with a crying, peevish baby or child too young to express its feelings in words, but as a general rule the mother will find that there is a tendency to constipation, which has brought on a headache or nervousness. The little one has no pain, but feels "out of sorts."

The first thing to try is a family remedy containing good but mild laxative properties, and many mothers will say that their choice would be Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Thousands of mothers keep it in the house for such emergencies, among whom may be mentioned Mrs. John Kirch, Jr., 1527 Abstract avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. She has been giving it successfully to little Walter, whose picture we present at 3 months, when he weighed 14½ pounds. He is a healthy, laughing youngster today and Mrs. Kirch gladly gives Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin credit. It saves many an illness and many a large doctor bill, for by administering it promptly when the first symptoms of illness are noticed it prevents a serious ailment.

It is so pleasant-tasting that no child will refuse it, and as it does not gripe, the child is glad to take it again. A bottle can be obtained of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, the latter being the size bought by families already familiar with its merits. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Syrup Pepsin is for all the family from infancy to old age, and because of its mildness families should prefer it over all other remedies. It is absolutely safe and reliable. You will never again give cathartics, pills, salts or such harsh physics, for they are usually unnecessary, and in the case of children, women and elderly people are a great shock to the system, and hence should be avoided.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington street, Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

BRITISH COURTS CROWDED WITH DIVORCE CASES.

The Number of Separations Asked for Has Trebled During the Past Twelve Years, Husbands Leading as Plaintiffs and Many Cases Being Undefended.

[New York Tribune:] The divorce question in England has assumed a serious aspect. Despite the report of the Royal Commission, urging the desirability of immediate reform in many directions, there are so many matrimonial causes to be tried at the law courts during the present sitting, it appears, that Sir Samuel Evans, president of the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division, and his coadjutor, Mr. Justice Bargreave Deane, will have a hopeless task before them in seeking unaided to dispose of all the cases before the end of the term.

Even when the considerable number of Admiralty matters are left out, there is a total of 530 cases relating to matrimonial affairs and probate, a figure largely in excess of any reached before. There are only 41 probate cases, and the remainder, 489, all have their origin in matrimonial irregularities and errors.

There is really no way better to explain the astonishing growth of business in the English divorce courts than to print the following table (which includes cases at the Christmas term):

GROWTH OF CASES ALARMING.

In all these twelve years, in only two out of the forty-eight legal terms included, has the figure of 400 been reached, and these terms were in the present year, 1913. In 1904 the number of cases in every term nearly approached 400, but after a series of gradual movements up and down the average fell in 1909 and 1910 to below 300. But the following year, 1911, saw this figure overtopped in three out of the four terms, and in 1912 there were over 300 cases in every term. The growth since then has been alarming, for the average for the four terms of 1913 is 430.

How the two judges, with such spasmodic assistance as they receive from the King's Bench Division, manage to get through the stupendous list is easily explained by the extraordinary number of undefended divorce cases. It is not unusual at all for these to be cleared away at the rate of five or six an hour, which means that in an ordinary working day of five hours fifty or sixty cases may be disposed of.

This batch of undefended suits is one of the most significant phases of the lists. The causes are too numerous to be gone into. Usually they are quite obvious after a moment's reflection. Out of the 489 matrimonial suits for this term, not less than 353 are undefended. Of the remainder, eighty-seven will come up in chambers, twenty-nine are set down for common juries and twenty for special juries.

Three hundred and ninety-four cases are for divorce outright. The petitioners are being fairly equally divided—189 wives and 205 husbands—a state of things that has been characteristic of divorce proceedings for time out of memory, but is by no means a true indication of the relative morality in the domestic relationship of men and women. Indeed, English experts claim it merely shows that as the law at present stands about the same number of wives are enabled to seek the aid of the law in annuling their union.

HUSBANDS LEAD AS PLAINTIFFS.

Although more husbands than wives are seeking divorce, the balance of those prepared to let the matter go through undefended is on the side of the respondent husband, for 156 men are so disposed, as against 141 women. In every one of the twenty-seven common jury cases the respondent is a wife.

But there are phases of domestic discomfort which suggest other remedies than divorce. Judicial separation, the only relief open to many, is sought next sittings by twenty-nine persons, of whom only one is a husband, that form of remedy apparently being in paternal favor. So also in regard to restitution of conjugal rights, which in a large proportion of cases is only a legal preliminary to subsequent divorce proceedings, the lists reveal much domestic infelicity, for fifty-five petitions are of this character, fifty-one being instituted by wives and only four by husbands.

Nullity is a matter removed somewhat from the ordinary matrimonial cases and, until recently, deemed to be fittingly dealt with only in camera. Of this kind of case there are eleven set down, and it is probable that most of them will be heard in open court.

It is not in all cases a simple matter of injured spouse seeking relief against a partner with or without defense. In eight cases there are cross-petitions under pleas of singular variety. In one instance the husband asks for divorce and the wife counters for a petition for judicial separation, while in another, it is the wife who insists upon dissolution, while the husband demands restitution. In a third the husband seeks restitution and the wife judicial separation. In yet a fourth both base their future hopes on absolute divorce.

HEAR MURDER ON 'PHONE.

Police of Paris Mystified by Report of Mysterious Crime Received Over Wire.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 22.—"Come to me!—Help me!—Come quickly!—Hurry, hurry!—I am being murdered!—They are killing me!—Help me! Help me!"

These were the startling words, shrieked forth in a woman's voice, that Mme. Herbert, a caretaker at a building in the Rue Michel-Ange, heard over the telephone the other morning.

The bell of the instrument had rung just as Mme. Herbert was about to leave her lodge, in company with a man and wife and daughter whom she wished to show over the building. She picked up the receiver and said, in the French style: "Allo! Allo!" The frantic appeal already quoted came as an immediate response.

Terrified, she satisfied herself that the call came from the outside system and not from one of the tenants speaking on extension lines inside the building. Then, shouting into the transmitter: "I will run for the police," she passed the receiver to the man in the lodge and ran [illegible] street.

In a moment or two she returned with Officer Pecheux, who found [illegible] the three people already in the [illegible] had, in turn, heard the appealing [illegible] for help, but had been unable to [illegible] tain from the frantic woman at the other end of the wire any information of practical service.

"This is terrible," said the [illegible] as he handed the receiver to the breathless policeman. "The woman continually cries: 'Help me!'"

"Is the call from within the house?" demanded the officer, [illegible] valuable moments.

"No," replied Mme. Herbert, "[illegible] call has been received here by [illegible] I should ask, if I were you, [illegible]"

But Pecheux had put the receiver to his ear. "Who are you?" [illegible] shouted to the unknown [illegible] "Where are you? I am a police officer. Tell me where I must [illegible] order to help you."

But, in a voice louder and [illegible] than before, the woman [illegible] "Come and help me!" Then the officer heard through the telephone a series of breathless gasps, a [illegible] of rattling in the throat, followed by the noise of a blow, a scuffle [illegible] thud of a falling human body, [illegible] silence.

For several minutes the [illegible] shouted into the transmitter, [illegible] there was no longer any [illegible] He rang the bell furiously and [illegible] exchange operator answered his summons.

"Tell me," demanded M. Pecheux, "who was speaking to this [illegible] Passy 4445, a minute ago. It is urgent."

"I do not know," answered the operator.

"Have you never listened on the line?"

"Why do you ask me that?"

Exasperated, the officer replied [illegible] the woman who had spoken to [illegible] 4445 had been murdered, [illegible] quiries were made by the exchange officials, but all trace of the mysterious call had been lost. No operator remembered the number which had been connected to the building in the Rue Michel-Ange. No record had been kept.

The police are now leaving no stone unturned to solve this [illegible] lem.

"THE BRIDE OF CHRIST."

VATICAN: THE CENTER OF GOVERNMENT OF THE CATHOLIC WORLD. By Rt. Rev. Edmund Canon Hughes de Ragnau. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

CIVILIZATIONS have risen and fallen, empires have waxed mighty and tumbled into oblivion, a new hemisphere has been added to the known world since the Catholic church established its authority on earth, and today it wields a greater spiritual power than ever in its history. It is the only institution that has endured through the progress of the centuries, and Lord Macaulay has vividly predicted that it may be that when some traveler from New Zealand, in the ages yet to come, will sketch the desolate ruins of London that the Catholic church will still be a dominant power in the world as it has been for the past 1900 years.

"The Vatican" gives a comprehensive survey of the history, influence, aims and achievements of the Catholic church.

The Emperor Constantine raised the first basilica of the Vatican over the tomb of St. Peter, and—as though in triumph of the persecutions endured by the early Christians—partly on the site of Nero's circus.

"The Vatican palace," says the author, "is not built after a single plan. It is, rather, a reunion of many palaces and buildings of different styles and dates, all cleverly joined together by skilled architects, so that the visitor, passing from one to the other, seems to be always in one and the same. And yet the Vatican is composed of not less than twenty courts and over 11,000 rooms, parlors, chapels, etc."

In explaining the splendors of the Vatican, the author says: "The question is sometimes asked by those separated from the church, why all this pomp surrounding the vicar of Jesus Christ, who was poor and who so despised riches?"

He answers that it cannot matter to those who do not belong to the church since it does not question others about the immense salaries paid [illegible], and says, "As regards the objection that Christ was poor, that, too, is easily answered. Our Lord Jesus Christ, being God, His [illegible] was not so destitute as some would have us suppose, and if He made no use of these immense riches it was in order to teach us a divine lesson in humility and renunciation."

Concerning the authority of the Pope, the author says: "The Pope! Every Catholic, even to the farthest corner of the earth, is deeply moved at the very sound of that word. It is because the Pope is the common father of all the faithful, the vicar of Jesus Christ, and, as Christ Himself [illegible] was visible to all eyes. He has the authority to teach us the truth, which has been revealed to the church to direct our consciences, and, as an absolute consequence of that supreme authority, which is accountable only to God, he is infallible when he is officially exercising the duties of pastor and teacher of all Christians. The church has always been an absolute monarchy and in the most [illegible] times no parliament of any kind sat with the Pope, and imposed [illegible] upon him, as in our constitutional monarchies. This does not mean that the Pope acts and speaks, even [illegible], without consulting anyone. On the contrary, he surrounds himself with cardinals, theologians, [illegible], canonists, jurists, scholars of all parts, and he is in constant communication with his bishops and [illegible] who are the most eminent [illegible] the world."

Of the present Pope, Pius X, formerly Cardinal Sarto, it is said: [illegible] a curious coincidence [illegible] Sarto remained just nine years in each post, beginning with his [illegible]. When his holiness, Leo XIII, expired on July 20, 1903, Cardinal Sarto left for Rome to attend the conclave, but with so little [illegible] that he was to be chosen for [illegible] post that he actually provided himself with a return ticket."

The various religions are estimated by the author as follows: "494,250,000 Christians, of whom 240,000,000 are Catholics, 150,000,000 Protestants of all denominations, 100,000,000 Orthodox Greeks. Other religions: 10,000,000 Jews, 300,000,000 Mohammedans, 140,000,000 Buddhists, 220,000,000 Hindus, 240,000,000 disciples of Confucius, 14,000,000 Shintoists, 157,000,000 fetichists. The number of priests is estimated at 400,000."

The author insists that the church has added largely in the spreading of scientific knowledge, saying: "Catholicism of today cannot be accused of favoring ignorance and hindering scientific extension and progress. History proves the contrary. How many universities, seminaries, colleges and schools have been founded by the church! How many are the truly great men of science whose names appear among those of the creators of every branch of knowledge, and not a few of whom are found in the ranks of the Catholic clergy."

"The Vatican" is in no sense controversial; it sets forth the history and [illegible] of Catholicism from the earliest times down to the present and offers a mass of information never before compiled in one volume.

A LITTLE PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE. By Robert J. Burdette. Clara Vista Press, Pasadena.

BEAUTIFUL thoughts set to [illegible] sentences, as Etrurian gold workers formed settings for their gems, fill the brochure in which Robert J. Burdette presents "A Little Philosophy of Life." The book is a tiny, though strikingly [illegible] of Mrs. Burdette. The little book is dedicated to Dr. Burdette's grand-daughter, Clara [illegible] Wheeler, "who, with tottering steps, is coming in to the entrance of the stage of life, just as her grandfather, with footsteps equally [illegible], is slowly passing out at the exit."

The little paragraphs, laden with [illegible], are bright and cheerful, [illegible] at times, all original and [illegible]. This, perhaps, strikes the dominant chord of Dr. Burdette's philosophy: "It has been a good world to me. I have always had more friends than I could count and more good than I could measure. I have not got everything I wanted, but if I didn't get it, I didn't want it, which is the same thing as having it. [illegible] it is better."

[illegible] of his remarkably [illegible] and sane philosophy are: "What you think you were, that's your [illegible]. What people say you are, that's your reputation. What you are, that's your character." "If the uses of adversity are sweet—and Paul says they are—they are most efficacious. You [illegible] hit a nail on the head a half dozen times before it will comprehend its perfect destiny. Well, God deals with some men—fellows like you and me—in the same manner, sometimes." "The best [illegible] got scared about the day of judgment is about ten minutes before you make a fool of yourself."

GOLDEN VOICES.

OPERA SINGERS. By Gustav Kobbe. Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

FOR the sixth edition of his "Opera Singers," Gustav Kobbe has emphasized the illustrative features of preceding editions. The present volume is more a pictorial gift album than a critical work on the various singers whose portraits adorn the pages of his book. The omission of an index is especially notable in a work of this kind, which should be fairly informative. "Opera Singers" contains biographical notes which are accurate, if scanty, combined with personal experiences. In the collection of fourteen opera singers, only three men are recorded, the two De Reszkes and Caruso. The others all belong to the prima donna class, and include Geraldine Farrar, Olive Fremstad, Johanna Gadski-Tauscher, Mary Garden, Mme. Calve, Mme. Eames, Mme. Melba, Mme. Nordica, Mrs. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Marcella Seinbrich and Mlle. Ternina. The volume is evidently intended for a profusely illustrated gift book, and fulfills well its mission.

RELIGION IN PICTURES.

THE GOSPEL STORY IN ART. By John La Farge. Macmillan Company, New York.

NO ONE was perhaps better qualified to assemble the gospel story as portrayed by the masters of all the different centuries than John La Farge, himself an artist of rare ability. His death came before the work was complete, but up until the last he gave instructions and devoted attention to the assembling and arranging of the matter.

Eighty reproductions are included in the pictorial review of the Christian story, from the birth of Christ to His crucifixion, and in that number are included many pictures of Rafael, Michaelangelo, Botticelli Rembrandt, Donatello, Giotto, Velazquez, Titian; others also of Da Vinci, Rubens, Le Sueur, Luini, Tintoretto and Signorelli.

A lengthy study of each of the pantings and the periods they represent is also given, and the volumne contains over 400 pages.

A VERITABLE SUNSHINE BOOK.

IT IS not strange that "Pollyanna—the Glad Book," has run through some dozen impressions, nor that it is the inspiration for the formation of "Glad" organizations throughout the country. It is one of the most delightful stories of the kind that has ever been written, a veritable sermon without a word of preaching in it. The little minister is a girl of 11—the child of a good man of the cloth, who had found in the Bible over 800 places in which the reader is urged to rejoice and be exceeding glad. The divine himself teaches his child the philosophy of gladness, not by preaching and admonition, but he makes of it a "game" that the two shall play together. The point of the game is to find something to be glad about in every circumstance, no matter how discouraging it may seem. With a wonderful faith and sunniness of disposition, that makes it impossible for the little girl to recognize defects of character or unkindness in others, Pollyanna wins the love, and softens the hearts of the most austere with whom she comes in contact.

In drawing the character of the child, the author has displayed a fine consistency throughout. The child is pictured correctly according to her temperament—the sanguine vital, the light hair and pink skin. There is no sentimental driveling. Pollyanna is normal, healthful and delightful, utterly unconscious of the significance of her introduction of "the game" into the lives of others, beyond her desire to see happy and attractive faces about her. The word "living" embodies everything for her—all that is good, wholesome, happy, sweet, desirable. The introduction of the word duty in an unattractive form by her severe aunt, she fears that she will not exactly like. But she is an obedient, obliging child, and the fact that she eventually gets everything her own way is not due to perversity or antagonism, but to an unconscious power, an inner alliance with the winning forces. The resolution of the rigid maiden aunt to hold the little girl at arm's length, and even the early persecutions and punishments are transformed subtly by Pollyanna's "glad" interpretations. Blame or incrimination never seem to cross the girl's mind for a moment. She is a greater success than the trained gladthoughter because the glad thought is part and parcel of her. She does not seem to know anything else. When she lies helpless, the victim of an accident, Aunt Polly discovers something of the transformation the child has wrought in the borough, and before the end the miracle is brought to the very heart of the home. Read Pollyanna and be glad. It is good reading for adult or child.

THEATRICAL VAGABONDAGE.

A PIRATE OF PARTS. By Richard Neville. Neale Publishing Company, New York.

IF ONE is not particular about his method of getting amusement, he may be able to extract a modicum of it from the pages of "A Pirate of Parts." In the first place, to be able to appreciate it, one must have some knowledge of that stratum of theatrical profession which lives a good part of the time on its nerve and its uppers, has more than a speaking acquaintance with "tall grass," and "barn storming," and has no terror of that bugaboo of theaterdom, contained in the word "stranded." It is the story of one who could play any part "from Macbeth to the hind leg of an elephant, equally good or equally bad." He rejoiced in the name of Handy, and the dominant characteristic of doing those things which he ought not to do, and leaving undone, etc. He also had the excellent quality of merriment under any and all circumstances, and the faculty of making use of every one who crossed his path. We therefore find him starting on a summer tour, when funds were low and something had to be done, on the sailing craft of a friend, with a picked company of out-at-elbows players stranded on the Rialto. "One of the company played a cornet badly; another was a flutist of uncertain qualifications, while a third could rasp a little on the violin." Handy himself could tackle any instrument that might be necessary; but drums and cymbals were his specialty. So they "hung up" the printer, and commenced their tour, aboard the "Gem of the Ocean," intending to touch at divers points, land, and give their choice performances, beginning with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," a male dwarf being cast for the role of Little Eva.

Through 228 pages the company wobbles along on its uncertain way. We detect an attempt at the John Kendrick Bangs or Jerome K. Jerome style, without, however, any remarkable degree of success. However, the book is not without its fund of humor and revelation concerning this rather shabby side of the theatrical profession, and will doubtless be much appreciated by those sufficiently acquainted with it to feel the underlying and unwritten pathos of it all—a pathos of most happy-go-lucky vagabondage.

A MONTE CRISTO FIND.

THE ISLAND OF THE STAIRS. By Cyrus Townsend Brady. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

TALES of fabulous treasure, hidden away in some remote corner of the earth, are always permeated with a sort of irresistible attraction, whether the story itself be well or poorly written. By this it is not implied that Cyrus Townsend Brady's "The Island of the Stairs" is not well written. While he cannot be said to write with the style and the clutch of a Dumas, the very first page starts with exciting incident, which does not flag until the last page is turned. It is the story of a young girl left alone in the world by the suicide of her well-born but gambling father, who has lost his child's inheritance at the gaming table, to a vicious, scheming nobleman, the fiance of Mistress Lucy, who, when he has gained the family wealth, repudiates the girl. Among the dead father's papers is found an ancient chart, locating a hidden treasure in a mysterious South Sea Island. Mistress Lucy, with the remnant of her fortune, and the help of a thoroughly educated navigator—born of a humble gardener in the service of the family, and therefore socially beneath the daughter of the house—equips a vessel, and sails in quest of the treasure. My lady's maid dies en route, leaving the young girl unattended on the ship. The handsome young navigator, who loves her, is indiscreet enough to show his devotion, and my lady orders him locked below. The young navigator has previously scented mutiny, knowing that in such event he would be the only protection to the young woman. Mutiny does break out, and he is compelled to bargain with the pirates. He is to retain his position as navigator, and is apportioned the girl, upon his agreement to yield up his knowledge and share of the treasure.

After this adventures follow fast. And those readers who may have become ennuied over books "with a purpose," and are fond of excitement, may certainly enjoy a stimulating few hours over the adventures of Mistress Lucy and her adorer in "The Island of the Stairs."

A GOOD SAMARITAN.

THE LADY OF THE LIGHTHOUSE. By Helen S. Woodruff. George H. Doran Co., New York.

SHE is not the lady of a "sure-enough" lighthouse, on a desolate and windy coast, unless you might wish to speak metaphorically. Nevertheless, the lighthouse she keeps is very real and very luminous. Miss Hope is a young woman of means, who devotes her worldly goods to intelligently lifting the burden of the blind, especially the little subjects who are too young to know how to adjust themselves to the calamity of their lives. The story begins by the lighthouse lady descrying a little sufferer at the window of a wealthy home, and deliberately entering that home, although a stranger to its inmates. How she wins the half-orphaned child, living in a sensitive solitude, in a condition of morbidity encouraged by a heart-broken father, to a condition of actual happiness and a sphere of usefulness, is the substance of the story. She also brings some keen revelations to the father concerning the laborers in his chemical factory, where failure to protect them against the possibility of injury has cost one faithful servitor his sight, and placed him in hopeless poverty.

The workings within the "Lighthouse," where its happy frequenters are taught to do all sorts of pleasant tasks through the sight of their "ten eyes," are interestingly described. And when the father of the little hero sees it all—well, what do you suppose he does?

There is some clever negro dialect, which shows the author's familiarity with the lingo. "The Lady of the Lighthouse" is altogether a little story that we must take seriously, and which will leave a comforting sensation behind it.

AN INTIMATE REVELATION.

YOUTH'S ENCOUNTER. By Compton Mackenzie. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"YOUTH'S ENCOUNTER" is rather a psychological study than a story—the psychology of youth, of mental and physical development, and sex consciousness. It is the intimate revelation of the inmost thoughts of a boy from the earliest moment of self-consciousness, to his eighteenth year—a thoroughly normal and comprehensible boy, although more than ordinarily highstrung and sensitive. The boy and his younger sister are left a great deal to the care of servants, the mysterious and beautiful mother disappearing from their lives for months at a time. Still, every provision is made for their comfort and convenience, all of their wants save one being answered.

After passing beyond nurse tyranny, and consequent childish bogie terror, the boy gets his first taste of childhood democracy in a boy's school, when his first mortification comes through his ignorance to answer for his paternal parent. But later this seems to become less troublesome, as the boy's character expands, and he takes a more virile hold upon life. Of fine mentality, and a natural leader, he does himself credit as he passes from class to class, and from school to school as he is promoted, until Oxford looms into sight. The author of this book makes it plain that whereas one is supposed scarcely to have commenced to live at the age of 18, a lad has already rounded mile post after mile post in his interior development; that the struggles, joys, and tragedies of chilhood are very real and vivid, and in many ways set the mould for later years.

Mr. Mackenzie's characters are delightfully outlined sketches. They are individual, not too photographically handled to destroy their artistic value. In fact, a large part of the author's skill is in leaving the lingering impression of a tone, a facial habit, a peculiarity of walk to eve lastingly associate a character with its deed.

Delicately, but plainly the facts of life are handled, and their first breaking in upon, and hold upon the manboy's imagination. And underneath the early, and perhaps trivial infatuations, may be surmissed something of vastly greater importance than the episodes themselves.

The drawing of young Michael's genius sister—a year younger than himself—is also exceedingly clever and impressionistic, and the interest becomes concentrated when the beautiful, girlish-looking mother brings to her boy and girl her revelation.

It has been announced that Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin would this month be the guest of honor at a reception and tea given by the Froebel Club of Boston at the Elizabeth Peabody house, and she would assist at the fair to be given at the Hotel Vendome by Boston kindergartners.

During the ceremony in which Oxford University recently conferred upon Charles Francis Adams the degree of doctor of letters, Dr. Adams wore a brilliant scarlet gown of material of such peculiar texture and weave that on his return to America our vigilant customs officials held it up until they could send for a cloth expert to convince them that it was not of excessive value.

Miss Caroline Ticknor is the granddaughter of William D. Ticknor, founder of the house of Ticknor & Fields. Ticknor was Hawthorne's closest friend, and many of the incidents related in Miss Ticknor's book, "Hawthorne and His Publisher," have never before been made public.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, as army officer and as author of "Serving the Republic," will leave a double record of his Indian campaigns. He has come West to participate in a moving picture representation of the famous battle on Pine Ridge. Indian troops and officers who helped put down the Sioux insurrection will take part.

Dr. W. H. Tolman, author of "Safety Methods for Preventing Occupational and Other Accidents and Disease," recently lectured on "Safety" at the Lukens Iron and Steel Works at Coatesville, Pa. Six hundred employees were present, a number of them at the sacrifice of a couple of hours' wages. Dr. Tolman felt that their attendance was a proof how widespread among the industrial workers themselves has become the interest in those precautionary measures which he has placed before an even wider audience in his "Safety."

Colyer Meriwether, author of the "Life of Admiral Semmes," soon to be published by George W. Jacobs & Co., studied history at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, receiving the degree of doctor of philosophy. Although he has been a teacher since graduation, he has retained his creative interest in the subject, and has written several books on educational history, biography, and kindred departments. A work of very wide investigation was the history of the course of study in our colonial days, practically the only book of the sort in that field.

The publishers of the anonymous novel, "Home," announce that the latest guess as to its authorship—Meredith Nicholson—is wrong, and add that whoever guessed Mr. Nicholson had in mind the writer's well-known love of home, as evidence in "The Hoosier Chronicle" and "Otherwise Phyllis." A striking coincidence is that while the real author occupies a diplomatic position, Mr. Nicholson refused one because he thought home the better place.

MAGAZINE NOTES.

Scribner's Magazine for December has a story of the Northwest—"The Great Minus"—by Sir Gilbert Parker; "The Life History of the African Buffalo, Giant Eland, and Common Eland," by Theodore Roosevelt; "A Schoolboy's Interview With Abraham Lincoln," as well as other articles and stories. Scribner's devotes much space to poetry, and this month has verse by Benjamin R. C. Low, Henry Van Dyke, Theodosia Garrison and Laurence C. Hodgson.

The holiday numbers of the English magazines have arrived, many of them attended by "presentation pictures."

The Illustrated News has some fifteen full-page pictures in color, many of them with subjects taken from fairy stories and done after the manner of Maxfield Parish's paintings.

The Graphic also has many beautiful colored illustrations, and several short stories, one being by Katherine Tynan, who is fairly well known in the United States. It also has a supplement picture.

The Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News also has a handsome supplement picture suitable for framing, and is beautifully illustrated.

Everybody's Magazine for this month has a story by Zona Gale, one also by W. J. Locke, and illustrated "essay" by Gerald Stanley Lee, and a special article by William Hard on "Better Business," which begins the first of a series that deals with commercial development — and the lack of it.

The Strand this month presents what purports to be an account of the mystery of "Marie Celeste"—the ship found at sea with no crew aboard and no sign of a struggle—by a survivor. It also has an article on E. H. Sothern, and an interesting account of "The First Polar Expedition," illustrated from old prints, together with many other stories and articles.

Ainslee's has several notable story writers to furnish entertainment for this issue, among them being Gouverneur Morris, Edgar Jepson, Leonard Merrick, as well as poems by Breton Braley, John Kendrick Bangs and Clinton Scollard. "A First Nighter" also gives his impression of "Plays and Players."

The Atlantic Monthly has, among other special articles, one by Hugo Munsterberg on "Naive Psychology." "Feminist Intentions" is the subject of an article by W. L. George, and "The Meaning of Christmas," by George A. Gordon. "The Secret Annals of the Manchu Court" also is running, and gives the inside history of the Chinese empire.

The Forum for December has articles by Shaemas O'Sheel, Willard Huntington Wright, J. A. Reed, Nicholas Vachel Lindsay and many other prominent contributors. "The Lyrical Poetry of the New Laureate" is the subject of a feature by William Stanley Braithwaite, and "The Confessions of a Harvard Man" is given by Harold E. Stearns.

Lippincott's presents a complete novelette, "Betty's Virginia Christmas," by Molly Elliot Seawell. Some of the other contributors are Ellis O. Jones, Samuel Scoville, Jr., Owen Oliver, J. W. Muller, Clarence Budington Kelland, Charlotte Wilson, Edwin L. Sabin, William J. Lampton, Ethel Hallett Porter, Susie M. Best, Ethel Chapman Haring, Mrs. John Van Vorst, Eleanor Duncan Wood, and a financial article on "Currency Reform Under President Wilson," by Edward Sherwood Mead.

The Overland devotes special attention to the recent Portola Festival at San Francisco, and has an illustrated article on "Prehistoric Indian Ruins Found;" also one, "Among Head Hunters," with photographs. A number of Christmas stories and poetry also is given, and "Features of the Panama-Pacific Exposition," with photographs.

BOOK NOTES.

In launching the new World Library of Famous Books, the Harpers have published simultaneously eighty-seven volumes. This series is offered to meet the demand for good books which will take up little room, which are well printed, well bound, and sold at moderate price. Some of the best-known books in English literature are included—fiction, essays, poems, history, travel and children's classics. The longest novels are complete in one volume.

An "Advanced American History," by Dr. S. E. Forman, will be issued by the Century Company in the immediate future. "Beyond the Pasture Bars," a new school reader by Dallas Lore Sharp, the well-known nature writer, is also about to appear as an addition to the Century Company's "Wild Life Series of Graded Nature Books."

By permission of Houghton Mifflin Company the following books will shortly be printed in New York point for the blind: John Fisk's "New France and New England;" James O. Fagan's "Autobiography of an Individualist;" Dr. Grenfell's "The Adventures of Life;" and Henry Sydnor Harrison's "V. V.'s Eyes."

Among Houghton Mifflin's early December publications are announced: "The Wolf of Gubbio," a poetic comedy by Josephine Preston Peabody; "In Freedom's Birthplace," by John Daniels; "Auction Developments," by Milton C. Work; and a limited Riverside Press edition of "Washington's Farewell Address." The same firm announces Emma C. Dowd's "Polly of the Hospital Staff" in the seventh printing.

The Putnams are publishing Gilbert K. Chesterton's play, "Magic," which appeared in the Little Theater, London. The same firm has also just brought to publication "The Eagle's Talon," an adaptation by Helen Meyer of the French novel by Georges Ohnet, entitled "La Serre de l'Aigle."

Henry Holt & Co. expect to close their present year's publishing with a de luxe edition of Edward V. Lucas's "The Open Road," in its thirteenth American and its twentieth English edition. It has sixteen colored illustrations by Claude Sheppardson. The same firm will also issue in book form the three-act comedy, "Nowadays," by George Middleton, which has been accepted for production early in 1914 by Cohan & Harris. Early in January Ines Haynes Gillmore's first novel for adults, "Angel Island," will appear.

The MacMillan Company's list of lately issued and forthcoming books includes: "The Valley of the Moon," by Jack London; "The Stranger at the Gate," by Mabel Osgood Wright; "The Inside of the Cup," by Winston Churchill; "Tide Marks," by Margaret Westrup; "When I Was a Little Girl," by Zona Gale; "My Life With the Eskimo," by Vilhjalmur Stefansson; "White Ear and Peter," by Neils Heiberg; "A Mainsail Haul," by John Masefield; "Aphrodite and Other Poems," by John Helston; "Athens and Its Monuments," by Charles H. Weller; "A History of Land Mammals in the Western Hemisphere," by W. B. Scott; "The Gospel Story in Art," by John LaForge; "Organized Labor," by A. J. Portenar; "The Facts About Shakespeare," by W. A. Neilson; "The Fungi Which Cause Plant Disease," by F. L. Stevens.

The "Memoirs and Secret Chronicles of the Courts of Europe," with critical introductions by Dr. Richard Garnett of the British Museum, Leon Vallee of the Bibliotheque Nationale, Dr. Hamilton, Keeper of the Rolls; Oliver H. G. Leigh and Robert Arnot, M. A., are offered by McKinlay, Stone & MacKenzie of New York, in eleven volumes, full Persian Morocco bound, with illustrations in photogravure on Imperial Japan vellum. They include the memoirs of John Evelyn, Louis XIV, secret memoirs of the Court of Berlin, secret memoirs of the Princess Lamballe, memoirs of the Emperor Napoleon, and of the Comtesse du Barry.

A "Brief Biography and Popular Account of the Unparalleled Discoveries of T. J. J. See," the "Newton of Cosmogony," is recently issued by Thomas P. Nichols & Son Co., Lynn, Mass.

The George H. Doran Company of New York will shortly publish the first descriptive guide to South American countries ever issued. The work, entitled "The South American Tour," is by Annie S. Peck, of international fame as a mountain climber.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

By Genevieve Farnell-Bond.

Some few years ago a young artist sat at table in a goodly company of authors, poets, novelists and newspaper men, painters, sculptors, musicians, and, in fact, creative geniuses of all sorts, as well as the patrons of these arts and crafts. This young artist was a genius, and those present recognized the fact. But he was struggling against an economic current that threatened to sweep him away. Furthermore, he had never had the opportunity to develop his great gifts in the direction to make them of practical value to him. All of these men were members of a noted club on the Pacific Coast—a club in which the faaternal spirit has ever been active in the highest degree. Before the dinner was ended a fund of $4000 had been contributed to send the young artist abroad to pursue his studies. The artist, almost overcome by the generosity of his friends, arose, arose, and with a pained look on his fank, handsome face, said: "But, gentlemen—I cannot accept. I have an invalid wife." "My boy," said the leader among his friends, "we don't separate husband and wife. This is to pay her expenses as well as your own." It must have been the opening of the gates of Paradise to the gifted young man.

This artist has recently carried out of the vicinity of Los Angeles $10,000, and has left in place of this sum a number of strong, admirable works of art. Not so long ago, standing in the open with a famous author who lives in this city, he spoke of what the club had done for him, and of how much his training in Paris had mean to him. He had "arrived," and was now a power in the world of art on the Coast. 'And now," declared the artis, sweeping wide his arms, as if to embrace the lovely landscape before him, "I am going to paint the most beautiful thing I ever laid brush to—it is going to be my crowning work; and I shall present it to the club."

This is the spirit that has made the rooms of the famous club a center of beauty and delight to the eye. Each member able to contrive some object of art has given to his fraternity of his best. And it is because he has received from this royal fellowship the "best" in the way of comradely feeling. All of which goes to prove that a little human encouragement does not demoralize and enervate the best skill in brain, eyes and fingers, even if Balzac did do some of his noblest writing in a freezing garret with a blanket wrapped about his legs.

Cosmo Hamilton, the author of "The Door That Has No Key," believes in love at first sight. He flings a defi out to Locke, Mason, Barrie, Maxwell, Temple Thurston, Dion Clayton Calthrop, and even to the great Shaw himself. 'Don't you think that it is about time that one, at any rate, of all the modern,s the individualists, the new thoughtists, et hoc genus omne, has the temerity to be a little old-fashioned?" Mr. Hamilton asks plaintively: "Is it not time that one of us dares to be naive enough to make his hero do the heroic action so incredible but so natural, so impossible yet so frequent, as to look once upon a girl, and be ready from that moment to lay at her feet his heart, soul, brain and body, career and honor? I think so." Bravo, Cosmo! I could point out a number of heroes in real life who have fallen in love at "first sight," and who made no mistake about it, either. That is, if they did, they never found it out, which amounts to the same thing. We like to fool ourselves into accepting the conventional surface indices of things as life itself, and display a cheap cynicism concerning the reproduction of real life beneath the surface as represented by our best novelists. If we were to condense the occurrences in a single city during a single day, that never come to public notice, we would have a record whose grotesque, dramatic and even tragic qualities, whose unmatched romances would prove more startling than any product of imagination. It is the business of authors to know these things, and the raeder who pooh-poohs them, may be as ignorant as the resident of an eastern city who has never seen a mountain but presumes to ridicule the blazing splendor of the coloring in a painting of the Grand Canyon.

When I ventured to tell Edmund Mitchell that I compose everything, even poems, on the "machine," he was good enough not to say that they read that way. He simply smiled, and produced from the drawer of his desk twelve well-pointed lead pencils, which are always prepared the night before, in order not to interrupt a morning's work. "A decade, or two makes a big difference in an author's methods, and one forms habits," he declared. But verily, the typewriting habit may be forced upon one in the daily rounds of journalism, when there is no time for copying.

J. Henry Harper tells a story about the great artist Whistler, as related to Mr. Harper by Sir Henry Irving, which is not included in the just-published "Whistler Stories," by Don C. Seitz. And Mr. Harper does not state that it was told 'with blushes." It would seem that the great tragedian was sitting to the equally great painter for his portrait, and that the price had not been arranged beforehand. When the picture was almost finished, Sir Henry expressed great admiration and satisfaction, but added warily, that as he was not a man of means, he might not be able to meet the artist's ideas of recompense, naming the sum he was willing to pay. Mr. Whistler lifted the painting from the easel, and turned its face to the wall. Sir Henry departed pictureless. Years later Sir Henry came upon the portrait in a London antique shop, and it passed into his hands at a much lower price than he had originally offered. Picturesque economy!

Autographed copies of Agnes Edward's book, "Our Common Road," will be sold at a fair to be held early in December by the Wellesley Club of Washington, D. C.

George K. Stiles, author of "The Dragoman," was motoring back of Nice when he came upon a stranded auto. Mr. Stiles offered his assistance, as the chauffeur seemed unable to discover the trouble, and soon the car was working again. The "amiable-looking old gentleman" within was no less a personage than the King of Greece, who offered the author gold coin. When Stiles showed his government license, proving himself an American, His Majesty apologized, and offered him work in the royal garage! The discovery of Stiles's identity did not invalidate the offer, if Stiles should ever become tired of writing, and if "worst came to worst!"

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.

STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 20 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experience practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED work must not be classed with other readers. Do not waste money on the idiotic advice of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychists—those doing dishonest work.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States." Readings given by mail, also.

THE FUTURE.
WHAT HAS IT IN STORE FOR YOU?

The Wonderful English Savant,
S. F. STONE, 452 South Hill street,
Will Answer This Question.

HAS IT EVER OCCURRED TO YOU
WHY SOME PEOPLE ARE ALWAYS SUCCESSFUL AND OTHERS ARE FAILURES?

There is a reason.
It is because
They get in the right current.
They seek the right advice.

They strengthen their weak points.
They develop their strong points.
They develop an aura
That radiates life, energy, magnetism and poise.

They become magnets,
That draw to themselves all desirable success.

I POINT YOU THE WAY.

ADVICE ON ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Long Beach Woman Ris Life to Save Babe.

Sunset Yacht Club Holds I Annual Election.

LONG BEACH, Dec. 14.—A mother's daring today saved her infa from cremation, when Mrs. Edwar Koon dashed into her burning hom and snatching her six-months-ol baby from a blazing cradle bore to safety a minute before the fra sidewalls fell inward. Both escape injury.

Mrs. Koon lives in a Californi house on Freeman avenue and thi morning leaving the sleeping baby i the care of her older children Mrs. Koon went next door to a neighbor's to work on some Christmas sewing and the children soon wandered into the yard to play, leaving the baby in the crib.

Glancing out the window of the neighbor's house, Mrs. Koon saw smoke pouring from her home, and with a cry of alarm she ran the full length of the lot and plunged through smoke and fire to the crib of the half-stifled infant.

Swaddling it in its blankets Mrs. Koon ran from the house just as a crash told of the babe's close call. Ten minutes later the house was only smoking ashes. Firemen by hard work confined the flames to the one house, which with its contents is a total loss, probably about $1700.

CRIPPLE HAS TITLE.

The Board of Works today practically admitted that Jacob Strassheim, the aged cripple, who yesterday laid claim to half of Seventeenth street and built a board fence around the property, is legal owner of the strip and has the right to use it as he sees fit. A former road foreman, who was expected to prove that the property in question had been graded as a street before it was annexed to the city failed to make good, and it was shown that the street was graded four years ago after the city assumed jurisdiction and was not disputed by Strassheim, who at that time had no use for the strip. The board will ask the Council next Tuesday for leave to begin condemnation proceedings.

SAILORS ENTHUSE.

At the annual meeting of members of the Sunset Yacht Club last night J. W. Patterson and Eugene Overton, former members, announced that they could no longer stay out of the game and would be ready next spring with new boats flying the Sunset pennants. Patterson formerly owned the Enchantress and Overton the Arrow. In the election of officers, Commodore Mitchell was re-elected by a unanimous vote. Other officers are: C. F. Mears, vice-commodore; F. E. Muncey, rear-commodore; Charles Fink and J. C. Farnham, directors. The flag officers are ex-officio members of the board of directors. The secretary and treasurer will be elected on the return of Commodore Mitchell, who is now in Denver.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Four days after George Hollis, held by the police as a fugitive from justice, had been given a floater out of town because Galveston, Tex., authorities said they did not care to get out extradition papers for him, the police were notified this morning that a Los Angeles binding house wanted him. Hollis embezzled $300 from the Northern Texas Transfer Company, of which concern he was cashier. His present whereabouts are unknown.

A plan of Mayor-elect Wealton by which the city itself should bond the city officials, where required, and thereby save the premium now paid to various companies, has been found to be impracticable because of the short time granted for filing such bond and the officers-elect were notified today to seek their bonds as usual. It is understood that the bonds will be secured from different companies, and one agency will not enjoy a monopoly as has been the practice heretofore.

The response of the people to the petition to be presented to the Council, asking the countermanding of the request for bids for the wrecking of the auditorium, on the ground that it is destroying a $38,000 structure, which can be strengthened at a cost of $3600, has had its effect and it is probable that when the bids are opened on December 23, that they will be rejected and the question left for settlement by the incoming administration. Incumbent Councilmen indicated today that such would be their action and it will be so recommended by the City Attorney.

The seven business men appointed at Thursday's boost meeting of the harbor bond election, to act as an Executive Campaign Committee met at noon today and organized by electing William H. Wallace, vice-president of the Exchange Bank, chairman; J. A. Rominger, a real estate man, vice-president, and R. L. Bisby, secretary. Necessity for a prompt and complete educational campaign was the theme of the morning.

People living in the vicinity of Bixby Park were aroused at 1 o'clock this morning by screams for help. Phone calls to headquarters brought a detail of officers, but they found only an overturned bench in the park and signs of a scuffle on the ground. Opinion is divided as to whether the cries were those of a man or woman.

D. M. Rankin, incumbent Auditor, who defeated his opponent at the late primary by 1200 votes, but because his vote was not over 50 per cent. of the total vote cast, necessitating his standing for the office at the subsequent election, which resulted in his defeat by forty-four votes, has practically decided not to contest the office, asserting that the salary paid is not enough to worry over.

[illegible] Flock to San Joaquin Valley to Exchange Gold for Productive Soil.

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 13.—There has never been a time in the history of the Porterville district when there have been more land seekers searching for property than during the past two weeks. Owing to the financial condition most of the deals have been closed but tentatively. It is anticipated, however, that with general trade conditions improving throughout the Middle West trade in both alfalfa and orange lands will see a great revival.

One of the largest deals of the week was in the sale by Loyd Cornell of this city of what is known as the Vincent orange grove in the Lindsay district to William Brown, a retired business man of San Francisco. The grove includes twelve acres of oranges in full bearing and the tract brought the former owners approximately $20,000 cash.

LAND TRANSFERS.

Burgess & Sutherland, Putnam-avenue merchants, have closed for the purchase of a business block and accompanying realty in Main street, near Mill, from Morris Wolff, formerly of San Francisco and now of this city. The purchase was of a business lot 65x110 feet and a one-story, class B building covering the lots. It is stated that the price paid was $25,000. Burgess & Sutherland will move to the new location in July of next year, when the lease of the present tenants will expire.

E. Baker, one of the old residents of the Woodville alfalfa section, has closed a deal for the purchase of the quarter-section of dairy land known locally as the old Archer place. Baker declines to state the price paid. He has started extensive improvements on the property and contractors are now at work on new houses, barns and other buildings.

Clarence Bradbury, formerly of Southern California, has purchased from the Lindsay Alfalfa Company an eighty-acre tract of alfalfa land in the heart of the Poplar section. The price is said to have been approximately $12,000. Bradbury will make his home on the property and will probably move to the new place with his family to make his future home.

Mrs. H. R. Stevens has sold to the right of way department a tract of thirty acres of land situated on the main line of the Minkler Southern Railroad in the Exeter district. It is stated that the railroad paid $18,000 for the tract, which is all bare land. Definite statement has been made by the railroad people that they have no intention of using the land for townsite purposes. This is taken to mean here that the new railroad may establish shops there.

DEFECTIVE ROAD TO BE RELAID.

ORANGE COUNTY INVESTIGATION ENDS IN TROUBLE.

Miles of Newly-Improved Highway Drilled for Poor Work and Conclusion Is Reached that Only Spots Have Been Carelessly Done—Short News Stories.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 13.—Between 1200 and 1500 feet of concrete base near Bolsa will have to be torn up and relaid, and one or two spots on the road near Smeltzer will be given like treatment, as the result of the investigation made by Highway Commissioners M. M. Crookshank and D. C. Pixley and Chief Engineer D. S. Halladay of the commission. The few hundred feet near Bolsa met with condemnation because the concrete proved soft and the base was not full four inches thick. It is believed that the reason the concrete did not harden is that it was laid in hot weather and was not kept wet enough. This place is on C. E. Chamberlain's contract on section 1 of the Santa Ana-Huntington Beach road.

The second section is under contract to Rogers Bros., who have laid two and a quarter miles of concrete base. Last Tuesday the engineers discovered a crumbly place, and dug through it, discovering that the base was scarcely two and a half inches in thickness instead of four inches. The commissioners and chief engineer decided to test the entire two and a quarter miles of road to see if there was some unusual condition at the point where the hole was dug, or if the entire job was thin. Fifteen holes were dug along the roadway, with the result that the commissioners are satisfied that on a whole the base is right. One hole showed only a thickness of three and a quarter inches. Most of them showed four inches, and one four and a half inches.

The same templates were used on the entire job, and the engineers are satisfied that the thin spot was caused by the unintentional raising of the sub-grade. The sub-grade was wet after a rain, and pouring concrete evidently shoved up the sub-grade a few feet ahead.

The investigation is to continue on all the jobs, and the commissioners stand ready to fire any man shown to be incompetent. They declare that no inspector or engineer will prove an exception to their declaration.

Glenn L. Martin, the aviator, is using his biplane just as though it was an automobile. When he wants to call on his parents here, he hops into his machine, and presto! he is there. This morning, with Ross Stearns, his mechanician, as passenger, he flew from Pomona in twenty-five minutes, the distance being about twenty-three miles across lots. After taking dinner at home and spending a few hours here, he started for Griffith Park, that he might get his biplane under cover lest it be damaged by rain.

Today Martha M. Shaffer, a wealthy resident of North Main street, brought suit to quiet title to the Temple Theater in this city. Apparently the suit is just an ordinary quiet-title suit, but it has brought up a story that was current here at the time the theater was built, some five years ago. The story was that Mrs. Shaffer, a spiritualist, had built the building as a part of a plan to erect a spiritualist temple on her valuable property at the corner of Third and Bush streets, the theater to be a part of it. That is supposed to be the reason it was called the Temple Theater. Roberts is supposed to have secured a very liberal lease, and for a long while he ran a moving picture theater at the place, but finally changed to a better location. Roberts is now in Ocean Park.

GREAT HOTEL MAY BE BUILT.

Elsinore Will Lose if Bond Issue Fails.

Los Angeles Men Interested in Big Enterprise.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Killed by Automobile.

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 13.—A quarter-million dollar hotel and resort for Elsinore depends on the success of the county highway bonds, whose fate will be decided by the voters at an election to be held next Wednesday. The backer of the project is John S. Mitchell of Los Angeles, well-known hotel man and president of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association.

In a letter to Supervisor J. A. Crane of Elsinore, Mr. Mitchell says:

"I want to write you how pleased I was with my visit to your city. I was more surprised at the splendid development of Elsinore and the surrounding country, and I assure you I am taking the utmost interest in sending capital to invest in what I consider one of the most inviting projects in Southern California. I have talked with several on the subject during the last few days, and without exception they have spoken favorably of the proposed investment, but have insisted that it was necessary for them to await the result of the good roads election of the 17th inst.

"You will realize this is just one more reason why the good roads election should carry, and I sincerely hope all the people in your district as well as all over the county will vote for the bonds. They should be carried at least six to one, and such an action will be sure to interest outside capital."

LAD KILLED BY AUTO.

A distressing accident on Park avenue today resulted in the death of 8-year-old Carl Eldenberg, son of Mrs. C. J. Eldenberg. The lad attempted to cross the street to recover a plaything, and was struck by an automobile driven by D. W. Jewell, a rancher residing on Mary street. The driver explains that he expected the boy would turn back from the curb, but instead the lad kept on across the street, Jewell finding it impossible to avoid striking him. Death ensued in two hours, and was found to be due to concussion of the brain.

INCULCATING ESTHETICS.

Addresses delivered at a mass meeting held last evening, held under the auspices of the Outdoor Esthetics Committee, constituted a most effective appeal for co-operation on the part of citizens and city officials as well, in the interests of a cleaner and more beautiful city.

The methods used to convert apathy into activity were unique, the addresses being illustrated by stereopticon views not only of the more attractive homes, grounds and streets, but snap-shots of some surprisingly ugly spots not far from the civic center, views secured by the committee in a recent tour of the city.

Ethan A. Chase, the veteran orange grower, presided over the meeting, which was addressed by J. H. Reed, former tree warden; H. A. Hammond, Rev. Horace Porter and H. M. Loring, father of the Minneapolis park system, and who has made his winter home in Riverside for the past quarter of a century.

TRADES FOR ACREAGE.

Burlington Apartments and Other Los Angeles Property Exchanged for Large Tract Near Turlock.

The exchange of the Burlington apartments at Ninth and Burlington, together with other Los Angeles property, for 1000 acres of land near Turlock is reported by F. N. Hillegas, manager of the exchange department of the firm of Victor G. Kleinberger and F. H. Edwards. The Los Angeles holdings, formerly owned by J. L. Murphy, consisted of the apartments, with lease and furnishings, and of 145x150 feet and a private residence on Burlington avenue.

California Dry Association Is Flooding State with Appeals by Telegraph and Mail.

Great activity marked last week's campaign by the California "Dry" Association. According to Frederick Freeman Wheeler, chairman of the campaign committee, no fewer than 1300 telegrams—an average of more than 200 each business day—and 2000 telegrams daily were dispatched in the effort to promote a dry State by 1914.

"We have less than thirty days, said Wheeler yesterday, "to obtain the necessary signatures to place the question of State-wide prohibition on the ballot next year. We shall be doing something unprecedented in accomplishing it."

DEATH STOPS WHISTLING.

Driver Struck by Car While Crossing Tracks and Air He Practiced Swiftly Ended.

After trying fifty-two times to whistle an air correctly, J. Sanchez was stopped in his practice by death when his wagon was struck by a street car at Forty-first street and Moneta avenue, and he was instantly killed in the collision. Sanchez was a driver for the George R. Curtis Company.

While driving along Moheta avenue, Sanchez had been laboriously correcting an error in his whistling. He repeated the air over and over with tireless patience, noticeable to a pedestrian walking close to the wagon.

While devotedly improving his whistle, his horses started to cross the street car tracks, when they were struck by the car. Sanchez was ground between the car and wagon. He never recovered consciousness.

ORANGE DEAL PENDING.

Redlands Property Will Probably Change Hands at the Fancy Figure of $40,000—Brief News.

REDLANDS, Dec. 13.—Negotiations are pending and will probably be closed within a few days for the purchase by Edward S. Townsend of a residence and six acres of oranges for a reported consideration of $40,000. Gill & Rabbeth are the agents. The property is a part of the million-dollar estate left by Mrs. Charles Burton Saunders when she died in San Francisco two years ago. It is one of the show places of the Smiley Heights section, being situated between the homes of Mrs. E. C. Sterling and A. C. Burrage. The house contains fifteen rooms.

Edwin S. Townsend, the purchaser, is a wealthy New Yorker, who came here ten days ago to marry Miss Annie Kitching, daughter of A. P. Kitching, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend will sail for Honolulu next Tuesday and move into their new home on their return.

NEWS BRIEFS.

When Henry Miller, the actor, was here last night, he was asked if he had any ambition to become the owner of an orange grove. "No. I haven't," he informed the real estate man. "I have a farm in Connecticut that I keep going, but it takes all the money I can save. I love to live on my farm and boss the dogs and horses around there, but I find it expensive. I think I am a better actor than I am a farmer."

A special meeting of the Yucaipa Apple Association is to be held next Wednesday evening, the object being to discuss the advisability of making tomatoes an important crop in the valley. An official of the California Vegetable Union of Los Angeles will be present to answer questions. The meeting is the result of the profitable achievements in tomato culture made by Samuel Tinel at Yucaipa this season.

FINEST QUALITY.

COVINA, Dec. 13.—With the knowledge growing more and more definite that the Covina Valley will this year ship a finer quality of oranges than ever before in the history of fruit-raising in this portion of the valley, committees have been chosen from the various fruit-packing organizations, and from the Monday Afternoon Club of ladies and the Covina Commercial Club, to make plans for a winning exhibit at the San Bernardino National Orange Show, which comes in February.

The hot weather of September, and in fact, unusual heat through the summer, has caused the oranges to have a much smoother skin than in former years, so that "fancy" packs will be made in all the local packing-houses. All packing concerns will contribute fruit to the monster display that is planned. The Covina Valley, through F. R. Greenleaf, a local architect and rancher, has secured the first pick of places in the big show-tent, next to the main entrance. A triumphal arch of oranges will be erected, and there will be a unique design of enlarged photography.

A general committee was chosen yesterday, for the purpose of raising the necessary money to defray expenses. This committee consists of F. R. Greenleaf, Max Leonhardt, W. W. Nash, H. L. Marshall, W. M. Griswold, John O. Houser, Dey Rew, C. W. Tucker, Gordon C. Douglas and Joe Laycook.

MANAGERS ARE INVITED.

Manager W. M. Griswold of the Covina Fruit Exchange, has received word from Col. Weinstock, commissioner of the Industrial Accident Board, that all managers of citrus associations in Southern California are invited to hear an explanation of the Employers' Liability Law at the Blanchard Hall on Broadway in Los Angeles next Wednesday afternoon from 1 o'clock until 3 o'clock. Special attention is to be paid to the situation, as it will apply to the citrus industry. The board of directors of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange will be present.

S. E. Coons, a local bird fancier, won first prize on cockerels and first prize on pullets in the Rhode Island Red class at the Pasadena Poultry Show. V. R. Long won third prize on cockerel and fourth and fifth on pullets.

The Covina Lumber Company has purchased ten lots at the corner of Front street and Citrus avenue, and will use it as a lumber yard. The property was bought of A. L. Martin of Los Angeles.

Rev. W. W. Catherwood was again called as pastor at the annual meeting of the Covina Baptist Church.

Ben F. Thorpe, a grower of this place, has accepted the position of manager of the Canfield estate, in the San Luis Rey country, near Oceanside.

An invitation has been issued to the holders of the six-per cent gold notes and home certificates of the Los Angeles Investment Company to exchange them for par, with an adjustment of interest, for the capital stock of a corporation organized to take over the building at Eighth and Market streets.

It is proposed that in the event note holders representing $800,000 or more accept the invitation, a corporation will be formed under State laws with an authorized capital of $1,800,000, divided into 18,000 shares of the par value of $100 each.

The building in question is one of the finest in the city and is located in the line of westward development. It is a Class A structure and contains 340 offices, exclusive of the ground floor and other stories occupied by individual tenants.

ELECT NEW DIRECTORS.

SOUTH PASADENA, Dec. 13.—Twelve new directors for the South Pasadena Chamber of Commerce were elected last evening to conform with the amendment to the by-laws of the chamber, whereby the number of directors is increased from nine to twenty-one. The new directors elected were A. F. Leavitt, David A. Vail, Edward F. Hobert, T. E. Washburn, A. C. Ong, Don F. Gates, Burt S. Mull, Arthur Keetch, Wilbur J. Filley, B. D. Furlow, Elwood S. Gatch and John F. Gentle.

The board will meet for formal organization the second Thursday in January, and at that time officers will be elected and the chairman of standing committees will be appointed.

The chamber is planning to accomplish much work during the next year, and at the first meeting of the directors definite arrangements will be made. A thorough campaign for improvements for the city will be taken up and the organization will be much more efficient than before.

John S. Dodge, the president of the chamber, read his annual report. In part he stated that the chamber has just finished a successful year, with prospects of a better year the coming one. That the harmony existing between the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trustees was worthy of congratulation, and he gave it as his opinion that much of the civic improvements, which had been accomplished by the two bodies was due to the co-operation between them. He expressed his appreciation of the support which he, as president, had received from the members, and a unanimous vote of thanks for his efficient work was given him.

N. Ledgerwood, the secretary, read his report and he showed that the treasury was in healthy shape. He reported more than 200 members of the organization in good standing. A campaign to obtain new members was started and each of the directors pledged himself to bring in two new memberships at the next meeting. Seward C. Simons is acting secretary until the permanent one is elected, and he will send out the notices for the next meeting.

THREE DEATHS.

Three deaths from tuberculosis occurred in this city yesterday. The first was that of a child yesterday morning—Concha Perrez—at the home of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Santiago Perrez, No. 1023 Orange Grove avenue. The child was a native of Mexico, and besides her father and mother is survived by several brothers and sisters. The funeral services will occur Monday morning at the San Gabriel Mission Church, the priest in charge, officiating, with interment, following, in the San Gabriel Mission Cemetery.

Theodore Charles Jessop, late of Chicago, was the second victim. He had only been in this city one week. He was a native of Michigan and 27 years of age. He is survived by a widow, who is the daughter of Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles, and a small babe. Funeral arrangements are awaiting word from relatives in the East.

Mrs. Victoria Watson, wife of Alton D. Watson, passed away at her late home, No. 1514½ Mission street, yesterday afternoon, aged 29 years. She was of Spanish descent, but a native daughter. The body will be shipped this evening to Santa Barbara, where the funeral services will occur and interment take place. Besides her husband she is survived by four small children and a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Victoria Cota, and three brothers, all residing in Santa Barbara. The deceased had only lived in South Pasadena about four months, but has been a resident of Los Angeles county five years.

HAVE CHANGED THEIR MIND.

Men Charged With Robbery and Murder Ask for Attorneys and Date Is Set for Plea.

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 12.—When they were arraigned today in the Superior Court, Thomas Green and Paul Case, the two alleged bandits, who are said to have confessed the robbery of the Palo Verde Valley Bank at Blythe, Cal., and the murder of Cashier W. A. Bowles, asked for attorneys to defend them. Previously it had been reported that they would enter pleas of guilty. However, after attorneys had been appointed, Judge Densmore, at their request deferred for a week the entering of pleas.

Green and Case, formerly motion picture actors who had acted bandit roles in film dramas, were captured December 5, at El Centro. Nearly $4500, which was alleged to have been stolen from the Blythe bank, was found in their clothing when Sheriff Meadows and other officers burst into a lodging-house room, where they lay asleep. The robbery occurred December 2. Bowles, the cashier, was killed, while attempting to save the bank's gold.

OFFICIALS INJURED.

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 13.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] J. W. Mahon and Howard A. Peairs, judges of the Superior Court here, and Sheriff T. A. Baker went over an embankment at Cole's Levee, twenty miles south of this city, this morning. Judge Peairs's ear was nearly torn from his head and Sheriff Baker's shoulder was dislocated. Judge Mahon escaped unhurt. The injured men were brought to Bakersfield for medical treatment.

Successful Bazaar Closes.

The three days' bazaar of Christ's Episcopal Church, held at the Alexandria Hotel, closed last night with a large crowd and lively sales at practically all of the booths. The financial returns from the sale of cut flowers, fancy needlework, home-made candy and dolls were gratifying to the management. An interesting feature of the closing programme last evening was a dramatic reading by Mme. S. Lora Bona.

War Rumors and Christmas Reflections
Editorial.
By Alfred Noyes, English Poet and Peace Advocate.

There are two sides to every important subject. "THE FOLLY OF THE HAGUE," by Admiral Mahan, which appeared in a recent issue of the SEMI-MONTHLY MAGAZINE, created a great deal of comment on both sides of the Atlantic, and a reply to it by Mr. Noyes is a condensed study of the war problem from the standpoint of a Pacificist. It is a wonderful plea for Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men.

Bringing the Fairies to Broadway
A Story.
By Marie Louise Van Saanen.
Illustrations by C. Emerson.

This is not merely a story exquisitely told—it is a Christmas story woven about a man who hated the world, hated people and hated things—and a little child who led him—a child whose short life of seven years had always been gray, but whose wholesome sweetness worked a remarkable change in an old demon. If ever characters seemed able to step from the very lines—flesh and blood realities—they are little Amelia and the crazy old wood carver. It is a story to be read leisurely, and it is splendidly illustrated.

The Mad Miss Maturin
A Story.
By Robert Barr.
Illustrations by T. Victor Hall.

There is a little different twist to Lord Stranleigh's adventures in America in this issue. This most eligible man—nobleman—in modern fiction is called upon more than once to match his wits with Miss Maturin. The story is brimful of simple, unforced humor, and the breezy dialogues are refreshing. There is also an undercurrent of seriousness that makes it a well-balanced tale.

The Accusing Coin
A Christmas Poem.
By Edwin Markham.

This Christmas Parable by a Poet who stands among the highest on Parnassus is not only beautiful from a literary point of view, but carries and preaches a sermon to be remembered and taken to heart.

Eggs in the Vaudeville Basket
An Article.
By George M. Cohan.

What becomes of the actors who disappear? and other questions concerning the stage are often asked and left unanswered. Mr. Cohan, the popular actor and playwright, throws some sidelights on them in his interesting article.

The atmosphere surrounding the cover design is decidedly a holiday one. The mishap of the man who is trimming a Christmas tree is so cleverly handled by the artist—Charles A. MacLellan—that the good-natured laugh comes easily at his consternation.

Wonderful Development of Indian Wells Valley.

Four Years Ago Old Station Only Building There.

Now Thousands of Acres Are Under Cultivation.

BY F. L. DUNSPAUGH.

In these days of unparalleled development of the Southland the wresting of any particular parcel of our so-called desert wastes from the state of semi-aridity in which it has lain for these many years, is no unusual tale. But a recent trip through the region known as Indian Wells Valley has shown such wonderful progress and improvement as to be worthy of extended notice.

It must be remembered that prior to the extension of the Southern Pacific road through the valley, at the time of the beginning of the construction of the Los Angeles aqueduct, not an acre of the ground was held by private individuals, while over the entire 200 or more square miles embracing the valley there existed not a single human habitation, with the exception of the historic old stage station of Indian Wells.

Upon it becoming known that the road being built was eventually to become one of the principal transcontinental lines of the Southern Pacific system, and not mere temporary trackage, a rapid land-filing movement began and the entire area of reclaimable land was soon taken under desert and homestead claims. Then the usual transpired. Many of these early entrymen were mere speculators, while others were of the misguided ones who labored under the impression that merely filing upon government land spelled fortune, later to awake to the fact that filing really spelled obligation and further considerable investment. These elements, as is always the case, retarded real, active development at the start, so that it has been during only the last few years that true progress has been under way. When this is considered it makes the following record worthy of chronicle.

The Inyokern Land and Water Company, recently incorporated, is probably the largest single factor at work in the community, having already expended $60,000 to $80,000 in development operations. Their activities have now taken on the character that means the real intensive development of the community and the creation of values. In addition to their townsite, on which has been started the modernly-constructed town of Inyokern, they own or control 500 acres surrounding it, and have upward of 2000 acres under control in different parts of the valley.

LARGE WATER SUPPLY.

On these various pieces they have developed, or now are developing, water in large quantities, planting out acreage to deciduous fruits, alfalfa, etc., preparatory to subdivision in five to forty-acre plots. At Inyokern, with a water lift of about 230 feet, they have recently completed a fourteen-inch well, equipped with a Luitweiler deep-well pump, operated by a seventy-five-horsepower electric motor. This plant supplements an older one established about three years ago, which has been supplying the town of Inyokern and adjoining acreage since that time. The new well has been put in to take care of additional large acreage put out during last spring to deciduous fruits, principally apples and pears, this acreage being equipped with a modern underground concrete irrigation system.

The officials of the company have been developing one of their holdings five miles northeast of Inyokern for a trifle over two years. Here they have a twelve-inch well, with an eighty-foot water lift, operated under a two-step centrifugal pump, a thirty-horsepower gasoline engine, developing eighty or more miners' inches of water. There are forty acres out to alfalfa, on the 2-year-old ortion of which seven cuttings were got this season. At this place they are preparing to install a concrete irrigation system and to double the acreage now under cultivation.

The next largest group of individuals, working as a unit, is headed by Sam R. Smith, manager of the Crown Columbia Paper Company. Smith and his associates have five half-section claims one mile east of Brown in the northern part of the valley, to which they have recently obtained title. Their development investments total something over $50,000, and they have put down on different localities of the 1600 acres three twenty-four-inch wells, one with a 130-foot lift, another with a 100-foot lift and the third well with a seventy-foot lift.

They have at present three miles of twelve-inch concrete irrigation pipe, distributing water to the various parts of the ranch; concrete ranch buildings, and have for heavy work a forty-five-horsepower Caterpillar engine, besides horse and mule teams for lighter work. A large acreage is out to alfalfa, grains and deciduous fruits, and preparations are being made to inaugurate a colonization movement to place the entire 1600 acres under cultivation.

INDIVIDUAL HOLDINGS.

Among the many individual developments being done in the valley, it may be noted that eight miles east of Brown, C. C. Boynton & Sons of Los Angeles have a 640-acre holding, a twelve-inch well, a centrifugal pump, a twenty-horsepower gas engine, a concrete irrigation system, house and ranch buildings and have set out forty acres to alfalfa and trees.

Two miles east of Brown, M. M. Morgan, a Pomona orange grower, has a 320-acre claim, with a twenty-four-inch well, upon which he is preparing to install a deep-well pumping plant.

Seven miles east of Brown, C. T. Wachob, living on the place, has a twelve-inch well under a centrifugal pump, a fifteen-horse-power gas engine, producing forty miner's inches of water, and has twenty acres under cultivation.

Recently the 101 Bison moving picture concern has acquired a half-section about four miles northeast of Leliter, the station midway between Inyokern and Brown, and has just completed a twelve-inch well, preparatory to extensive development along alfalfa lines for feed for their live stock.

Five miles east of Brown is the 320-acre holding now owned by H. J. Kellum of Long Beach, on which there is a twelve-inch well equipped with a centrifugal pump with a thirty-horse-power gas engine developing sixty to eighty miner's inches, with forty acres under cultivation.

Three miles northeast of Leliter is the 320-acre holding of V. L. Carr: a twelve-inch well, a centrifugal pump and gas engine, with forty acres under cultivation.

Four miles east of Leliter are the holdings of J. W. Callaway, the oldest resident of the valley, who has several twelve-inch wells under pump, with gas-engine power.

Two and one-half miles northeast of Leliter is Edw. W. Svenson, formerly of Pomona, on his half-section, who has a twenty-four-inch well under pump with gas-engine power, and is preparing forty acres for alfalfa and fruit.

In the high Sierras, west of Brown, is San Canyon, well recorded in aqueduct history, as it was here that the only serious break in the line occurred. Here George F. Brown, godfather of the town of Brown, is expending several thousand dollars in the construction of concrete dams to conserve the surface and underground flows of water. He is constructing pipe lines from the dam sites to the thousand acres before the canyon that he and associates hold and are preparing for cultivation. One estimate of the amount of water possible to develop in this canyon has placed it as sufficient adequately to irrigate seven entire sections set to fruit.

INSTALL PUMPING PLANTS.

Judge Scott and James M. Linninger of Santa Ana are at present on their group of four claims five miles northeast of Leliter, equipping two twelve-inch wells with pumping plants and preparing ground for alfalfa and orchard.

One mile south of Brown, Charles A. Cover of Long Beach is equipping his ten-inch well with a pump, with gas-engine power, preparatory to setting out forty acres to deciduous fruits next spring.

At Leliter, E. C. Siebenthal has established a small mercantile business in connection with the postoffice, and with his sons has opened a machine shop. He is also one of the ever-busy well drillers in the valley, having half a dozen contracts ahead at the present time.

Five miles northeast of Inyokern is the half-section of Mrs. F. E. Galbraith of Hollywood. She has a twelve-inch well, developed by centrifugal pump, and a thirty-horse-power gas engine, a fifty-foot lift pumping sixty miner's inches. She has forty acres under cultivation. Here, also, is the half-section of A. R. Morrison, with twenty acres under cultivation.

Three miles northeast of Inyokern is the quarter-section of Jennie P. Morse, recently patented. She has a twelve-inch well with a 125-foot lift, and has twenty acres that are being cultivated.

One mile further east is the quarter-section of Harold N. Andrus, son of former Senator Andrus of Pomona. Andrus and his wife recently moved into a just-completed modern six-room bungalow. He is having a twenty-four-inch well drilled, and has a pumping plant ready for installation. He is preparing forty acres for alfalfa and orchard, with poultry raising as an adjunct.

Three miles east of Inyokern, John W. Joos and his two sons, Harry and Deputy Ristrict Attorney Joos, have one of the show places of the community. Their six-inch well is equipped with a pump, a 100-horse-power electric motor, and on a 200-foot lift are pumping from seventy-five to eighty miner's inches. On their 640-acre holding they have at present about 100 acres under cultivation to alfalfa, deciduous fruits and grains, and are preparing to install a concrete irrigation system.

Adjoining the Joos ranch on the east is the half-section of Joseph F. Ulery, a fuel and feed merchant of Pomona. Ulery also has a remarkable showing, considering that all his development has been accomplished in less than a year. On a 165-foot lift he is pumping 110 miner's inches and has forty acres planted to alfalfa, fruit trees, cotton, peanuts, sweet potatoes and other produce.

To the north of the Ulery holdings are the joint claims of Dr. Johnson and E. C. Martin, the latter a Pomona orange grower. From their sixteen-inch well, run by a seventy-five-horse-power electric motor, they are producing eighty miner's inches of water on a 160-foot lift and are distributing this over their 160 acres, set to apples, pears, plums and other deciduous fruits, through a twelve-inch irrigation system.

SETTING OUT ORCHARDS.

Three miles southwest of Inyokern, W. C. Northcraft is installing a deep-well pump on his twelve-inch well, with a 300-foot lift; building a new home, constructing a reservoir, and generally preparing for setting out an orchard next spring.

Dr. Fairbanks of Los Angeles, on his half-section a mile and a half northwest of Inyokern, has installed a pump in his twelve-inch well, operated by a sixty-horse-power electric motor. With a 290-foot lift he is pumping forty miner's inches of water. Forty acres are set out to deciduous fruits, and he is preparing to install a cement water distributing system.

Ten miles northeast of Inyokern, E. G. Smale and Louis F. Stevens, Santa Monica bean ranchers, have, on each of their half-sections, installed pumping plants with gas engine power on their twelve-inch wells, and each is preparing forty acres for alfalfa. West of them, Rev. J. L. Parks, formerly pastor of the Second Brethren Church of Los Angeles, has equipped his twelve-inch well with a centrifugal pump and has twenty acres under cultivation.

Immediately south of Park, M. J. Moore has 480 acres, recently patented, on which he has two twelve-inch wells, connected to one centrifugal pump, with a twenty-horse-power gas engine on a thirty-five-foot lift.

A mile southeast of the Moore ranch, George W. Rowe of Pomona has just completed a twelve-inch well and is installing a pumping plant and preparing forty acres for planting to alfalfa and fruit trees.

A mile or two further south, Frank W. Wire of Pomona, on his half-section, has a twelve-inch well, equipped with a pumping plant, and has forty acres under cultivation. Cornering on his holding, I. W. Roller has a 160-acre claim, on which he has a twelve-inch well. Thirty acres are set to apples, pears, cherries, peaches and other deciduous fruits.

Emery R. Yundt, president of the State National Bank of Pomona, has recently completed a twenty-four-inch well on his half-section, seven miles northeast of Inyokern, and is equipping it with an electrically-propelled deep-well pump. Dr. C. E. Smith of Pomona is doing the same on his sixteen-inch well on the half-section south of Yundt.

City Attorney Guerin of Pomona, on his half-section south of Smith, has had a pump in operation by electric motor on his twelve-inch well, and has forty acres set to trees, alfalfa and other crops.

Adjoining Guerin's land on the south, Valentine Hetzel of Los Angeles drilled a twelve-inch hole 800 feet deep, a few years ago, in an unsuccessful attempt to penetrate a blue-clay formation in the anticipation of developing an artesian flow. Since then he has equipped the well with an electric-motor-operated pump, and has forty acres under cultivation.

GROW DECIDUOUS FRUIT.

Carrie F. Kauffman and George F. Guy, both of Los Angeles, on their adjoining half-sections, six miles northeast of Inyokern, have each a twelve-inch well, equipped with electrically-operated pumps, and have forty acres each set in to deciduous fruit orchards.

Five miles east of Inyokern, S. A. Arbuthnot of Pomona and S. A. Gibbony have a sixteen-inch well, under an electrically-operated pump, supplying their adjoining land by a cement irrigation system. Each has forty acres planted to deciduous fruits, principally apples.

Cornering on the Arbuthnot land is the quarter-section of H. D. Blanchard of Covina, on which is installed a motor-driven pump on a twelve-inch well, supplying water for irrigation of his forty-acre apple orchard.

South of the Blanchard holding is the half-section of Laprevote brothers, with a twelve-inch well. Forty acres are devoted to orchard, alfalfa and other produce. Further south, about nine miles from Inyokern, the Robertson brothers, formerly of Los Angeles, have recently obtained title to their 480-acre holdings. They have fifty acres under cultivation.

Adjoining their lands a coterie of Los Angeles people, headed by Joseph P. Bowman, with the Layne & Bowler Pump Company, has commenced an extensive development of the 1600 acres they hold. Their first operation of sinking a twenty-four-inch well is now under way.

The above record does not include the other wells drilled throughout the valley on which as yet no pumps have been installed. That, in most cases, however, is a matter of the near future. These, to the number of fifty-eight twelve-inch, one sixteen-inch and three twenty-four-inch wells, await a later installation of pumping plants. In addition, the drilling rigs operated by the Lindsey brothers, E. C. Siebenthal and the Inyokern Land and Water Company are booked ahead with from three to six contracts each.

Nor can this account contain extended reference to the numerous comfortable homes and the large number of busy homesteaders in the valley, but the record of their existence is seen in the two schools maintained and a new $2500 church building recently completed at Inyokern. A woman's social club has been in existence for more than a year, and the first steps are now being taken to bring all the landholders together in an association in which united efforts will benefit.

This locality suffered—as all communities do along a new line of railroad—in being burdened the first two years with unfair and excessive freight rates; but last spring, with the Owens Valley people, further north, a complaint, by the people, was made to the State Railway Commission. The result was a reduction of rates from 10 per cent. to 50 per cent. over the old tariffs.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS GOOD.

The winds, which the writer, a few years ago, thought might be a serious obstacle to development, are not, according to those who have actually been growing crops, any serious handicap. Another somewhat surprising fact, is that the dreaded summer heats are to a great extent mythical. A complete record during the past summer shows that at no time was there a higher temperature than 110 degrees, and that during a few days only in August and September. The night temperatures always dropped to 80 deg. or under. While to an easterner 110 deg. may sound torrid, the fact is that the elevation of 2500 feet, coupled with the lack of humidity, makes such a temperature at the worst one only of discomfort, and the heaviest outside labors are carried on at all times with but undue inconvenience.

The oldest trees in the valley are those planted three years ago at Inyokern, in an experimental orchard. A few each of peaches, pears, apricots, cherries, plums, almonds, quinces, figs, with locust and eucalyptus for windbreak purposes, were planted. The figs, peaches, almonds, quinces and apricots came into bearing last season, when only two years old; and this season the pears, cherries and plums yielded an excellent quality of fruit. The figs, however, suffered from the excessive cold of last winter, and are probably out as a commercial possibility.

Cotton, peanuts, grapes, sweet potatoes, alfalfa Kaffir corn and Egyptian wheat, have all been demonstrated as commercial possibilities. The elevation of 2500 feet gives the requisite climatic conditions for the creation of an ideal deciduous fruit locality.

The electric power furnished the community is supplied by the Southern Sierras Power Company, whose main transmission line from Bishop to San Bernardino runs through the valley. The installation of a $30,000 transforming station and the building of local distributing lines, give the people a convenient and cheap power for the operation of pumping plants.

The point most impressive in the community is the fact that all the evidence confirms the assertion that now, when the natural conditions have been proved to exist for its development into one of California's most beautiful and most productive valleys, the people have the most necessary of all requirements, namely, a sufficient number of sturdy folk at work to bring about its full development. It is no idle statement to say that Los Angeles has added another unit to her back country, and that success again attends the man, who will dare and do in this land of abundant opportunities.

This growth, made virtually within a period of two years, is phenomenal even for this land of rapid growth, and justifies the slogan of enthusiastic landholders in the community of "Indian Wells Valley—the Northern Imperial."

Santa Ana.

NEW EDEN IS FOUND NEAR ORANGE COUNTY CAPITAL.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 13.—One of the greatest examples of raw land regeneration to be seen in the entire State is located about five miles east of this place—a district known as Lemon Heights. Riverside has her justly notable citrus district, and there are some wonderful little foothill plantings in the Riverside section, but nothing in the citrus belt of California rivals the beauty of the newly-developed lemon tract just east of this city.

The plot consists of 500 acres of lemon trees that are from 1 to 3 years old, and 250 acres more are to be planted soon. When the entire planting has been completed, the district will have in the neighborhood of 800 acres of citrus trees growing where nothing but sagebrush, cactus and rattlesnakes throve three short years ago. When the development of the tract was begun the land was bought, as a slice from the Irvine ranch, for $75 an acre. Today it could not be obtained, from its wealthy and proud possessors, for $2000 an acre. Mrs. A. Waffle, a woman who owns a fifty-four-acre plot in the district, was approached some weeks ago by a real estate man having a buyer who said that he would stand up to $2000 an acre for Mrs. Waffle's holdings. The agent approached Mrs. Waffle cautiously and intimated that he had a buyer for the tract. The woman asked what the man would pay.

"Would you take $2000 an acre for the whole grove?" was the agent's come-back. It is said that Mrs. Waffle merely whirled upon her heel and inquired:

"Do I look as though I had entirely lost my mind?"

One view of Lemon Heights is almost enough to convince the most skeptical person that Mrs. Waffle made no great mistake in refusing to consider the offer, for it is one of the most inspiring sights to be seen in Southern California.

The dull dun hills roll themselves into high hummocks east of Santa Ana, and it is among those hills that a group of wealthy people have planted the groves which are destined to make the citrus industry of this county more famous than ever. Three years ago the raw sagebrush hills rattled with reptiles. Somebody saw possibilities in those hillsides, however. About $300 per acre was spent in developing the hillside tract, and today the owners snub up their noses at offers of $2000 per acre. And why not?

From the base of their dun-colored hills the owners of the land have built winding automobile drives to the top, much after the fashion of the road to the top of Mt. Rubidoux at Riverside. From the crest of the hills can be seen the largest privately owned bean ranch in the world; the greatest sugar beet district in the West, the warehouse from which are shipped more English walnuts than go out from any other single warehouse in the world, fifteen or twenty miles to the west rolls the majestic Pacific, the playful waves of which lash a pebbled strand where children play, bare-footed, from one year's end to the next; in the valleys below, thousands of acres of golden Valencias smile upon the plump-pursed population of Orange county from day to day. On top of each hill is a handsome Spanish-style, or Swiss structure designed for the abode of the fortunate possessor of the land it occupies.

This, then, is the sort of place Lemon Heights is. It is a country place unsurpassed by Pasadena or Riverside, and the day is not far distant when its name will be commoner to fair fame than the name of Smiley Heights at Redlands. In fact, it looks very much to the casual observer as though the people who had the most to do with it fashioned this tract after Smiley Heights, knowing full well that a replica of the famous residence place at Redlands could not do else than bring fame to Orange county.

The land cost $75 an acre in the beginning, the water rights cost $100 an acre—for it takes money to lift water to the top of those hills—the trees—seventy-five to the acre—cost $1 each, and the road building, surveying and irrigation piping cost approximately $50 an acre; but all these items of expense did not stop the parties who set out to put Lemon Heights on the map. They had the wherewithal, and the job was done up in fine shape. Today one can stand at the top of any one of a dozen hills, stir with his foot a sixty-foot strata of rich hillside "wash" loam and look off across nearly 1000 acres of as healthy a bunch of young lemonade trees as ever grew in the State. On top of these hills live some of the owners of the estates, and there will the other owners reside as soon as they can build their nests. There is no prettier spot in Southern California than Lemon Heights. Fame will come to it as the years pass. Meanwhile the world will envy C. E. Utt, John Cubbon, Robert Simon, A. S. Marcey, William Parridge, A. H. Lyon, Mrs. Waffle and others of the fortunate owners of the beauty spot of Orange county.

Santa Ana.

EXPERT SAYS FROZEN VALENCIA HAS A VALUE.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 13.—A. H. Lyon, who owns countless productive acres of Orange county citrus trees, and has had a lifetime of practical experience in growing oranges and lemons, is known locally as "the Valencia king," made a discovery last spring which may be of inestimable value to citrus growers in the event that another freeze, such as the one which hit the citrus groves last winter, should happen along. He has discovered that a frozen Valencia can "come back."

In an interview with several citrus experts who visited the Lemon Heights district Friday, Lyon expressed the belief that he unnecessarily threw away a $4000 crop of Valencias at his Fourth-street ranch last winter, only to discover later that the fruit was worth at least $3 a box, net, orchard run.

"After the freeze in January," declared Lyon, "my trees looked as though Jack Frost had put them down for the count, so I started a bunch of pickers in the twenty-acre orchard just east of town, and had the fruit snipped off and thrown upon the ground. There were deep furrows plowed in all the middles between the rows, and the frosted oranges were tossed therein, and turned under shortly afterward for fertilizer. It looks now as though I put a big lot of expensive fertilized in the grove, for it would seem that I threw away the biggest end of a most bountiful crop of Valencias.

"As it turned out, I let the pickers unload the trees until they came to the last two rows in the grove. About that time an idea dawned upon me. I wondered if any of the fruit would amount to shucks if I left it on the tree a while, and to settle the question, I had the pickers skip the last two rows. That was along about the middle of January, when everybody was unloading trees to give the nipped orchards a chance to recover before the beginning of next season, and there are some who thought that I was making a mistake by leaving the fruit upon the trees.

"In February, I examined some of the oranges and they didn't look half bad, I thought. One day in Santa Ana I met a friend who has been buying oranges from me for years. He was on the trail for fruit, particularly oranges, so I mentioned the fact that I had a few trees containing some Valencias that actually looked as though they would grade up fairly well. When I asked him to make me an offer for the fruit and pick and pack it himself, he said that he would give $3 a box for all the Valencias that would make the No. 1 grade, and $2 for the No. 2 quality, the lower grades to be classed as culls. A bargain was made and he went to work.

"That ended the affair, so far as I was concerned, for I thought no more about the fruit—in fact I was away for a time—but when I got home I received from the packer a check for about 200 boxes of No. 1 Valencias. The packer told me that there wasn't a full-grown orange in the patch that did not make the No. 1 grade with ease.

"So, then, the indications are that a good many growers needlessly threw away their crops last winter—especially the growers of Valencias—for my experience would seem to prove that the Valencia will renew itself, or come back to a normal condition, even though it be subjected to a disastrous period of low temperature. I account for the fact that my Valencias did not wither and dry up last winter by calling attention to the fact that we had several cloudy days and no bright sunshine immediately following last winter's freeze.

"The cloudy weather gave the oranges a chance to thaw out gradually. The juice globules, being less susceptible to freezing temperature than the globules of a navel orange, were not fractured, and the amount of it was that my fruit—at least that part of it which was not converted into fertilizer—recovered from the cold snap, and, instead of drying up, went on, filled out, ripened naturally, and brought me $3 a box, net. In case of another hard freeze, I should not wonder if it would be wise for us all to give the Valencias a chance to renew their freshness, before consigning them to premature graves."

McKittrick.

WILL OPERATE OLIG STATION.

STANDARD PLANT, IDLE SINCE BUILT, TO HANDLE OIL.

Company Contracts With Reward Company for Million Barrels of Petroleum—Much Significance Is Attached to Big Concern's New Departure.

M'KITTRICK, Dec. 12.—The Standard Oil Company contracted with the Reward Oil Company for the purchase of 1,000,000 barrels of petroleum, and is preparing to operate, for the first time since its construction, six years ago, the Standard station at Olig.

While the price to be paid for the Reward company's oil has not been made public, it is stated that the figure is not less than that heretofore received for the product of the Reward wells. The Olig station is to be provided with an additional boiler and other equipment, and a force of men is engaged in laying pipe, so that the work of receiving and forwarding may be expedited.

Much significance is attached to the action of the Standard in entering the McKittrick field and commencing operations at a plant which was built at large cost and permitted, for reasons not known, to remain idle so long. While the plans of the Standard management have not been divulged, it is thought the entry of the company into the district presages developments in which the acquisition of the product of other corporations may prominently figure.

The Olig station, which is situated but a short distance from the terminus of the Southern Pacific and the stations of the Producers' Transportation and the Associated Pipe Line companies, has always been an object of interest to the people in this portion of the oil fields on account of its never having been used.

The Reward Oil Company, of which P. E. Bowles, Sr., is president, and P. E. Bowles, Jr., superintendent, has its headquarters in San Francisco, and is one of the largest operators in the McKittrick field. There are a number of good producing wells on the company's lease at the north end.

Interest in the possible results of the Standard's invasion of this territory is strengthened by the knowledge that within the past few days it has closed contracts for great quantities of oil with the Monte Cristo, the Creceus and the Le Blanc companies, and the general sentiment among operators is that indications favor an early marked improvement in the oil situation and possibly an advance in prices during the ensuing year.

The shutting-down of many wells by some of the larger and smaller companies, recently, and the consequent reduction in output and lessening of petroleum in storage, is cited as a leading factor in the long-hoped-for change in the conditions caused by the bringing in of gushers and the over-production, which far exceeded requirements of the trade.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The long lines of crowding, jostling property owners waiting impatiently day after day in an upper corridor of the City Hall for the muttered "Next!" which means that the family man or woman nearest in rotation to the clerk with the assessment stamps may step up and get a bill for the Hollywood sewer work, are an object lesson in municipal stupidity that should not be permitted to pass unnoticed. These weary men and women, some of them worried almost sick for fear they will not get their assessments paid off in time to escape the severe penalties that the law attaches to financial delinquency of this character, are enjoying a special favor from the city of Los Angeles in even being permitted to pay their money at the City Hall. Until the Council took an interest in the whole sorry business, these assessed were compelled to throng their way into a little room in a downtown office block, there to await the pleasure of two or three languid clerks whose function, according to many observers, appeared to be that of delaying the public. The city fathers out of sheer goodness of heart set aside a place in the City Hall in which the lines might form and delegated a number of municipal employees to help out in the assessment work.

Such monkey work as this (and that is exactly what, in the parlance of the street, it is) should be stopped. There is no sense in a management which could make possible such a scene as may daily be witnessed in the City Hall, where the never-lessening crowds throng past clerks who are being paid by the public to do other and necessary work. Conditions that permit such humiliations as were endured by the taxpayers from the northwest section of the city before the Council came to the rescue are intolerable.

What Are Stamps For?

Do the gas and electric light companies ask patrons to stand in long lines while their clerks make out the various bills that are to be submitted? Many crimes have been charged to the gas corporations, but this isn't one of them. Does the grocer expect his customers to give over hours and hours of time to the ferreting out of their indebtedness for goods ordered? Would a privately owned and operated business of any kind on earth refuse upon request to mail a tabulated statement of obligations upon the part of those whom it had served? Huh! Bills and statements are things that come to most of us without any solicitation on our part.

Why in the world shouldn't the city government, which, if it isn't engaged in handling the public's business hasn't an excuse for existence, do things on a business-like basis? If a property owner owes the city, directly or in the person of a contractor, a payment or payments for service rendered on public work, it is the plain duty of the municipality to send him a bill, the same as a private corporation would send one. The city has the books and the figures and these have to be consulted anyhow. It's the city's business.

A two-cent stamp would do the work that now must be accomplished through hours of tedious waiting in a line at the City Hall, or, as is generally the case, in some contractor's office. There isn't a single argument of economy or efficiency to be brought to bear in favor of present conditions, and the thing is getting on the nerves of the people who have to pay the assessments.

Hopeful Sign.

The only improvement yet introduced in the haphazard, systemless plan of operations that prevails in Los Angeles was inaugurated a few months ago when an ordinance was passed providing that all that were to be called upon to pay assessments should be notified by postal card that such and such an improvement was to be made and that they were to be assessed for it. This helps a little, for it isn't everybody that has the good luck to stumble onto the telephone post that happens to be adorned with the particular "Whereas" and "Be it resolved" style of placard which may proclaim the intent of the city to carry out work in which he or she may be directly interested. It makes a man peevish, as well it may, to suddenly discover that his lot or home is in danger of being requisitioned for the satisfaction of a lien covering some improvement he has never even heard of.

These newly authorized notification cards are sent out a year or thereabouts in advance of any definite action, as a rule, and serve at least to keep the recipient in a mood of anticipation. It is a step in the right direction and the City Council should not stop until the whole muddle is simplified and a real system evolved. The property owners have suffered the indignities of the old scheme of things long enough. Here's an opportunity for the present incumbents of municipal office to make theirs a real business administration.

Palatial dwellings for picturesque sites.

Three of the handsomest and costliest residences planned in Southern California during the year that is now drawing to a close.

For Picturesque Settings.

NEW SHOW PLACES ADD TO SOUTHLAND'S FAME.

Plans Completed by Los Angeles Architects for Three Palatial Country Homes—Texan to Build an Italian Mansion in Oak Knoll—Beautiful Dwellings to Overlook San Juan Capistrano.

THREE of the costliest and sightliest country dwellings planned in Southern California during the present year are pictured on this page. The perspectives, prepared by the architects of these new residence show places especially for The Times, have an unusual interest in that they show three distinct architectural conceptions upon the part of designers whose work has become famous. It is houses such as these that are causing Southern California to be known the world over as the land of palatial homes.

All three places will occupy sites of more than ordinary picturesqueness, one being set in the midst of the natural live oak forests of Oak Knoll, and the other two almost in the shadow of the old mission of San Juan Capistrano. It is their almost universal charm of setting, as well as the characteristic variety of architectural treatment, that gives to the country estates of the Southland their individuality and their claim upon the country's recognition.

The new Oak Knoll mansion will crown an elevation in the heart of that fashionable residence district. The dwelling is to be erected by Henry C. House, a millionaire banker and lumberman of Houston, Tex., who recently purchased the site for approximately $45,000. This deal was one of the largest transactions of the year in the Oak Knoll section and was handled through the agencies of J. W. Wright & Co., of Pasadena, and John D. Reavis of the California Land and Water Company of Los Angeles. On the six-acre plot of ground acquired, the wealthy Texan is to build a palatial dwelling costing, with the outlay for landscaping, in the neighborhood of $60,000.

The architectural firm of Hunt and Burns is preparing plans for the place, which is to follow the Italian Renaissance style and which will have a frontage of 125 feet by a general depth of fifty feet. Broad terraces will lead to a formal garden on the south. Both houses and garden will be surrounded by orange trees, while at the west end of the ground to be terraced is a magnificent live oak with a spread of eighty feet.

Under this great oak will be a living porch twenty-five feet square, with fine mountain and valley views. To the east of the main hall will be the dining-room, breakfast-room, palmroom and the serving wing, while to the west will be the living-room and den. Above the carriage porch will be a billiard-room. The second floor will contain five bedrooms, each with dressing-room and bath, a sitting-room, sewing-room and a large sleeping porch. The main part of the first story will be finished in mahogany and other hardwoods, the second story being in white enamel.

The exterior will be plastered. The terraces will be of reinforced concrete and the balustrades of stone. The garage, laundry and servants' quarters will be at the rear of the grounds, being screened from general view by a heavy growth of trees and shrubbery.

The tract acquired by the Lone Star State capitalist is situated at the northeast corner of Oakland avenue and Woodland road. It is a portion of the original homestead from which the exclusive Oak Knoll suburb was created and was long ago lavishly planted with trees and rare shrubs. More than half the plot is covered with full-bearing navel orange trees, and a variety of deciduous fruits. The rest of the site is thickly dotted with giant oaks. In describing the site yesterday, one of the architects declared that nature rarely affords such an opportunity for a graceful transition from the formal and artificial to the natural and picturesque in so limited an area as is to be found in the tract acquired by the Houston man.

ON HISTORIC RANCH.

An elevated site, a magnificent panorama of mountain, valley and ocean and the near proximity of the old San Juan mission all contribute to make the setting of the beautiful home to be erected by John Forster at San Juan Capistrano an ideal one. The immediate grounds of the place, thirty acres in extent, are a part of the historic old Forster ranch, which was the domain of the late Don Marcus Forster, an early Californian and Southland pioneer.

The Forster house will follow the mission style of architecture, many of the details being adapted from the near-by mission ruins. Arthur B. Benton, designer of many of the finest structures in this style in Southern California, is the architect.

The dwelling will be of reinforced concrete contruction and fireproof. The main house will be 86x30 feet in size, the kitchen wing being 20x30 feet. The roofs will be of mission tile. One of the charming features will be a patio measuring 68x90 feet in dimensions and surrounded by pergolas.

The first floor hall will be 12x30 feet and will contain a circular stairway to be carried upward through a bay overlooking the entire country around. The living-room will be 20x32 feet, the sun parlor 10x27 feet and the dining-room 18x20 feet. Other first floor rooms will be a den, break-

FINANCIAL HYPNOTICS.

Men of money! Is it possible that you have allowed the BANKS to hypnotize you into holding your money idle, when both your personal interest and public policy demands its employment? Under normal financial conditions, a five-line ad in THE TIMES probably would bring at least a dozen purchasers for the following. But, were the conditions normal, such a proposition would not obtain; hence this is your "opportunity." We offer 1870 acres for $95,500; secured lease on same for five years, pay $9350 yearly and lessee pay taxes; hence 10 per cent. NET. Easy terms. No doubt it will command at least $150 per acre within five years; indeed, tracts of 160 acres in San Joaquin Valley have already sold at that price. Can you afford to pass it by? W. A. VARCOE & CO., 349 Edgeware road.

FOR SALE— Country Property.

FOR SALE—
Are you aware of the fact that you can now purchase country property near San Diego at about one-third the price you would pay around Los Angeles? San Diego has about eighty thousand people and has been enjoying a wonderful growth. Of course the city will be much larger than it is today. Prices in the country have not advanced like they have in the city. Of course, country property here is much cheaper now than it ever will be again. I can furnish you large and small tracts, improved and unimproved, suitable for growing all the crops that will thrive in this wonderful climate. Here are three samples.

No. 1.—$12,800. This tract is twenty-three miles east of San Diego and about eight miles from railroad station, but only one mile to country store and postoffice. Good road all the way to San Diego. Unimproved property about five miles nearer San Diego is held at $250 an acre. Note this land is only $40 an acre. I would prefer the $40 an acre land, even is I had to pay the same price for it. Frankly, I consider this the cheapest three hundred and twenty-acre tract in San Diego county. I believe an examination would make you just as enthusiastic as I am. Perhaps one hundred acres creek bottom and suitable for alfalfa. Another one hundred acres good fruit and grain land. This makes a total of two hundred acres that can be cultivated. Abundance of water available. Groves of majestic live oaks and sycamores. Favorable terms.

No. 2.—$8000. This is a mountain ranch of four hundred and sixty-five acres, about forty miles east of San Diego and located at an elevation of some three thousand feet. Owner estimates some one hundred and sixty acres suitable for cultivation. Only one mile from small town. The location is superb and I doubt if the climate is surpassed in all the world. Running water and springs and beautiful live oaks scattered over place. Adjoining this land, I have a tract of a little less than seven hundred and fifty acres at twelve dollars an acre. These places could be sold separately or in one body. Choice land for fruit, grain and a good stock ranch. I would be pleased to have you confirm my judgment and my statements by making an examination of this property. The facilities of my office are at your service and an automobile is at your disposal.

No. 3.—$60,000. This improved ranch of two thousand acres is about fifty miles north of San Diego and near the inland boulevard to Los Angeles. Fine boulevard all the way to San Diego and magnificent scenery that will delight the eye, with a climate that will please you the year around. This is really a wonderful California ranch. Owner estimates twelve hundred acres suitable for cultivation. The soil is very fertile and all crops grown in California would flourish. Abundance of water available and several fine springs in favorable locations. Groves of live oaks and sycamores are conveniently disposed. Good house and substantial outbuildings. Several hundred acres now in cultivation. Seven miles to nearest railroad station, but only two and one-half miles to proposed extension of Santa Fe, now partially completed. I do not know where you can duplicate the proposition. I am enthusiastic and so will you be if you examine the land, at least such is my belief. Favorable terms.

BIG INCOME PRODUCER.
ONE OF THE FINEST RANCHES
IN THE ENTIRE STATE.

We are authorized to offer for a client who has recently come into a large property in Canada and must leave to make his home there, one of the finest and most productive places in California.

The properties consist of 165 acres, close to Sultana and Dinuba, in the Tulare county citrus and table-grape district, one of the wealthiest and most prosperous sections of the entire state.

Every acre of the property is improved to the very highest degree into oranges, table grapes and alfalfa.

The buildings, tools and equipment are absolutely of the best. There is nothing finer in the country.

The income this year, with a short crop in some of the varieties of grapes, was over $14,000.

Every indication points to bumper crops next year, and this place should produce $25,000.

In order to sell quickly, we offer this place as a whole for $90,250.

We can divide this place and arrange suitable terms.

We also have a number of fine 10, 20 and 40-acre improved and unimproved places in Fresno county at splendid bargain prices.

Good Alfalfa Land
Where Alfalfa Brings Highest Prices.

Did you ever notice how little good alfalfa land directly in the Los Angeles territory was ever advertised or offered for sale? The reason is that the owners know they have the best kind of a farming proposition.

Th freight rate to ship hay a hundred miles would pay good interest on $450 an acre. Therefore good alfalfa land close to Los Angeles, at $450 an acre is cheaper than land for nothing, a hundred miles away.

Good land, well located, moderate prices. See

"IS THE CREAM OF"
Orange, lemon, avocado and walnut land subdivisions.

It is located in close proximity to the celebrated Whittier district, 16 miles east of Los Angeles, and it is being sold in planted and unplanted tracts of 5 acres and up.

There are approximately 175 acres of this property which was set out to Valencia oranges, Eureka lemons and Marsh seedless grapefruit during the spring of 1912 by the owners of the property. The trees were furnished by Pollard Bros., and are the best that money could buy. They have had the best of care since they were planted by our force of orchard experts.

Now is the time to secure one of these young planted orchards at a cheap price as the prices on these young planted groves will be raised early in the year of 1914.

Buy where experienced orange and lemon orchardists are buying and you can't go wrong. We are confident that if you once see the property you will desire a portion of it for yourself. Trips to the tract daily. Call, phone or write for descriptive folder.

WILL HAVE BIG GASOLINE PLANT.

UNION TO INCREASE CAPACITY OF NEWLOVE COMPRESSOR.

Second Unit Will Mean Total Capacity for Seven and Half Million Cubic Feet of Gas, Yielding Seven Thousand Gallons of Gasoline. Other Oil News.

SANTA MARIA, Dec. 11.—The Union Oil Company is preparing to increase the capacity of its compressor gasoline plant on the Newlove lease in Santa Maria field by adding a second unit capable of treating about 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. This will give the plant capacity for compressing altogether 7,500,000 cubic feet, as gasoline is already being extracted from about 3,500,000 cubic feet. With the increased capacity the output of the plant will be about 7000 gallons of gasoline per day.

At present the Union is shipping about 2300 gallons of 66 gravity product through its two-inch line to Avila, where this output is mixed with tops so that more than double the amount in commercial gasoline is obtained. This gasoline is distributed to various cities on the Coast, and yields very good revenue.

It is probable that after the installation of the second unit, the capacity of the Union's compressor plant will later be further increased, as the output of gas is continually growing.

No. 8 well on the Newlove tract of the Union Oil Company is producing about 250 barrels per day of oil running about 30 gravity. No. 7 has entered the same sand from which No. 8 is producing and promises to be an equally good well.

The Fugler Ranch Oil Company lately entered the oil sand at 3535 feet in the test well which it is drilling on the Fugler ranch, near where the Bradley Canyon Oil Company, taken over by the Rice Ranch Oil Company, has been operating. If the oil sand proves as rich as first indications promise, a test will be made.

The Pinal Dome Oil Company has suspended work on its No. 2 well on the Fleisher lease at 4200 feet, having encountered only a small amount of heavy oil sand during the progress of drilling. The company is in hard brown shale at 4200 feet in the No. 1 well on the Wickenden lease.

PUT MILLION IN OIL FIELDS

French Interests Making Big Investments.

Will Soon Test New Holdings for Petroleum.

Withdrawal of More Lands Is Rumored.

SANTA PAULA, Dec. 11.—[illegible] early development for oil of the [illegible] acre holding on the Rancho [illegible] Francisco, recently acquired by interests connected with the Santa Susana Syndicate by outright purchase, is assured. This property will not be developed by the Santa Susana Syndicate, however, but by a new concern backed by the same interests and some others, and organized for the purpose of carrying on operations on this tract.

The investments of the [illegible] backing these concerns, which [illegible] practically entirely French, now exceed $1,000,000. The property of the Santa Susana Syndicate, which comprises more than 2700 acres in the Valley, was purchased for a reported consideration of over $[illegible], while the Tapo ranch property is said to have cost $250,000.

The latter holding, which was acquired from the Newhall Land and Farming Company, comprises what is known as the Eureka tract, West End ranch, of the Rancho San Francisco, and is located just south of Piru and Camulos, in Ventura county.

To the west are the Eureka wells, of which there are twelve, said to yield a monthly output of [illegible] barrels. Adjoining the French interests' property on the southwest corner is the Torrey wells, belonging to the Union Oil Company, of which there are forty-four, that have been producing for more than fifteen years and which now yield nine barrels a day each. The Tapo tract of the Union Oil Company, where there are six wells whose output is estimated at 5000 barrels a month, are just east of the French interests' property.

Some time before the deal the Tepusquet Oil Company had acquired a lease on a portion of the tract afterward turned over to the French interests, and drilled a well to a depth of 250 feet, but relinquished their lease at the time of the purchase for $40,000. It is stated the Tepusquet will acquire other holdings elsewhere; operations in Santa Maria field, where the company has some property, are suspended for the present.

Simi Valley.

In Simi Valley the Santa Susana Syndicate is preparing to build three new rigs near the west line of the old Pasadena [illegible] Company holding. No. 2 well is being allowed to flow as it is needed. It is capped and kept under control. The production of the well averages 150 to 200 barrels a day.

The Calabasas Oil Company is preparing to land a string of casing in its well at a depth of 640 feet. The formations in this well have thus far been similar to those encountered in the Syndicate's No. 1.

The Petrol Company is deepening well No. 6, and expects to [illegible] in the new syndicate sand soon. The company's production is at present quite small, as the upper sand has not proved prolific.

The Midway Simi Oil Company which is backed by the Wright [illegible] of San Francisco, who are interested in the T.W., and other oil companies of the Midway field, are making arrangements to start drilling their well just southwest of the Syndicate's No. 2.

The Hidalgo Oil Company's well is down nearly 1000 feet, and is expected to enter the sand at any time now.

Rumor Withdrawal.

That the government will make a large withdrawal of land for oil purposes in Ventura county, is the rumor which is in circulation in that vicinity. It is said that the withdrawal will take in the Castaic region and also probably outlying portions of Simi Valley, and other portions in that territory, and in the Sespe region.

The government just recently made a large withdrawal of land in the Whittier district, affecting the properties of six or seven of the companies operating there, and oil men in this locality are greatly interested in the reports in circulation regarding a new withdrawal order.

A Real Hold-up.

[Pittsburgh Chronicle:] Country constables and the auto game were being discussed, and Mayor-elect John P. Mitchel of New York said he was reminded of a recent New Jersey incident.

Some time ago a Gotham man was driving an automobile over one of New Jersey's smooth, hard roads, when a man suddenly appeared in the highway and held up a warning hand.

"Halt!" he exclaimed in a voice that had the ring of authority, "you are exceeding the speed limit."

"What are you talking about?" indignantly cried the autoist, bringing his machine to a stop. "I wasn't going fifteen miles an hour!"

"That's what they all say," retorted the other, climbing into the car. "You can tell your story to the justice of the peace. It's just seven miles beyond. Drive on, please."

There was no help for it, and seven miles for the autoist were slowly traversed. Finally the town came in sight.

"Much obliged to you, pard," said the man, jumping from the car and starting away. "I hated like [illegible] to take advantage of you, but I was so darned tired I couldn't walk another step."

Novel Golf Ball Invented.

[Washington Star:] Dr. [illegible], a practicing physician in [illegible], has invented a novel golf ball. He has introduced seven small balls inside an ordinary size golf ball.

The small balls are wound [illegible] with rubber in the ordinary way, and the space between them is filled with rubber. It is claimed that this method adds to the resiliency of the ball and improves the flight. When hit from a driver or an iron club from the green the impact [illegible] three of the small balls, and has the effect of lengthening the drive.

On the other hand, when it comes to putting, the ball is less affected by the putter than the ordinary solid-core ball, insuring steadiness on the green. The core remains [illegible] central, and it is impossible to knock the ball out of shape.

In the United States District Cour of Appeals title to the Baca flo grant of ten miles square near Tuba south of Tucson, has been adjudge to rest in C. C. Watts, D. C. T. Davis James W. Vroom and John Watts, t whom it is held the title passed i 1864. The case grew out of Mexican land grant made in 1827 t Luis Maria Baca of the ground now occupied by the city of Las Vegas, N. M. In 1860 these claims were surrendered by the heirs of the original Baca to the United States. They in turn were granted the right to locate 500,000 acres in not more than five square bodies. Four of the five grants have passed to patent, but the local claim, No. 3, has been in litigation for fifty years.

The Southern Pacific last week turned over to the treasurer of Yuma county a check for $84,576, a sum 41 per cent. of all the taxes assessed in the county and approximately twice what the railroad company paid the county in 1912.

ASSESSORS TO CONVENE.

December 15 will convene in Tucson a session of the State Assessors' Association, with membership present from every county. Among the subjects to be discussed are included livestock, mines and smelters, city lots, land grants, irrigated and non-irrigated agricultural lands, railroad lands, merchandise and automobiles.

The annual convention of the State teachers is to be held in Tucson December 26 and 27, with a full attendance present from the southern counties of the State and with representatives from all counties.

Gov. Hunt is determined to keep steadily employed the inmates of the State Industrial School at Ft. Grant, more for the purpose of teaching useful trades than for the incidental economy in the operation of the institution. The boys are to be taught at once to make their own clothes and shoes. Military discipline also has been instituted under the charge of an experienced soldier. With these changes it is expected that material betterment will be made in the deportment of the inmates.

SUCCEEDS O'KEEFE.

HARBOR ITEMS.

Lumber receipts picked up yesterday and the week closed proved to be a good one. The Klamath, from Portland, and the Hornet, from Seattle, brought 1,800,000 feet of lumber for various dealers; the Tallac came in from Everett with 2800 poles for Weir & Jordan, and the Santa Monica, from Eureka, discharged 2,000,000 shingles at the City Wharf and Storage Company and sailed for Redondo with a part load of lumber for Los Angeles.

Only one passenger ship arrived, the Yale, from San Francisco. The Yale brought 167 passengers and 328 tons of general merchandise, took 100 passengers and a small amount of freight and sailed for San Diego. The Queen left for the same port with 131 passengers. Before sailing, the Queen loaded 1500 sacks of sugar for San Francisco.

The United States revenue cutter Unalga, Capt. Hamlet, came in from San Francisco and officers from the ship made a tour of the harbor and examined the papers of the various vessels.

The lumber schooners Fair Oaks and William H. Murphy sailed. The former for San Francisco and the latter for Eureka.

The Harbor Commission has purchased the gas launch Mayflower from C. H. Eubanks for the use of the commission and the port warden.

The new lumber schooner Celilo suffered considerable damage by being rammed by the Grace Dollar last Thursday, according to advices that reached the harbor yesterday from San Francisco. The Celilo was lying at her berth when the Grace Dollar tried to dock at the foot of Powell street and, becoming unmanageable on account of the strong tide, crashed bow on into the new steamer. The Celilo lost part of her guard rail and part of her starboard was badly scraped.

Five seamen, accused of mutiny aboard the British steamer Santa Rosalia, were arrested at San Francisco by the immigrant officials as destitute aliens and will be deported.

SECOND IN PERMITS.

New York Only City in United States to Exceed Los Angeles in Number of New Buildings.

Los Angeles led all other cities in the United States, with the exception of New York, in the number of building permits granted during the month of November. It was rather far down the list, for a change, in point of valuation of new buildings.

New York was first in permits, with 1207 permits and $6,150,529 valuation. Los Angeles had to its credit 1155 permits and a valuation of $1,200,158. Figures for other leading cities are given by Construction News, as follows:

Chicago, 840 permits, $6,490,760 valuation; Philadelphia, 1063 permits, $2,026,565; Detroit, 554 permits, $1,769,900; Milwaukee, 275 permits, $1,711,300; Schenectady, 398 permits, $1,632,660, and Cleveland, 670 permits, and $1,241,640.

fast-room, kitchen and maid's room. The owner's suite on the second story will contain a bedroom, dressing-room, sun parlor and bath. Two guest rooms will each have dressing-room and bath. The principal exterior features will be an arcaded pergola porch across the front of the house and an outlook tower.

OVERLOOKING THE SEA.

In the house planned by Albert R. Walker and John T. Vawter for Miss Blanche Dolph is to be seen a picturesque, free and rambling treatment that is characterized and made distinctive by its very informality. Some of the details suggest the Italian Renaissance, but even this hint of "style" is to be found only in the details, the dwelling itself being notably a product of individuality. The house, like that planned by Mr. Benton, will be of reinforced concrete construction, and will have a roof of red clay tile.

The Dolph place will occupy a ten-acre site on bluffs overlooking the ocean and lying to the south of San Juan Capistrano proper. The elevation is such that the house will command a superb view of all the valley back of the mission. It is one of the most charming portions of the American Riviera.

The house will contain fourteen rooms and will be 100x80 feet in size. The main feature of the plan is an open court sixty-five feet square into which all the principal rooms will open. This court will face to the south. The interior of the dwelling is to be finished in hard woods, and most of the rooms will have unusually high paneling.

The grounds immediately surrounding the house are to be laid out in gardens, with contour walks and drives. The site presents an interesting variety of levels and is well wooded.

ELECT OFFICERS.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 13.—The annual meeting of the South Coast Improvement Association, representing Naples Seal Beach, Sunset Beach, Huntington Beach, East Newport, West Newport, Newport Beach, Balboa Island, and Balboa, was held at Huntington Inn, Wednesday evening, with a large attendance, which included the city officials of Huntington Beach. Stanton; first vice-president, H. L. Heffner; second vice-president, W. S. Collins; secretary, J. A. Armitage, and treasurer, W. T. Newland. CRESCENT HEIGHTS.

Considerable building activity is reported in Crescent Heights, the western section of Hollywood. A nine-room house of the chalet type has recently been completed for Mr. and Mrs. William Schwartzman at No. 594 Hay avenue. The lot, which is 92x190 feet in size, is attractively laid out. Two lots north of the Schwartzman property, a $4200 bungalow is in the course of construction for W. L. Des Noyer of Santa Monica. Another new home is that of William Smart on Fairfax avenue. C. A. Sumner, one of the oldest real estate dealers of Los Angeles, will soon see the completion of a handsome new home on Hayward avenue. The house is in the English style and will have twenty rooms.

OF THE TIMES

OUT JANUARY 1, 1914

The Greatest Special Edition of a Newspaper Ever Published

Intensely interesting and beautifully illustrated, the forthcoming edition of the Midwinter Number of The Times will graphically describe and realistically picture the climatic charms and scenic grandeur of happy, sun-kissed Southern California, and will be redolent of the fragrance and beauty which here abound throughout the year.

Its five magazine parts, comprising 160 pages, will contain more authentic and trustworthy information about California; exploit its marvelous resources to a greater extent and describe more golden opportunities in every line of human endeavor than any other magazine ever offered to the public.

The achievements of the splendid men and women, who are building an empire in the Southwest, will be detailed and the unprecedented development and progress made by Southern California in commerce, manufacturing, science, art and civic growth will be enlarged upon.

This elaborate, comprehensive special edition will be invaluable to every resident of this commonwealth, and it will point the way to happiness and fortune to people in other sections of the country whose eyes are turned westward.

California cannot be advertised in a better or more effective way than by sending to out-of-town friends a copy of the forthcoming Midwinter Number of The Times, which in every respect will be the master product of American journalism.

BEAR TRADERS HAVE IT EASY.

PUT DOWN STOCKS TO LOWEST LEVEL OF THE DECLINE.

The Fact that the Market Closed a Shade Higher on the Day Is Said to Reflect No Real Improvement. New Haven Goes Up on First Transactions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Bear traders found it comparatively easy today to put down stocks to the lowest level of the present decline. The fact the market ultimately rallied and closed a shade higher on the day reflected no improvement so far as was discernible in the character of trading and probably was due merely to covering such as is usual at week-ends.

At the outset the market was firm with a brisk demand for stocks which have been especially weak recently. New Haven was bid up a point on the first few transactions. American Telephone, however, did not respond to the movement, soon reaching a new low point. Other stocks quickly weakened and soon the whole market was falling.

On the decline New York Central reached 91, Pennsylvania 106 and American Telephone 114⅝, all new low marks for several years. New Haven, however, kept slightly above its low record and on the final rally showed more strength than for several days. A good deal of significance was attached to the upturn in this stock, which for a time was the strongest in the list. It was said that accumulation of the stock by important interests was in progress.

The bank statement was an agreeable surprise to the street. A cash gain of over $8,000,000 exceeded the largest estimates and with a small decrease in deposits, the surplus was more than doubled.

Bonds were depressed with decided heaviness in some active issues. Total sales, par value, $1,272,000.

United States and Panama 3's registered advanced ¼, and Panama 3's coupon ½ on call for the week.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Despite considerable irregularity in the first hour, the market gave a rather good account of itself and as a result of the day's trading, the active issues closed generally a shade higher. The bank statement was rather satisfactory. It is not unlikely that preparations will begin next week for the January disbursements which are estimated by some at about $250,000,000 and this may have some influence on money rates, although, of course, the slackening tendencies in commercial and industrial circles and the consequent lessened demand for funds in these lines, may tend to neutralize matters. There are indications that liquidation in New England specialties has temporarily run its course, although investment holdings of such issues as New Haven and Boston and Marine will, perhaps, seek the market on a limited scale for an indefinite period. Generally speaking, the tendency appears to be, particularly on the part of speculative sellers, to magnify the importance of the various influences which have long been susceptible to bearish construction.

New York Cotton Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The cotton market here opened as due. On rumors of ginning figures for this period exceeding the government crop estimate, liquidation by yesterday's buyers and catching of stop orders caused a sharp break and the close was at the bottom for the day, some 20 to 25 points net lower. There was some buying around 12 cents for March for trade accounts, but this proved insufficient to hold the market. The demand for spots in the South was reported poor.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Christmas turkey is going to be a very much more expensive bird than was Thanksgiving turkey for the reason that the valleys of Southern California were pretty well gone over by the dealers in their search for available stock for the first holiday. The demand was the heaviest in years and one dealer sold more than 8000 birds, and he is not in the list of the largest poultry dealers in the city. The price on this bird has advanced since Thanksgiving and according to estimates it will be essential to ship in possibly as many as five cars of turkeys for the Christmas demand. They will come from Kansas and other adjoining States, with a possible car from Texas. The retail price for Christmas will probably go as high as 35 cents. Ducks and geese are also very scarce. There are comparatively few of these birds raised in Southern California.

A car of Wisconsin cheese arrived yesterday morning. This is the first car of eastern cheese in for several weeks, the market being well supplied and arrivals from the North having been heavy enough to keep out much other stock. Prices all through the cheese list are easy and some declines may be looked for. Limberger, cream brick and Swiss cheese have been having a good run through the last week. Receipts of the commodity reported on the Produce Exchange yesterday total 1365 pounds.

The egg market was steady with few sales reported. Receipts were only 79 cases. The butter market showed more weakness and declined to an even 30 cents on creamery extras. This should allow the retailer to sell at about 37 cents and there is no reason for a 40 cent charge to make profit enough to carry on this branch of the grocery trade. Arrivals of the commodity were 2295 pounds.

Potatoes continued steady, with the possibility of a decline on the horizon. Receipts were 2952 sacks. The call for spuds is good, but not of such proportion that it will cause any quick rise of price. Onion arrivals were 300 sacks. On this commodity, prices hold firm. Sweet potatoes are just steady. Receipts were 44 sacks.

The market on apples was good throughout the week. There has been a very marked decrease in receipts and prices are beginning to advance gradually all along the list. Yesterday receipts were 1448 boxes.

Boston Copper Market

BOSTON, Dec. 13.—After early weakness the market had a feeble rally. This, however, cannot be taken as any indication of a real change in the situation, as it was probably due to short-covering and evening-up contracts. The bank statement was good and the surplus reserve is reaching normal proportions again. North Butte was the most active among the coppers and evidences the consistent accumulation of the past few weeks. Granby was also strong, advancing to 69. The rest were unchanged. The amount of trading was very small.

Grain.

BEARS GAIN ADVANTAGE.

HUNDREDS OF CARS OF CORN HEADED FOR CHICAGO.

As a Result of the Information Getting Abroad in the Pits the Cereal Finishes from One-quarter to Three-eighths Net Lower and Wheat's Firmness Wears Out.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Hundreds of cars of corn headed toward Chicago from all directions gave the bears an advantage today in grain. As a result corn finished ¼@⅜ to ⅜c net lower and oats off ¼ to ⅜@½c.

In wheat the outcome varied from ⅛c decline to a like advance. Provisions closed 2½ to 7½c down.

Wheat firmness wore out under pressure of bearish sentiment regarding corn. Oats lost ground with corn. Plentiful receipts of hogs unnerved the holders of provisions.

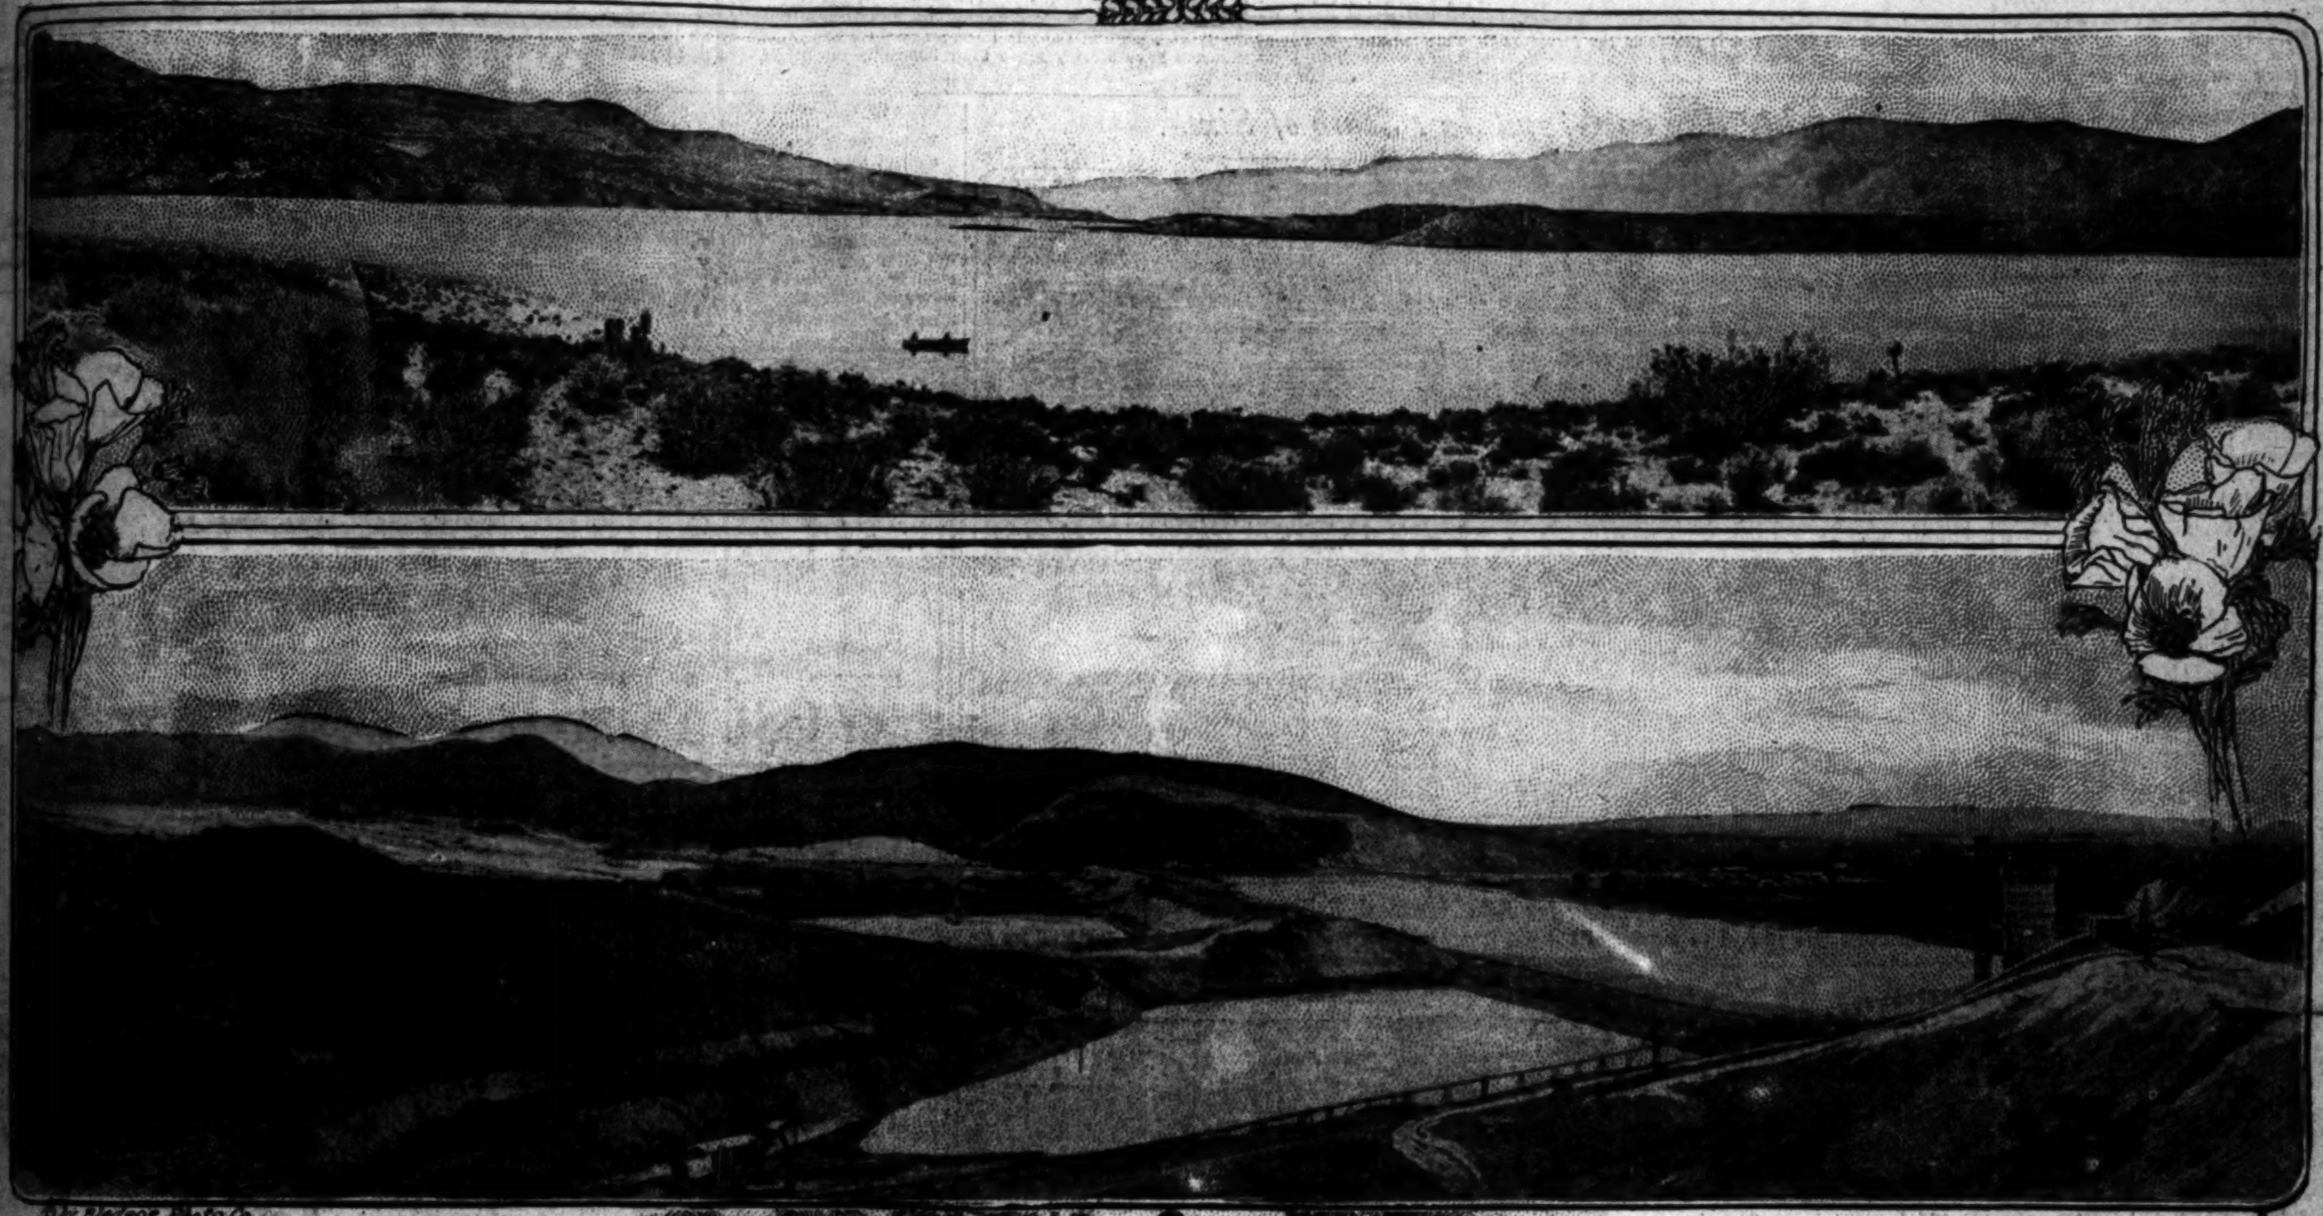
IMMENSE FLOW OF OWENS RIVER WATER READY FOR LOS ANGELES AND THE TERRITORY THAT'S TO BECOME PART OF GREAT CITY.

Many Cities, Towns and Districts From Head of San Fernando Valley to the Sea Arranging for Annexation That They May Share in the Benefits the Mighty Stream From the Mountains Will Bring—Twenty-five Thousand Inches Now Going to Waste Pending the Time When Distribution Can be Made.



By Bledsoe Photo Co.

A GREAT body of Owens River water has been brought down through the aqueduct conduits and is awaiting almost at the city's gates to be put to use. The Haiwee reservoir, with a total capacity of 63,800 acre feet, now contains about 40,000 acre feet of water. There is some water in Fairmont reservoir. There Chief Engineer Mulholland proposes to raise the dams to create a basin with a capacity of 3000 to 4000 acre feet. Dry Canyon reservoir, with a capacity of about 700 acre feet, is full.

Twenty-five thousand inches of water is flowing down Owens River and running to waste pending the time when arrangements for its distribution in this city and neighboring territory to be annexed are complete. According to measurements the flow down the river has been as much as 25,000 inches for the past two months. Surveys are being rushed on the upper Fernando reservoir site. This basin will have a capacity of 12,000 acre feet. Work on the lower Fernando reservoir is progressing rapidly. Two-thirds of the work has been done on the basis of expenditure and 55 per cent. on the basis of material used in dam construction. The reservoir will be fully completed in about a year and will have a capacity of 24,000 acre feet.

Though considerable work in some of its sections is yet to be done, the aqueduct is completed so far as its ability to bring water to the end of the line is concerned, and it has officially been declared completed by the Board of Public Works and the Board of Public Service, which have been arranging for its transfer from the former to the latter board for the past week.

Realizing the responsibility of handling this magnificent property, the people of this city and outlying communities that expect to share largely in its benefits are working diligently and with considerable measure of success, to arrange for the distribution of the water over a great portion of the territory to be served without undue delay.

The aqueduct has cost approximately $25,000,000. Its owners almost unanimously believe it is worth many times that amount and the necessity for putting it to work and realizing the revenue it is bound to bring, is recognized as extremely urgent. To permit the aqueduct, now that it is completed, to remain idle a single day longer than is absolutely necessary is regarded as a shameful economic waste, by Mulholland, Mayor Rose, the annexation commissioners and all farsighted men who are considering the dual problem of distribution of surplus water and consolidation.

CITY USE NEXT SPRING.

The aqueduct will first be put to use next spring in this city. Mulholland said yesterday that he expects to draw heavily upon it to supplement the regular supply during the coming summer months.

Then, one district at a time, as rapidly as can be arranged, the surplus water will be spread over the great territory ultimately to be included in Los Angeles. Preliminary negotiations and discussions have made the issue a live one from the north end of San Fernando Valley to the sea. The members of the Annexation Commission, appointed by Mayor Rose, came to the conclusion yesterday, that, instead of having finished their labors, they must work harder than ever in their task of co-operating with the communities that desire to avail themselves of the advantages of Owens River water and are devising ways and means for doing it in the most effective manner.

Beginning day after tomorrow, the commission will hold two meetings a week. Tuesday's meeting will be at 2:30 o'clock and it will be decided then on what dates subsequent meetings will be held. In addition to these conferences, at which representatives of various districts will be present, the commissioners have arranged to meet the people of the neighboring towns and confer with them in local mass meetings.

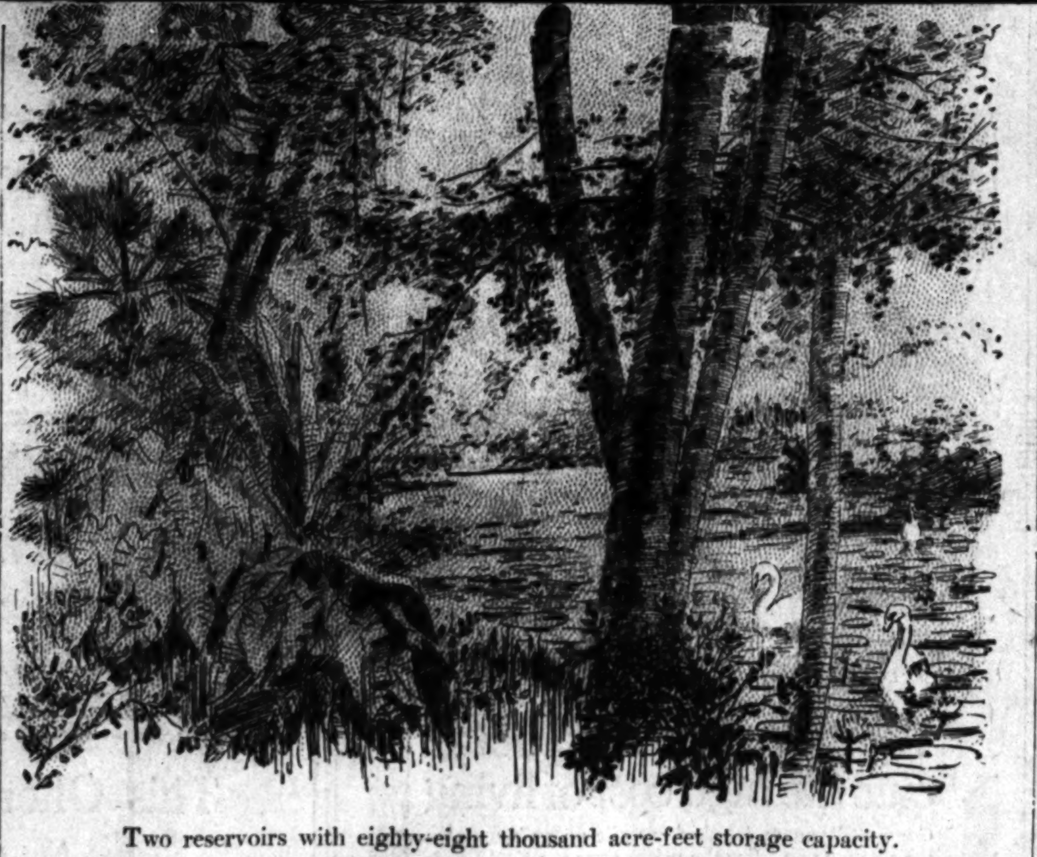
The past week has brought very encouraging results and all the members of the commission believe the final stages of the plan for consolidation and distribution will be reached in some of the districts very soon.

The chief reason for the recent growth of the sentiment in favor of annexation is that the people of the communities included in the general plan have been studying the situation and have become convinced that they are going to be benefited to a much greater extent than appeared on the surface.

PROSPERITY FOR ALL.

As a part of Los Angeles, every community will share in the prosperity of the city. Indirectly, they will benefit by the splendid development that will follow the spreading of Owens River water over thousands of fertile acres, its greater productivity and the employment of thousands of men now out of work.

In their conferences with the Annexation Commissioners, it has developed that in immediate results in dollars and cents to the individual communities and the people who compose them, the advantages are tangible. The purely agricultural districts have recognized the absolute necessity for securing the water from the outset. Now the cities and towns are arriving at the same conclusion, though the investigation leading to that conclusion has, in those cases, been somewhat more intricate.



Two reservoirs with eighty-eight thousand acre-feet storage capacity.

The upper picture shows the south half of the Haiwee reservoir from the Narrows. This is the largest storage basin on the aqueduct system and has a capacity of 63,800 acre-feet. It is completed and in actual use. At the present time it contains about 40,000 acre-feet of water. The lower picture shows the lower Fernando reservoir dams in process of construction. The dams will be completed and the reservoir in full service in about a year. This reservoir has a capacity of 24,000 acre-feet. These two reservoirs alone hold enough water to run the full capacity of the aqueduct 110 days.

The bugbear of higher taxes following annexation has been effectually exploded. It has been computed that from the very beginning the taxpayers of the annexed towns will save money. They will share in the effective executive force maintained by Los Angeles, in the work of the City Council, the Boards of Public Works and Public Service, and will have as their public servants William Mulholland, the West's greatest and ablest engineer, and his efficient corps of engineering assistants.

To maintain these boards and heads of departments costs a great deal of money—far more than a small community could afford to pay. But dividing the total cost over the whole great city makes the cost to any one community too small to be considered at all in comparison with the advantages secured.

CHEAPER SERVICE.

Cheaper lights and cheaper water, which Los Angeles can secure, will constitute a big item to the resident of the annexed towns. In most of the towns the water rates are $1.25 to $1.50 per month. Los Angeles has fixed a rate of 75 cents and can maintain it at that level or lower. Cheaper lights must inevitably follow for Los Angeles is about to develop and distribute power of its own, and can furnish it at a much lower figure than now prevails throughout the county.

Each town or district will be expected to assume its burden of taxation consequent upon the issuance of aqueduct bonds. At the conferences held recently this has been computed to be a little less than $4 per year for the average residence owner. That practically represents all that he must pay for coming in as a part of Los Angeles. To offset this will be the direct saving of $6 to $9 per year in water rates, almost as much in cost of lighting and the indirect benefits of an efficient central executive force and an increasingly prosperous community.

It has been pointed out at the meetings that the taxation necessary to pay the interest on the aqueduct bonds is now at its height, and must of necessity continually and rapidly diminish. When the full flow of the aqueduct, 20,000 inches or more, has been put to work, and the power developed and sold, the aqueduct will be self-sustaining and more. It will pay for its maintenance, all interest, and eventually the principal. This item of taxation, therefore, has been shown, not only to be more than offset by immediate direct savings in other ways, but to be only temporary while the advantages are permanent.

THEY LOOK IN EAGERLY.

In Alhambra the sentiment in favor of annexation appears to be growing rapidly, and the people are getting ready to hold a series of meetings to discuss the subject. It has been shown that Alhambra can be served with a first-class sewer system that can also be made to include Belvidere and intervening territory. Covering several points, the sewer will cost much less than first estimated.

Bairdstown has already voted in favor of annexation, 4 to 1. These two suburbs, with their beautiful im-

SELLS VALLEY REAL ESTATE.

Founder of Holtville and El Centro in Big Deal.

Disposes of Town Holdings in Imperial Section.

Half-Million Paid for Once Doubtful Property.

EL CENTRO, Dec. 13.—W. F. Holt, well known as the founder of Holtville and El Centro, and as the hero in Harold Bell Wright's popular novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," closed a deal last week by which he disposes of all of his property in the towns of El Centro, Holtville, Calexico and Brawley for a given consideration of $525,000.

Seven years ago this same property sold for much less than $100 an acre as farm property to Holt, who was far-sighted enough to see the proportions which El Centro would assume, and to build his first block accordingly. As a result, the first structure in El Centro was a solid block of brick 600 feet long and 140 feet wide, all with the same type of architecture and an unbroken arcade extending to the curbing, which lends an imposing effect. This block contains eighteen large storerooms in addition to an operahouse, with boxes and balconies, and capable of seating 1200 people.

When the town was yet in its infancy, Holt had a hard time persuading merchants to settle here, and was compelled to offer them special inducements in the way of extremely low rent, but El Centro gradually grew to meet the demands of the rapidly-growing country until it became an indispensable part of the valley, and is now far in advance of any of the other towns, having experienced one of the most remarkable growths in the history of Southern California.

The above-mentioned block was all disposed of last week through the Edgar Brothers Realty Company at an average price of $500 a front foot, as compared with the fractional part of $100 an acre of seven years ago, and was purchased mainly by the merchants who stood by Holt during the trials and vicissitudes of the early days, some six years ago.

That portion of the block at the corner of Fifth and Main streets which includes the operahouse, was sold to S. W. Dunaway, F. B. Fuller and Dr. Virgil McCoombs for $600 a front foot, and a ten-year lease was immediately granted G. D. Armstead for that portion of the building now occupied by the People's Abstract and Title Company.

AWARD CONTRACTS.

Orange County Supervisors Expect to Rush Road Work Under New Bond Issue—Beach Towns Pleased.

EAST NEWPORT, Dec. 13.—At a meeting on Tuesday of this week, the Supervisors of Orange county awarded the contracts for half of the road leading from Santa Ana to Newport, commencing at the Newport end, for four and a half miles, to be built under the bond issue, and announced that they would let the contract for the rest of the road after the rainy season has passed. They assured the people of Newport Beach that the road would be completed from Santa Ana to the city limits by the first of January. This road will prove a big asset to the resorts of Newport, West Newport, East Newport and Balboa. The Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce held a meeting this week, at which time they passed a resolution asking the City Trustees to start proceedings to macadamize the road from the city limits, where the county road joins, through to Main street at Balboa, the abutting property owners to pay two-thirds of the cost and the city one-third. The question will be taken up by the trustees of the city, at their regular meeting in January. Most of the cement walks and curbs are already in along this boulevard, which will somewhat simplify the construction work.

ON SOUTHLAND MAP.

Date City, New Imperial Valley Townsite, Formally Opened Yesterday—Company Organized to Build.

Date City, a new townsite in the northern end of the Imperial Valley, was formally opened to the public yesterday. A special train was run from Los Angeles for the occasion and a considerable crowd was on hand to witness the exercises marking the official advent of the latest valley community.

The town has already been laid out in blocks and lots and one business building is now under construction, with contracts let for a hotel and several houses. The place is being put on the market by the Imperial Valley Syndicate, a corporation composed of Los Angeles and San Francisco capitalists. A company known as the Date City Building Company has been organized to build houses in the new town and has, it is announced, bought 200 lots for this purpose.

The new town is twelve miles north of Brawley and comprises a tract 240 acres in extent. The owners of the site believe that its proximity to the 47,000-acre tract just purchased by a syndicate from the Southern Pacific Railway Company will insure the success of their town. This huge tract, together with a corresponding acreage in alternating government entry sections, is soon to be made the scene of an intensive development.

Beautiful artificial lake with a rugged mountain setting for a background.

The gate tower at the outlet is shown in the foreground. This reservoir is one of the most important links in the aqueduct system. Little or no more water will be permitted to flow into it until the water below is put to actual use. Several kinds of trout in great numbers have already made their homes in the limpid lake and myraid ducks and other sea fowl are making it one of their favorite stopping places in their journeys to and from the ocean.

RUSHING CONSTRUCTION.

Four-story Mercantile Structure on South Grand Avenue Must Be Ready for Tenant at Once.

Construction work is well under way on a four-story brick mercantile building planned and being erected by the Milwaukee Building Company at No. 633 South Grand avenue for Ella Newmark Seligman. The company is rushing its operations and expects to have the structure complete and ready for occupancy within a period of fifty-four working days from the time of starting.

The building has been leased to the Meyberg Company, manufacturers and dealers in gas and electric fixtures, for a period of ten years. The rapid construction is necessitated by the fact that the present lease of the Meyberg Company at Nos. 217-219 West Sixth street is expiring.

provements, splendid schools and highways, will become two of the most attractive and favored residence districts in all California when they have acquired the advantages to be secured by participating in the water, light and other utilities that can be supplied to them as a part of Los Angeles. Many people, who own property there, are for these reasons, urging prompt action.

A recent canvass in the Casa Verdugo district by the commission shows the sentiment there to be almost unanimous in favor of coming in. The people of the Cahuenga district favor the plan, and are taking a deep interest in it. A meeting will be held for that district at Sherman day after tomorrow night, and the particular problems of that district will be discussed with the co-operation of Commissioners Gregory and Dunlap, who have agreed to be present. Nearly every resident of the district between Pico Heights and the south end of the valley favors annexation, and is planning on making it a fine residential district, with every modern improvement.

Educational meetings are held weekly at Santa Monica. Public meetings will be held in Tropico in a week or two. The recent decisive failure to vote a water bond issue in that town indicates an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the consolidation plan. Many more Glendale people are in favor of consolidation than a few weeks ago, now that they have been assured that the town need not lose its identity.

All along the line the work preparatory to putting the aqueduct to practical use is progressing well. When the whole plan is completed and in operation the whole great territory, from the mountains to the sea, will be stimulated and enriched, and every community will be sharing in the prosperity of the most favored locality in all the world.

SIMILAR TO THE BEAUTY OF A GREAT EUROPEAN COUNTRY IS THE CHARM OF ONE OF OUR RISING, GREAT CITIES

The Predictions and Fulfillment of the Prophecies of Each Are Akin.

"La Belle France," that mystically beautiful country which has attracted the attention and elicited the praise of everyone from the Kings and world Emperors to the simple street flower girl, is similar in many details to the rising, beautiful city of Santa Monica, as fascinating as the most coquettish Parisienne.

Among the many famous sayings concerning France and its beauty the sayings of Grotius and Strabo are perhaps the most notable.

Grotius, the learned and brave Dutchman who spent much of his time in France during the reign of King Henry IV and his son, when asked for his opinion concerning France, responded with perfect sincerity: "France is the most beautiful kingdom there is—after the Kingdom of Heaven."

Strabo, the old traveler and geographer, hundreds of years before the existence of Grotius, when making his written prediction concerning France, said that it "must one day be the most flourishing place on earth."

When Grotius spoke so favorably of France he was judging it more particularly from its natural beauties, the principal ones being its mountains, its vast stretches of green country and its sea.

When Strabo predicted for France the brilliant future that he did, as his writings go to show, he was referring principally to the exceptional location of France, compared to the rest of the world, together with the advantages that nature had provided for her.

Had either Grotius or Strabo ever visited the beautiful Crescent Bay City and judged it from the viewpoints from which they considered France, there is no question about it, their judgment concerning Santa Monica as a city compared with France as a country, would have been strikingly similar.

Those who have ever lived in or visited Santa Monica from the time of its first visitor, Cabrillo, who history records as having stopped here as early as 1542, have predicted for it a vast future.

There is no greater proof of the real value of a city than that those who stand at the head of it and its surroundings should see fit to put their money there. This is true of Santa Monica, in which the most noted capitalists and leading men of Southern California, have purchased immense properties.

Such firms are represented in this as the Braly-Janss Investment Company of the Pacific Electric Building, large owners of and exclusive sales agents for beautiful Brentwood Park, which has become noted everywhere as the ideal seaside, country estate home tract.

Another such firm, broadly known in real estate and other circles for the immense deals it handles, is Roy C. Howells & Co. This firm proved its enthusiasm in this Nature's wonderland, Santa Monica, by taking over but a short time ago two immense Palisades tracts from J. J. Davis; the cash consideration for which aggregated $325,000.

Also Robert Marsh & Co. is another firm which, realizing the tremendous future of Santa Monica, bought two of the finest properties in all of Southern California, in the Crescent Bay City. The first subdivision was known as Ethelwyn Manor, which is a bungalow tract of exceptional charm, planned for those of more moderate means. The second, which is located at the side of Ethelwyn Manor, only on a very high mesa, and known as Ethelwyn Manor Heights, is particularly designed for the palaces of those who will stop at no expense in making their homes magnificent in every sense of the word.

The California Real Estate and Building Company of the Realty Board Building, is another firm who, realizing the utter magnificence and the splendid money-making opportunities of Santa Monica, took over one of its most picturesque and charming subdivisions, known as Santa Monica Highlands. This was the noted property formerly known as Carlos Heights, which Tracy Drake, the owner of the Blackstone Hotel of Chicago, subdivided in the beginning and improved to the extent of $50,000, with the rarest imported plants from all over the world, a superb water garden, beautiful boulevards and such other attractive features.

Mr. Elmer Cole of the Laughlin Building and Mr. C. L. Bundy of the Ferguson Building also have shown their great faith in the Crescent Bay City by becoming owners of some of its most desirable and largest tracts.

James R. H. Wagner & Co., is another firm that has accomplished much for Santa Monica and himself, becoming sales agents for the splendid Brentwood Place, which is directly opposite Brentwood Park on the famous San Vicente Boulevard, and one of the most highly improved and ideal homesite localities in the entire section.

The L. D. Loomis Company stands out as one of the strongest examples of what a firm backed by the highest type of energy and brain power can accomplish for a country that is worth while. This firm has sold many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property in Santa Monica in the past two years; both in the splendid, old Santa Monica Canyon, and the superb Gillette's Regent Square, and other tracts.

Mrs. Boede, who owns the beautiful "Hotel Windermere-By-the-Sea," which is one of the most charming hotels in the entire West, all features considered, is another one evidencing greatly the immense possibilities of Santa Monica, with her superb hostelry, the headquarters of the elite of California.

J. B. Proctor, W. J. Stadelman and the firm of Heath & Gosling, three of Santa Monica's most prominent real estate firms, are also splendid examples of what can be accomplished in the handling of local real estate, all of which firms report each month increase of sales in both city and suburban properties that would astound many a Los Angeles real estate man.

The Heath & Gosling firm, which is located in Santa Monica directly opposite the Pacific Electric station, which is the terminus of five different car lines going between Los Angeles and Santa Monica, has only recently been established under the firm name of Heath & Gosling, though both members of the firm are widely known in real estate circles in California for their integrity and the high character of their business deals.

J. B. Proctor and W. J. Stadelman are both decidedly prominent throughout Southern California, as real estate men of exceptional vigor and honor.

The Prudential Building Company, the largest and best-equipped building company of Santa Monica, has been doing such a large building business and has such increased demand for its houses that it is unable to keep pace with the demand, hence it is now offering a limited amount of stock to a few who are equally reliable with those already associated with the firm, so that the facilities may be increased to meet the demand.

Up-to-Date Educational Building for Progressive Community.

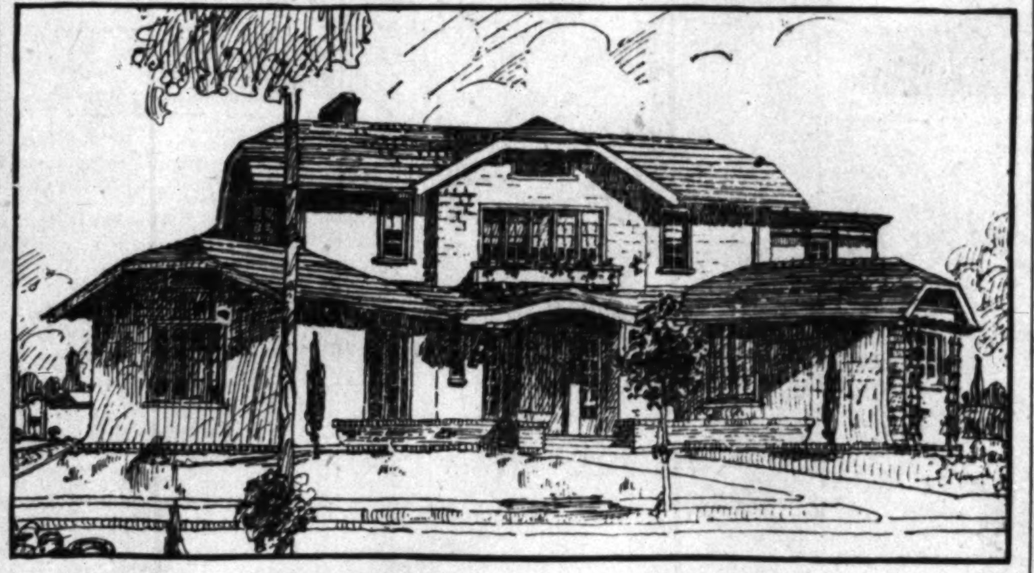
Beautiful New Crescent Bay Residence.



Home of Dr. H. W. Levengood at Venice, F. T. Kegley, architect.

PLANS APPROVED.

New Grammar School at Glendora to Boast Unique Features—Building Will Suggest Italian Style.

GLENDORA, Dec. 13.—The plans prepared by Allison & Allison of Los Angeles for the new $30,000 grammar school to be erected at this place were formally approved by the local Board of Education during the past week. Construction upon the building is to be begun at once.

The school will be one of the handsomest in Southern California and will be carried out in what is defined by the architects as a free treatment of the Italian renaissance. The building will have a frontage of 200 feet and will be of brick construction. It will contain eight class rooms, principal's and teachers' offices and rest-rooms.

The structure will be faced with ruffled brick. The entrance will be unusually attractive, its main feature being a palladian loggia. Opening from this on either side will be an arcaded cloister extending practically across the front of the building.

The grounds of the school front for 400 feet on Pasadena avenue are about 200 feet deep. Provision is being made for a number of playground features.

The members of the board are J. B. Mobley, president; W. L. Wylie, clerk, and A. B. Imbrie.

OF UNUSUAL SHAPE.

New Home of Physician at Venice Has Diverging Wings that Insure Maximum of Light.

One of the most attractive homes yet projected in the Crescent Bay district is now being completed by Dr. H. Wilson Levengood in the Frederick Station section of Venice. The house contains ten rooms and is constructed on the plan of a "Y," an arrangement that gives a maximum of light throughout. Frank T. Kegley is the architect.

The dwelling suggests English types and is of brick and shingle exterior. The dining-room occupies one of the diverging wings and is beautifully finished. The grounds are large and are being laid out under the direction of the architect.

TO HANDLE BIG TRACT.

Robert Marsh & Co. have been appointed selling agents for lands just opened in Fresno and Kings counties amounting to 15,000 acres, and commonly known as the "Kingdom of Kings River." The lands are situated in the Silver Lake region and are the culmination of fifteen years of reclamation work by an English syndicate. The work of reclamation comprises 100 miles of twelve-foot levee, which has transformed what once was a stock range into a farming section. This tract is entirely under the gravity water system, with its water rights from the Kings River. Alfalfa is being extensively and successfully raised in the section, which boasts a number of fine dairies. Two railroads traverse the tract—the Laton and Western, and the Hanford and Summit Lake, the former having been built by the syndicate at a cost of $300,000, the latter by the Southern Pacific Company. Lanare and Laton are the two chief towns of the district, and both have stores, churches and schools. The tract will be handled in Los Angeles by the land department of the Marsh company, of which F. M. Sayre is manager.

CULVER CITY ACTIVITIES.

The Harry H. Culver Company reports that the Merchants' Realty and Investment Company has started the fifth of a series of twenty houses which the latter concern is to build in Culver City. Ed. Metzger, it is announced, will have his new home at Culver City completed in about two weeks. The erection of a public garage at the new town was begun Thursday morning. The Field building, another Culver City improvement, will be completed within ten days. The Advance Homebuilders are building three houses at the same place.

GARAGE PROJECTED.

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 13.—Anticipating a great increase in the automobile traffic to and through Seal Beach upon the completion of the Orange county good road boulevards that will extend from this resort arrangements were made this week by local automobile men for the building of an up-to-date garage on North Main street, which is one of the main laterals. It is expected that the work on the boulevard leading from Seal Beach to the north, by way of Main street, will be started by the first of the year, and it will no doubt be completed before the summer season opens. All of the streets in the town are to be resurfaced and put in first-class condition before the summer months.

FINE BLOCK PROJECTED.

Woman Investor to Build Large Store and Office Structure in South Pasadena.—Also Plans Apartments.

SOUTH PASADENA, Dec. 13.—That South Pasadena is to have another store and office building is assured by the announcement that plans are in course of preparation by Architect Arthur B. Benton of Los Angeles, for a two-story brick business building, which will be erected by Mrs. Gertrude Ozmun, at the northwest corner of Mission street and Fair Oaks avenue. Mrs. Ozmun recently purchased the site through the O. Hibbard Realty Company, from Murray Bayles, for a reported consideration of $14,000. The property includes the vacant lot, 50x150 feet in size, on the corner of Mission street and Fair Oaks avenue, also 30x100 feet adjoining, on Mission street. The latter piece of ground is now improved by a one-story brick building, which will be torn down to make room for the larger edifice. The foundation of the new building will provide for a third story, which will be added at a later date.

The new building will be 105x85 feet in dimensions and will be faced with white glazed brick, to conform with other business blocks in the locality. The first story will be devoted entirely to stores, and the second floor to offices. This business block will be the largest in South Pasadena. Mrs. Ozmun plans to start building operations early next year. The improvement will cost about $45,000.

Mrs. Ozmun is also planning the erection of an apartment-house, to be built on her present home site, which occupys a block on Brent avenue, between Mission and El Centro streets. She is already interested extensively in real estate in this city and her present investment shows her strong faith in the future of South Pasadena.

WOULD PAVE TO WESTERN.

The owners along West Ninth street are back of a petition for paving that street from Vermont avenue, the present terminus of the paving, to Western avenue. The McCarthy Company, owning the West Ninth Street Heights tract, and the Mitchel Company, representing the Pellisier Square property, are the largest property owners interested in the improvement. Added to the paving plan is a general plan for a lighting system for West Ninth street, extending from Main street to Western avenue.

TRADES APARTMENTS.

C. V. Gardner and others have sold the Echo apartments, No. 2015 Sunset boulevard, to Frank [illegible]. The consideration is given at about $40,000. Gardner takes in exchange 180 acres of land adjoining the town of Terre Bella. D. P. Flory represented the owners of the apartments. Flory also reports the transfer of [illegible] acres south of the city for J. O. [illegible] to M. Bashor, land in Lake county being taken in part payment, together with the exchange of a [illegible] acre tract near Fallbrook, owned by H. Phillips, for a house on West Thirty-eighth street in this city.

The Panama Canal

opening is an event which the world and particularly Californians are looking forward to with great and growing interest. It will spell prosperity for Los Angeles and real estate will advance materially in price. There will be more during the next two years than for a decade past, providing good judgment is exercised in buying. Where so many good investments are offered it is hard to decide just where to place your money so that you will be reasonably certain of quick and sure returns.

Along Main Street

fortunes have been made in the past and many more will be made during the years 1914-15 and the succeeding years than ever before, because along that thoroughfare the heavy canal traffic will pass. It is along that street that The American Home Builders, the most conservative company doing business in the city, has laid out a number of lots, at $600 and up, where the car fare is only 5 cents and where the prospective buyer will look for an investment or an ideal home site. This company handles nothing but gilt-edged property and anything it offers for sale is known to be absolutely good. These lots, along Main street, known as the within the city limits, are the most desirable on the market today and are being sold at prices and on terms easily within the reach of the man or woman of limited capital. They will increase by leaps and bounds when the Panama Canal empties its countless thousands upon our shores. Come in and see us. Our automobiles will take you to the tract and an inspection will convince you that our claims are based upon truth and merit will be found in our every offering. Don't delay. These choice lots are going fast and the number is limited.

AMERICAN TO TOP ITS OIL.

Contracts for Building of Two Plants.

Well Workmen Are Widely Scattered.

New Year May Bring Demand for Employees.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 11.—The North American Oil Company has contracted with the Trumble Refining Company for the construction of two topping plants on sections 16 and 22, [illegible]. They will be finished in about ninety days. The larger plant, to be built on section 22, will have a capacity for 2000 barrels daily, and the one on section 16 for 1000 barrels daily.

The topping plants facilitate the saving of valuable vapors, which, condensed, form gasoline and distillate. Heretofore these vapors have been wasted when the oil was heated.

The General Petroleum has a Trumble topping plant at Mojave, where most of the oil sent through the General pipe line is topped.

Owing to slackening of work in Midway many drillers and tool dressers have gone to other oil fields, and it is quite likely that after the first of the year expert oil workers will be in demand to meet the expected resumption of activity in Midway. The men have gone to all parts of the world—many to Mexico, and others to Burmah, India, Japan, Roumania, Canada and Venezuela.

A company of local oil men are about to establish a plant at Maricopa for the manufacture of a newly-patented tool for gripping sucker rods and cable for use in oil wells. Bruce E. Hinkler is the inventor of the new tool, which has been used with great success by oil men. About eighteen of the grippers have been made and tested thoroughly.

A Los Angeles syndicate has purchased 20,000 acres in the Cuyama Valley belonging to the Perkins ranch, with the announced intention of selling it to actual settlers in tracts of 160 acres down. The land will be sold for agricultural purposes. The Perkins interests will keep 8000 acres, which are judged to be prospective oil land from numerous seepages. Many offers to lease the land if oil should be developed in paying quantities have been made the Perkins interests, but none have been considered.

Should the oil development prove unencouraging, the 8000 acres will be subdivided like the rest of the ranch, and in any event the 20,000 acres sold to Lenderat & Edwards of Los Angeles will be subdivided and placed on the market by January 1, 1915. Maricopa being the natural market place for the Cuyama Valley, will receive great benefit through the development of so large a tract of land.

Five men were severely burned about their heads and faces Tuesday when a pocket of gas, struck at a depth of 700 feet in well No. 7 of the Standard Oil Company on section 22, 31-23, near Taft, burst into flame. The drillers and helpers around the well at the time were F. L. Britton, J. F. Richardson, John Shleessman, Otto Munson, L. J. Davis and L. V. Patterson. All the men were caught in the flames without warning. All are in the Taft Hospital, where their burns are being cared for. None of the men will be permanently injured. The gas pocket burned itself out in a short time, but the rig and derrick were destroyed.

Development Notes.

Almost 1000 feet in two weeks is the record of Contractor M. L. Thorne in well No. 3 of the Record Oil Company on section 28, 31-23. The well is being drilled with rotary.

Huber and Wilson last week cemented well No. 9 of the Santa Fe on section 6, 32-23. This well has given trouble by the water breaking through the cement, and this time the well was cemented with chemicals.

The derrick for the Sunset Monarch Oil Company well in the Maricopa district is completed and the California Well Drilling Company is rigging up to begin work with a rotary.

Well No. 4 of the Pacific Crude Oil Company is down 1728 feet with a rotary on section 32, 31-22. It is about half way to the oil sand and another gusher is expected within a few weeks.

The Associated Oil Company is preparing to pu teable tools in well No. 7 to drill the remaining few feet to the oil sand. The cement has been drilled through and the hole found dry at 3172 feet.

Well No. 1 of the Canadian-Pacific has been cleaned out and is now producing 100 barrels daily. Well No. 2, which has been under repair for a couple of weeks, is again on the beam.

Well No. 2 of the Santa Fe, on section 10, 32-23, is being deepened to the oil sand. The Standard has good producers in the vicinity. A fine sand was encountered a couple of weeks ago, and if the deeper sand is not productive the well will be backed up to the first and finished off.

After a shut-down of six months the Maricopa Oil Company will resume work on section 22, 32-24. W. J. Schultz is in charge of the work and has two full crews on the ground. The six-inch casing will be set at 3600 feet.

The General Petroleum's well No. 3, on the Buena Vista division on section 32, 31-24, is nearly down to the big gusher sand that feeds the Boston Pacific No. 1. The California Well Drilling Company will soon set the ten-inch casing at a depth of 2900 feet.

Indications are good in well No. 6 of the California Midway Oil Company on section 32, 31-23, in the Fellows district. Signs of the big sand are reported and the belief is prevalent that oil will be developed in a short time. The property is in the Buick and Pacific Crude district. Well No. 3 is being deepened to a better sand.

Well No. 3 of the Edmonds Midway Oil Company on section 32, 32-24, promises soon to be on the producing list, as the trouble with the quicksand has been overcome by the strainer pipe. For some time this well would flow and sand up alternately, and great difficulty was experienecd getting theoll. until the string of strainer pipe was installed. Now Superintendent Tom Huling hopes to have the well soon on a paying basis.

EASY STEPS TO INDEPENDENCE AT ORCHARD CITY

THERE is nothing fanciful about the short and easy stairway illustrated below. Thousands of acres of productive orchards in California have been produced in this manner. There is a market for the crops of thousands of acres more.

We do not make any predictions as to the profits to be made in growing tomatoes (for canning), peanuts, berries, potatoes, sweet potatoes and other crops, because we want our prospective settlers to investigate and get their own facts. East of our land, and west of our land are prosperous, established farming and fruit-growing communities, and we will gladly help you get your own information.

We do not make any predictions as to the profits in growing peaches. We can take you to hundreds of acres of peach orchards, with soil and climate conditions almost identical with those of our lands, and you can find out for yourself whether they begin to bear in three years, how much they bear, year by year; how long they bear.

You will find that canning factories are willing to contract your crops of peaches, at a fixed and definite rate, for ten years to come. If you look up the matter of freight rates, you will find that the PANAMA CANAL is likely to be a strong factor in the future of the canning industry in California. Not only will it make the rates to the Atlantic Coast lower than now, but it opens all Northern Europe as a market.

Recent circumstances indicate that the area of PROVEN OLIVE LAND in California is smaller than was at first thought. The Orchard City territory is PROVEN OLIVE LAND. We want you to see olive trees of various ages in this district. We want you to find out directly from owners of young groves—the right kinds, planted right and given the right kind of care—whether they begin to bear profitably at four years, and how much they will produce, in dollars and cents.

We want you to get the information directly from the OLIVE PACKERS as to the present and the future demand. The Olive Packers have been making money in the last few years, even though they have doubled twice the price paid to the growers for their olives. It would not be good business for them to encourage the planting of more olives, and yet more olives, if they did not know that the market was growing beyond all probable sources of supply.

ORCHARD CITY is forty-eight miles due east of Los Angeles. Directly on the Main Line of the Southern Pacific railway. Suruounded by such prosperous settlements as Fontana, Rialto, Bloomington, Riverside, Corona, Colton, Chino, Ontario and Upland. Directly upon the accepted route of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway. Only 2½ miles from Pacific Electric interurban line reaching Los Angeles and San Bernardino.

There is a townsite, surrounded by 7000 acres of land now under irrigation or for which water has been developed—all under allied ownership, all intended for development in five, ten and twenty-acre tracts.

The soil is of good quality; a sandy loam, with some gravel. The water is provided by pumping. If you will look over our engineers' reports, you will agree with us that the supply of underground water has been very carefully measured, and that it is ample. The amount of water provided is at the rate of one statutory inch to each five acres. Experience supports the statement that this is adequate not only for trees but for crops planted between the rows of trees. The pumping and electrical equipment is as good as money can buy and expert engineers can design.

THE FIRST STEP is often the most difficult. It takes capital and hard work and careful planning to make a first payment, put up a house, buy trees, set them out, plant the right sort of crops in the right sort of way, and make money the first year.

It is a business necessity with us to get thirty families prosperously established at Orchard City by March 1, 1914, and to see to it that they have done well, are satisfied, happy and enthusiastic when another year comes around. Because, if we have thirty prosperous families there in the spring of 1915, we can sell all the rest of the land in the Exposition Year.

So we want to talk with diligent, intelligent men and women, who have the intelligence to properly investigate this, and the enterprise and courage to go ahead after they investigate. We cannot sell this land for "Nothing down." We cannot do a man's farming for him. We cannot give a man a start who has nothing to start with. But we do believe that we can open a door of opportunity to diligent people, with limited means.

We have a very good investment for people of more means. We have every facility for planting and caring for tracts for those who wish to stay in town until their trees are bearing—and this at low cost.

$250. AN ACRE WITH WATER

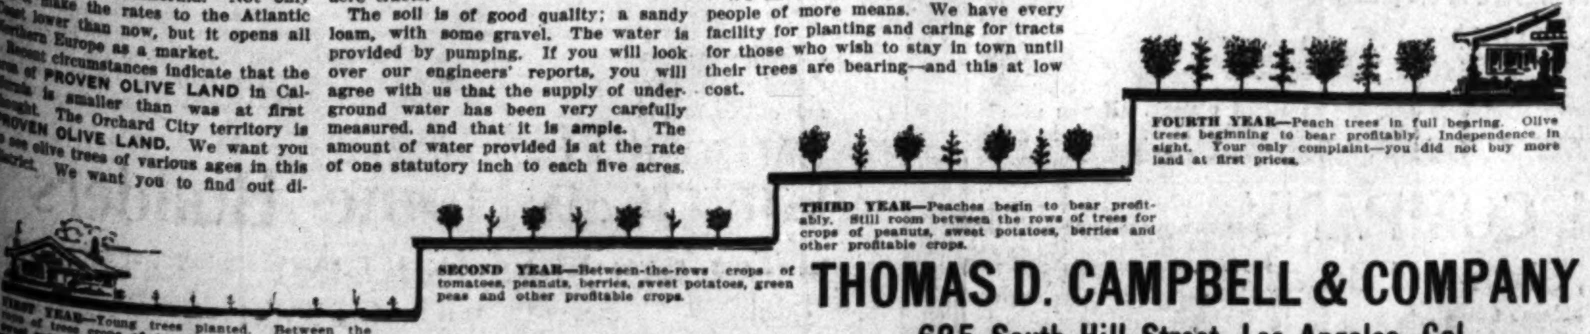
TERMS—One-fifth cash; Balance at 3, 4, 5 and 6 years at 6 per cent.

The sole reason for making the price so low is to get in good settlers THIS YEAR.

We invite comparison of this land and these water rights with those of lands selling at from $400 to $600 an acre, some of them closely adjacent.

There MAY be other lands in Southern California level, well watered, located on the main line of a transcontinental railroad, surrounded by growing and prosperous communities and for sale at prices within $150 per acre as low as this, or on terms anywhere nearly so easy—but if there are any

WE DON'T KNOW WHERE.



FIRST YEAR—Young trees planted. Between the rows of trees crops of tomatoes, peanuts, berries, sweet potatoes, green peas and other profitable crops.

SECOND YEAR—Between-the-rows crops of tomatoes, peanuts, berries, sweet potatoes, green peas and other profitable crops.

THIRD YEAR—Peaches begin to bear profitably. Still room between the rows of trees for crops of peanuts, sweet potatoes, berries and other profitable crops.

FOURTH YEAR—Peach trees in full bearing. Olive trees beginning to bear profitably. Independence in sight. Your only complaint—you did not buy more land at first prices.

Mines and Mining in the Great Southwest.

California Mines.

MAJOR COMPANY AFTER BEDROCK.

To Explore Richland Gravel Channel.

Iron Enterprise Is Proving Profitable.

Angelenos Close Deal for Jacksonville Mines.

NEVADA CITY, Dec. 11.—Installation of equipment has been completed at the Richland mine and sinking is progressing to tap the bedrock of the Manzanita channel. As soon as this work is finished the gravel channel will be developed through drifts. This channel yielded phenomenal riches in the early days of the district.

The work is being done by the Major Gold Mining Company, composed of Los Angeles capitalists, and indications are distinctly encouraging. The Manzanita channel yielded millions when worked by the hydraulic miners, and the mine was producing lavishly when anti-hydraulic legislation forced suspension of work. Large areas of virgin ground remain to be explored.

Developments at the Oustomah continue most encouraging, and several shoots recently opened below the 300 level are showing up well. Sinking is under way and a good tonnage is being milled. The working force was recently increased and Manager Klinker expects to continue with a full force all winter. By spring it is believed the Oustomah will be in shape to maintain a heavy and steady yield.

The Mammoth Copper Mining Company, operating at Kennett, took under bond last week the extensive holdings of the Shasta Copper Exploration Company, near the main Mammoth properties. The group embraces thirty-five claims and has been developed extensively.

This marks the fourth important acquisition by the Mammoth people in the present year. They have started building a road to the recently purchased Spread Eagle group, and plan early shipments from this mine to the Kennett smelter.

Operations have been resumed at the Heroult electric smelter after five months of idleness, during which time the furnaces were reconstructed and improved. Coke is now used in place of charcoal and it is said the iron is being produced at a cost sufficiently low to make the enterprise a profitable ofie. The first furnace is of the 3000-kilowatt type, with a capacity of thirty-five tons of pig iron per day.

Arrangements are under way immediately to place a second furnace, of 2000-kilowatt design, in commission, and other units will be added until the smelter is producing 250 to 300 tons of iron daily. The management states that the feasibility of producing high-grade pig iron by means of the electric furnace has been conclusively demonstrated, and with the use of coke the economical success of the enterprise is assured.

The experiments under way at Heroult have been extended over a period of about eight years, and the results are expected to lead to the exploitation of the vast iron ore resources of Madera, San Bernardino and other counties, as well as those of Shasta county. The mines and smelter at Heroult are operated by the Noble Electrical Steel Company.

The Oro Mining Company of Los Angeles has disposed of the Clio and Clio Hillside lines to a syndicate of Los Angeles capitalists headed by Robert Graner. The properties are situated at Jacksonville, Tuolumne county, and the purchase price is $150,000, to be paid in installments within five years. Ten per cent. of the gross output of the mine is to apply to the purchase price. The papers have been filed with the recorder, and it is understood work will start at once.

Work was resumed at the Santa Ysabel mine last week, atfer a long period of idleness. The mine is located near the old mining town of Stent and is considered one of the most promising properties on the Tuolumne portion of the mother lode. Twelve men are putting the old workings in shape for active production, and this force will be steadily augmented until the mine is operating at full capacity. The Santa Ysabel is equipped with a good mine and reduction plant.

A new shoot was intersected last week in the Central Eureka mine, at Sutter Creek. The discovery was made in the cross-cut from the 3000-foot level at a point east of the main workings. It is believed to be the continuation of the rich ore body which yielded large profits in the older levels. Assays of the ore average around $10 per ton, with the vein wide and quartz free milling. The property adjoins the notede South Eureka on of the richest producers on the mother lode.

Recent developments in the Eagle-Shawmut mine near Sonora, the premier producer of Tuolumne county, have claimed much attention. The main shaft is 2600 feet deep, and an adit has been driven to connect with the shaft a at point 400 feet below surface. The water-power plant has been replaced with electrical equipment, and considerable additional machinery has been installed.

Developments are to be carried on at greater depth, and new levels opened. An abundance of excellent high-grade ore is blocked out, and the mine has been the principa lagency in proving the persistent character of the ore bodies in this section of the lode.

NATOMAS FINANCES.

The investment of $3,000,000 in the Natomas Consolidated of California by English capitalists has given keen satisfaction to the large number of stockkholders, many of whom are residents of Los Angeles, Pasadena and other Southern California cities. The company owns some of the richest placer deposits in the State, and vast areas of agricultural lands, but has been constantly handicapped by lack of sufficient funds.

Over-sanguine expectations of a high-priced English engineer failed to develop, and the need of more capital has caused the officials and stockholders much anxiety. Last week it was officially announced that British people had become heavily interested, and that $3,000,000 would shortly be available for consummation of the extensive projects now under way.

Winter holds sway in the camp of High Grade. The various companies have completed the shipment of supplies to the mines, and work is largely confined to underground points. More winter developments are going on than at any time since the discovery of the field, and the outlook is generally favorable for a good production as soon as spring begins.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Not Graphite.

SALT LAKE CITY (Utah) Nov. 22.—Q.: Last time I sent samples you said you were glad to hear from me, so, I send two more samples. I think the gray sample is marble, but maybe it is gypsum. The black (No. 2) runs through the gypsum or marble and appears to widen from the top to twenty feet down. The vein that it belongs to seems to be three or four feet wide. If it should fill with depth the body of gypsum should be three or four weet wide, alone. So far as we know we have sixteen feet wide on the ledge and twenty feet depth. Do not know how much more there is. Kindly inform me what the black is. Your Los Angeles men who saw it said it was graphite, but I do not know. J. D. F.

A.: Glad to hear from you again and always. It is a pleasure to test samples for you, but we know nothing of the Los Angeles men you refer to. There is no graphite in any sample. The white massive specimen is up to the high-grade Utah gypsum, and the blackish samples are altered calcite, with carbonaceous matter, iron and manganese in the mass. Sort of wad, if you please.

Slaty Shale.

ORANGE, Nov. 23.—Q.: Will you kindly report on the enclosed ore from Imperial county? It has been assayed high in platinum associated with tellurium and selenium, and other elements, but we want the report verified. Your kindness in doing this, if it comes within the scope of your regular work, will be greatly appreciated. H. R. G.

A.: Glad to hear from you. We tested the sample most carefully and found that platinum, selenium and tellurium are not present in the mass. Further testing shows that titanic iron, micaceous hematite, quartz, aluminum silicate and traces of antimony are present.

Not Talc.

SAWTELLE, Nov. 24.—Q.: Enclosed please find sample of talc. Has it any commercial value, and what would it be worth f.o.b., refining works? F. D. M.

A.: Sample is a mixture of Fuller's earth and altered meerschaum. The specimen is too minute for a thorough test. Offer the product to wall plaster makers, and to manufacturers of "fillers," etc.

Lead Molybdate.

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Nov. 25.—Q.: I am mailing by same mail as this a package with two mineral specimens in it. No. 1 is from a locality in Southern Utah, and No. 2 was taken from a small lead near Crescent, Nev. I have sampled No. 2 as well as I can, and while I get no reaction for vanadium, or at most but slightly, two of my associates state positively that the crystal matter in this specimen is undoubtedly lead vanadate. Will you please test this out and state results in 'In the Earth?" As to No. 1, this reminds me of some copper samples that I have seen in cabinets, but in acid solutions I get negative result for copper. Please test mineral and name it, mineralogically, and I may add that it may be a new mineral. T. L. J.

A.: Glad to hear from you. We had quite an experience 'way back East, and with three mineralogists of New York City. The three gentlemen referred to reported the Crescent samples as lead vanadate. The writer could not confirm this view by chemical analysis, and took samples to Dr. Frank L. Hess, geologist of the United States Géological Survey, Washington, D. C. There the mineral was tested out, and while it is most deceptive in its microscopical crystals and colors the samples you submit are lead molybdate (Wulfenite,) and there is not a trace of vanadium in sample No. 2.

No. 1 is soluble in water. Did you make this water test? It does not carry a trace of copper. It is ochre yellow in color; streak same color as the sample. Luster silky and pearly. Hardness, 3.30; of delicate, fibrous and aggregated structure. It is a variety of Copiapite, and is the mineral known in mineralogy as fibroferrite. There are several ledges of mineralized rock, said to average about 6 per cent. quicksilver. (sesquisulphate of iron.) The fibers in this sample are fibrous in a direction perpendicular to the plane of separation, and the fibers are translucent. The composition of the specimen is, approximately: iron peroxide, 34.44; sulphuric acid, [illegible]; water, 36.67, percentages respectively. Before the blowpipe fibroferrite becomes magnetic; it is soluble in cold water and is decomposed by boiling water. In the closed tube it yields water, and "at high temperature sulphuuric acid is given off." On charcoal, the mineral mixed with soda, and the flame applied yields a magnetic button, and gives the sulphuric acid reaction. Alone on charcoal, and with flame applied, the mineral decrepitates violently, gives off sulphurous fumes, and yields [illegible] peroxide.

Fibroferrite is frequently confused with ores of uranium, with native copper, with ferrous and ferric oxides and so forth. A good way to "catch on" to such mineral is to taste some of the parasitic mineral growth, as it were, which appears in the sample here and there, sparingly, as a coating; when, lo, the nauseous [illegible] sulphate taste is 'acquired' [illegible] by the tongue.

Mixed Samples.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—Q.: I am sending you a few samples of ores which I shall be pleased to have you examine and report on through your very interesting department.

No. 1 is from an iron capping of great size, which has shown nickel traces in places. No. 2 is from a [illegible] lower down and seems to be the vein which this iron caps. It indicates a width of about six feet, and shows nickel. What is the gangue, and in what form is the nickel and copper present? No. 3 is from a vein about twenty miles distant. It carries a good deal of copper, but what are the other metals? No. 4 is near No. 1. I think it carries a good deal of arsenic. What else? Nos. 5 and 6 are both from the same copper vein. What is the flaky mineral, No. 5, and what is the black striated matter in No. 6? C. E. I.

A.: No. 1 is aluminum silicate, quartz sparingly disseminated; magnesium-calcium carbonate [illegible]. Iron peroxide (microscopical) in the mass. Epidote present. No. 2, calcite in the mass with seams of epidotic matter. Copper present. The gangue (matrix) of this sample is the epidotic rock chiefly. Azurite and malachite show under the glass. Pyrrhotite traces. Nickel and cobalt traces. The low nickel value is probably from the pyrrhotite. No. 3 is fahlerz; copper, arsenic, antimony, lead, chalcopyrite, pyrite, pyrrhotite (in greater or smaller percentages) present. Nickel, a trace. No. 4 is not genthite. It is epidotic; arsenic, antimony, chalcopyrite and pyrrhotite sparingly present. Nickel, a trace. No. 5, "flaky mineral," is hematite (variety micaceous iron.) No. 6 (the [illegible] all of the samples,) is most interesting, and assuming that you are familiar with its metallic contents, allow us to answer the question relating to the black striated matter. All of this striated matter is not black. Acicular epidote represents the [illegible] green substances, and hornblende is present with amphibole.

If you go further on in development send us samples once in a while. Glad to hear from you.

CONSERVATION OF THE WORKING GIRLS' WAGES.

BY JENNIE VAN ALLEN.

IF A WORKING girl saves a quarter a week, where can she put it for safe keeping.

She cannot hide it in her hall bedroom nor can she go to work with a pocketful of jingling coins. With few exceptions the banks are not open in the morning and are closed when her day is ended. Naturally the quarter goes for candy, soda water and picture shows, providing her dire necessities do not force her to use it in meeting her obligations.

From one generation to another the average wage-earner makes no provision for age, loss of employment, accident, sickness or death. Long before she gets her pay envelope, every penny is mortgaged for her needs and desires. Without a dollar to her name and with no hope of accumulation, she floats like foam on a turbulent sea.

The average wage-earner is improperly dressed and has too many little luxuries. Her income forbids the purchase of expensive garments, but her hats, cloaks, dresses and toilet accessories are the cheap imitation of the fads of the hour, rather than the sensible fashions of yesterday. The changing modes tax women of wealth but the shop girl manages to adopt all the little vagaries of dress—belts, sleeves, hair ornaments, collars and laces like my lady.

THE HEART ACHES.

There is nothing substantial, nothing enduring in the garb of a big percentage of the young girls who your out of the "employees' entrance" of department stores. And the heart of a woman who loves the fascination of rich fabrics, fine furs and fascinating laces, aches for girls whose souls are aflame with the same passion. Dress has always been one of the tragedies of life. In the days when women wore homespun; when a calico dress was a luxury and when merino or silk was the sign of affluence; when the style of gowns never changed; when the pattern of a full skirt, plain waist and mutton leg sleeves descended from one generation to another, even then dress was a stumbling block to a lover of beauty.

And in this day when the products of the loom are so alluring, and shop girls daily handle everything that is costly and beautiful, it is little wonder that not being able to possess gold, she contents herself with tarnished brass, that she makes a pitiful effort to be the replica of a fashionable woman. It is the inevitable longing of her environment of beauty, and when girls swarm out at night like bees from an overturned hive and are practically penniless, yet craving food and light and music to send their sluggish blood tingling through their veins, is it any wonder that the human vultures lining the curb are seen with a new face every night at dinner? Statistics show that among wage-earners, girls take their first downward step after a hard day behind the counter, for like Esau, they sell their birthright for a mess of pottage.

To induce men and women on small salaries to save has been one of the greatest problems in social economics. Not that they could not save, but there is no safe place for their money is the universal argument. Banks that are open day and night offer a solution, but men and women of spirit are ashamed to lay down a few coins to open an account. And this prevents thousands from making an effort to save a pittance from their insufficient incomes. And so they drift into the open sea and too often their little crafts never find a safe harbor.

More than a decade ago an eastern woman who was superintendent of a business where more than a thousand girls were employed was appalled at their lack of thrift. Not one had a bank account and only a small percentage, made provident by bitter experience, carried their small savings close to their anxious hearts. But every girl vetoed her suggestion to save a quarter a week from her small earnings. Two dimes and a nickel represented their only hope of pleasure and they vehemently declared they would never make the sacrifice.

SMALL ECONOMIES.

Day after day she patiently urged the wisdom of self-denial and small economies, the wearing of passing fashions rather than striving for those of tomorrow. She taught them simple devices for modish touches to their clothes and the secret of fresh ribbons and laces. Inch by inch she scored in favor of saving, but their good resolutions were wrecked on the rock of "Where can we put our money for safe-keeping?"

Finally the plan was evolved to make her their banker and every week the girls turned in their savings which she deposited in bulk in a bank paying 4 per cent. Each girl had her individual account with the superintendent and was credited with the interest on her account. The results were posted every week on a blackboard in the girls' cloakroom and there were regular jubilees as deposits took on large proportions.

Girls receiving the best wages, or those for any reason able to save most, naturally received the largest returns, but instead of engendering jealousy, seemed to stimulate the others to finer economies.

When one gay, improvident girl found herself possessed of one dollar, drawing 4 per cent. in a bank, she cried exultantly:

"Ever since the day I was given my first penny to the time I earned a few dollars I've spent money faster than it came. I've always been broke and when I'm hungry I'd almost sell my soul for a good dinner. But I'm on the road to being a capitalist and the Johnnies have no more attractions for me. Oh, isn't it glorious to have a bank account!"

And this modest beginning blossomed into a strong organization with "home" for their motto, the American flag as their emblem for they were not under false colors and "girls save your pennies" for their watchword. In a decade these working girls, receiving from $3 to $10 a week, were drawing interest on $5000 in one of the safest banks in the United States.

It is the greatest object lesson ever given girls receiving a minimum wage and it was made possible because one woman cared for the future of working girls. The need of wage-earners in Los Angeles is appalling. Every niche is full to overflowing with girls of high purposes who must earn their living. But the records of the police courts and jails tells the old story of spending every dollar and looking to dangerous sources for pleasures at the beaches and in the city.

In the great co-operative plans between the employer and the employed, the bank account idea should be fostered. If every girl [illegible] a store or factory had a bank account, it would be a greater protection in temptation than a tender conscience. When conscience is pitted against an empty stomach and a life bare of every reasonable joy, conscience is beaten in the conflict. The natural longing for a good time is the remote if not the immediate cause of a wage-earner's woes.

The problem of educating girls to the necessity of a savings account ought to command the serious attention of employers and of women of means and leisure, whose honored names and influence would be a guarantee of good faith in the capacity of banker for girls having neither the knowledge nor courage to open a private account in a savings bank. Girls who are drifting into troubled waters, because no one cares enough to put a hand on the rudder. Not a covetable task, to educate headstrong girls, but it is worth while to bring them to the realization of what a bank account means to the upholding of a high moral standard.

EASY TO HELP.

It is so easy for a woman of influence to help the self-supporting woman. I well remember my first day as a society reporter. The rain and sleet and snow had beaten me almost into insensibility. My veil was frozen to my face and a fringe of icicles hung around my skirt. But physical discomfort was nothing compared to the terror of facing my editor with an empty notebook. In the whole gamut of human wretchedness there is no humiliation so poignant as the misery of a reporter who "falls down on a story." And that stormy December afternoon it seemed that every society leader in the city was taking a siesta.

I was heartsick as I stumbled up the steps of the stately home of a distinguished society woman. Newspaper tradition credited her with never giving a line of advance news of her affairs during the two decades of her social supremacy. Reporters could come to her functions and were graciously received, but no parade in advance.

There was a delicious rush of warm, perfumed air as the butler admitted me. And then the white-haired mistress hurried down the broad stairs. She was partly dressed for the theater and had only five minutes to spare. But she gave me the details of the coming out party of her only grandchild and the beautiful girl's picture which meant a "scoop" and a front page story that made the heart of the kindest man but the most merciless editor rejoice.

And she poured out on the library table a basketful of invitations from the most exclusive set in the city—a column of covetable society news. And when my heart ached so with joy that I couldn't thank her she said very gently:

"I have always been so averse to having my affairs chronicled in advance that for years the papers have never troubled me to say 'no.' But the other day a young girl came to report my reception and I told her of my invariable rule. I was going out to dine and she followed me to the carriage pleading for just a word on which to hang a story. Finally she fell on her knees on the sidewalk, crying:

"'Oh, you don't know what it means to me if you refuse!'

"I had to pull my dress from her hand and her despairing face haunted me for days. I finally telephoned the editor to send her to me. To my unspeakable sorrow he said: 'Why, I discharged her the night of your reception because she had not covered a single assignment. She was desperately anxious to please, but somehow she couldn't get the news. So I had to let her go and I don't know where she is!' And the beautiful woman's fine face was convulsed with sorrow as she cried.

"And I could have saved her so easily! Oh, how little women of means and leisure know what we can do for women and for girls who need a friendly hand! Not money, but time and love and thought which are the most precious gifts of one to another."

CAN WAGES BE KEPT UP?

DOMESTIC industry, though somewhat upset just now, will readjust itself in time. The only question and the more serious one is whether American high wages can be kept up in the face of foreign low wages competition. The President and his friends promised before election that nothing should be done by the Democratic party if it came into power, to alarm or disturb or damage American business interests. But now we are told by these same Democrats that competition with foreign low wages workmen is a healthy thing and the new freedom, as the President terms it, is the privilege of hustling harder, working perhaps for less wages, to continue the full volume of work that we are used to and hold our own markets.

It is doubtful if under any present circumstances our industries can be maintained in their former volume and strength, but the trouble is to be faced with all courage and the best made of a bad situation, which can (and will) be remedied by new legislation, perhaps in 1915, but certainly in 1917—following the elections in the November's of the previous year. If wages go down in the meantime they will have to stay down. The remedy will be in the working voters own hands and available for use at the elections of November, 1914, and November, 1916.

ARE STRIKES EVER JUSTIFIABLE?

[EDITORIAL.]

AS a result of the intolerable conditions said to exist among the workers in the more poorly-paid grades of labor, a general strike is threatened in England, Scotland and Wales.

Before condemning so disastrous a move, for it would prove disastrous to those it is presumed to help, we must remember that no inference can be drawn, as to the justification of such a programme, from the general conditions of labor in our own country. Our day laborers in California are as well paid as skilled mechanics in London and Glasgow; while the British day laborer exists on a scanty wage that a Mexican working on our street and grading gangs would scornfully refuse.

In America the cost of living has gone up chiefly because the rate of wages has increased; the proportion is almost even. In Great Britain the cost of living has also gone up, but the rate of wages has remained almost stationary. Under such conditions it is not hard for organized labor unions and such agitators as the irrepressible and magnetic "Jim" Larkin to stir up the nation to the point of a general strike in all ranks of labor.

Now, whatever may be the legitimate grievances of labor in the British Isles, a general strike is the poorest method devisable for alleviating them. Conditions in France under the burdensome rule of the Bourbons are supposed to have justified the French Revolution, the most general national strike on record, since everyone stopped working and went to slaughtering. But the means employed failed utterly to bring about the ends aimed at. Whatever benefits France received, as a result of this national strike, she owes not to Marat, or Danton, or Robespierre, but to the genius of the soldier-emperor, Napoleon.

Great Britain enjoys practically universal male suffrage; she is a free country. There is no necessity for a majority of her people to resort to a general strike to ameliorate conditions. Only discontented minorities in modern civilized countries will resort to a plan of relief that inevitably leads to deeds of violence in the streets and increased suffering in the homes of the poor.

For, if the majority of her workers are not obtaining their fair share of England's immense wealth—and at present trade and business are undeniably active in the British Isles—then, that majority has a sure remedy in its own keeping; and that remedy is the ballot box. A strike, while it might destroy the present national prosperity and harass the fortunate few, would not improve the lot of the unfortunate many. Trades unions, by keeping within the law, can undoubtedly aid the cause of labor; but every trades union official knows well that no general strike could be brought about without lawlessness and the defiance of all constituted authority being the inevitable consequence.

On this score alone no strike can be considered justifiable. The harder the conditions in a country, the more volunteers there will be to take the places of the strikers, and the greater will be the ensuing popular fury on both sides. This may suit interested agitators, but not the true friends of labor.

If as large a proportion of the people live as close to the bread line as Jim Larkin represents, then a general strike must end in a second reign of terror. If conditions have been exaggerated for the purpose of stirring up strife, then the agitation becomes criminal.

Let the workers of England make no mistake; the ballot is mightier than the bludgeon.

SEAMEN'S BILL ALARMS OWNERS

Great Lakes Steamer Lines Call It Unjust.

Declare It Allows One Man to Tie Up a Ship.

Say It's a Radical Measure for Labor Unions.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 10.—The Lake Michigan Association of Passenger and Package Freight Steamboat Lines is sending out a circular on the subject of the La Follette seamen's bill now pending in Congress in which it brings out in forceful manner some striking injustices of the measure, which is said to be the most radical labor union legislation ever offered in the American Congress.

Under the terms of the bill, for instance, a single union man can tie up indefinitely any passenger or freight boat worth millions of dollars by the simple expedient of refusing to go aboard.

The following are extracts from the circular letter:

"For reasons set forth therein the Great Lakes, bays and sound steamers ask to be exempt from the La Follette bill as have been the rivers and harbors.

"We are, and have been, giving our passengers the benefit of modern safety equipment; and our crews are not 'shanghied' or subject to ocean-going privations.

"In 1912 the Lakes, Bays and Sound Association lines carried 32,000,000 passengers without losing one. Keep that in mind when you hear someone making a Congressional Record speech.

"As for the able-seaman clause, read that carefully. One certified able seaman can remain ashore on any whim whatsoever and tie up the $1,600,000 Seeandbee.

"How far could a factory, hotel or even Congress itself get if the absence of one man could sew it up?

"One of the modern steel lake steamers, built in 1911 at a cost of $300,000, travels a course the maximum distance of which from shore is five miles. If she sank at the place of greatest depth—thirty-six feet—three decks would remain above water.

"The company operating this ship has operated steamers on this route for fifty years without loss of life by accident.

"Under the La Follette bill this ship would be required to have a crew of 450, and to carry 183 lifeboats. These boats would weigh approximately 230 tons. If all available deck space were utilized she could not accommodate 183 lifeboats. It would be impossible to fit her with enough davits to carry anywhere near this number.

"In case of accident she could reach shore in fifteen minutes, less time than would be required to lower any considerable number of lifeboats.

"To accommodate the surplus crew would necessitate the use of cabin, parlors and dining-room for crews' quarters.

"To limit the number of passengers to the capacity of her lifeboats it would be necessary to charge a prohibitive rate of fare.

"The La Follette bill would require this ship to be equipped the same as a ship sailing around the world. There is no resemblance between this ship and an ocean liner.

"Inform your Congressman that the La Follette bill is unjust to such ships. Urge him to have the Great Lakes, bay and sound steamers made exempt from the provisions of the La Follette bill, Senate Bill No. 136."

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES AND STRIKERS OF THIS BUSY WORLD.

TWO hundred thousand dollars wages loss is what it cost the 14,000 General Electric Company of Schenectady workers to indulge themselves with a five days' fool strike. What money loss was also suffered by the company is not known, but it was doubtless very considerable. For that, however, the strikers cared nothing. Strikers never do care anything for the losses they inflict upon their employers and the public. In the strike settlement there was no more recognition of the union than there was before the strike. The strikers admit that the strike was a bad mistake and its ending was celebrated with tooting of horns and blowing of whistles and Dr. Lunn, the outgoing Socialist Mayor, shouting "I did it" (which he did not.) The strikers also say the strike showed their strength in numbers. Even if it did, $200,000 cash was a big price to pay for the gratification. The men, because of reduced business, have asked the company not to discharge workers but to run the whole force on part time. The local unions do not question the right of the company to reduce force when necessary. When the company has to do that its policy is to lay off the out-of-town men first; then the unmarried men and finally those who have most recently entered the service.

Because of his refusal to carry freight from Dublin, which was handled in that city by strike-breakers, the Great Western Railway of England discharged one engine-driver. Immediately 400 of the company's engine drivers and firemen in South Wales went on strike. The leaders of the Railway Workers' Union oppose this fool strike and strike pay will not be granted. It is likely, nevertheless, that the strike will spread. This is the third "one-man" strike of British workers. Two big collieries are idle in sympathy. London railroad men may also go out in sympathy.

The teamsters' strike is on in full force in Indianapolis but the proposed general strike of all workers in the city is not occurring. Some rioting, violence and shooting occurred, with people (mostly outsiders) being hurt and killed. The new Mayor, Wallace, and the business men are grappling with the bad situation vigorously and successfully. The Mayor and the police properly refuse to allow street parades of the striking teamsters and chauffeurs. The police are armed with riot guns and keep patrolling the city in fire department automobiles. The whole city is under semi-military law. Employers of labor are organizing to unitedly resist the teamsters' outrageous demands. Many teamsters are not members of the union and they are being protected by Mayor Wallace and the police. The citizens have an armed cavalry of fifty. The clergymen of the city are to settle the strike but their proposals are laughed at and jeered at by the strikers. Bakery goods are scarce as the mills cannot find wagons to deliver flour. Trouble and confusion generally exist. The strike leaders want arbitration but without first ending the strike. In other words they want arbitration by force. That position is absurd.

The disaffection among the staff of the British postoffice, nearly 100,000 of whom recently threatened to strike at Christmas for the refused increase of pay, is finding expression in acts of wilful destruction of government property—dropping typewriting machines down the air shaft at London and destroying books and records. Decidedly these disaffected ones are "male militants" and are copying Mrs. Pankhurst and associates.

Navy yard employees all over the country are protesting against the wage reduction advised by the wage board of the Navy Department. They filed a counter-claim for increased wages. This is where soapy Sam Gompers ought to go and see "My friend (President) Wilson." This is a chance for some of the practical wage work for wage-earners which Gompers does not do.

The Philadelphia garment-workers strike is now in its twenty-third week. During its progress there have been numerous riots, hundreds of attacks on operatives who remained at work, one fatal shooting and another probably fatal. Scores have been injured as a result of the riots, and property has been destroyed. Five thousand went out at first, but 2000 made some kind of terms with scattered manufacturers and went back to work. Three thousand are now out.

The Colorado coal miners' strike has become a revolution and is being dealt with by the Governor and the military authorities as such. The strike region is now an armed camp. A unionist strike leader admits that he supplied strikers with arms and ammunition. He confessed and is held as a military prisoner. He admits being a deserter from the German army and a rabid Socialist. He has also been indicted by the United States grand jury for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in conspiring to restrain trade. How he can be prosecuted for that is a question, because, in his anxiety to favor Gompers and union labor, President Wilson signed the infamous "rider" which prevents government money being used to prosecute unionlaborites for breaches of that law. Twenty-five of the head officials of the United Mine Workers are also under United States grand jury indictments in connection with this strike. These include John P. White, president; Frank J. Hayes, vice-president, and William P. Green, treasurer. The grand jury report says: "The United Mine Workers have imported experienced strike agitators and have armed hundreds of irresponsible aliens, who have become a menace to the peace and prosperity and even to the lives of our citizens. They created open insurrection in Southern Colorado, and have resorted to measures which all fair-minded labor organizations have repudiated. Evidently no qualification of membership is necessary in the United Mine Workers (as in the I.W.W.—the writer) other than a promise to pay dues, which apparently are used to support insurrection and lawlessness." The specific charge against White, Hays and Green is maintaining or attempting to maintain a monopoly of labor. Offences by union laborites against the Sherman law have become numerous since President Wilson provided immunity by signing the exemption "rider" above referred to.

There is a hatmakers' strike going on in New York, which is causing trouble. Taxicabs taking workers to a non-union factory have been stoned and one wounded man may die. Three men were shot in front of the factory.

Ice wagon drivers have joined the teamsters' strike at Indianapolis. Drivers of wagons from mills, factories and wholesale and retail houses have been stoned and driven from their wagons. No coal can be delivered. Wholesale grocers refuse to deliver goods and will sell only for cash. Lots of other troubles of a similar kind.

The Paterson (N. J.) broad silk weavers do not wish to join the ribbon weavers in a strike for the nine-hour day. They are willing, though, to help financially if the strike comes, as it surely will. There are 6000 broad silk weavers and an equal number of silk ribbon weavers. The total number of dyers who were in the last strike was 10,000. They are undecided as yet in the present issue. I.W.W. organizers are urging another general strike under the violent leadership. Haywood is keeping out of sight so far. The last strike cost the silk workers $3,507,000 lost wages. With winter on, another strike would be suicidal.

WEST ADAMS PARK.

The subdivision department of Robert Marsh & Co. reports the sale last week of the following properties: House and lot in West Adams Park to Charles E. Johnston, $3700; house and lot in West Adams Park to W. H. Adams, $3700, and lot in Ethel-Wyn Manor Height, to Ruby V. Lindsay, $960.

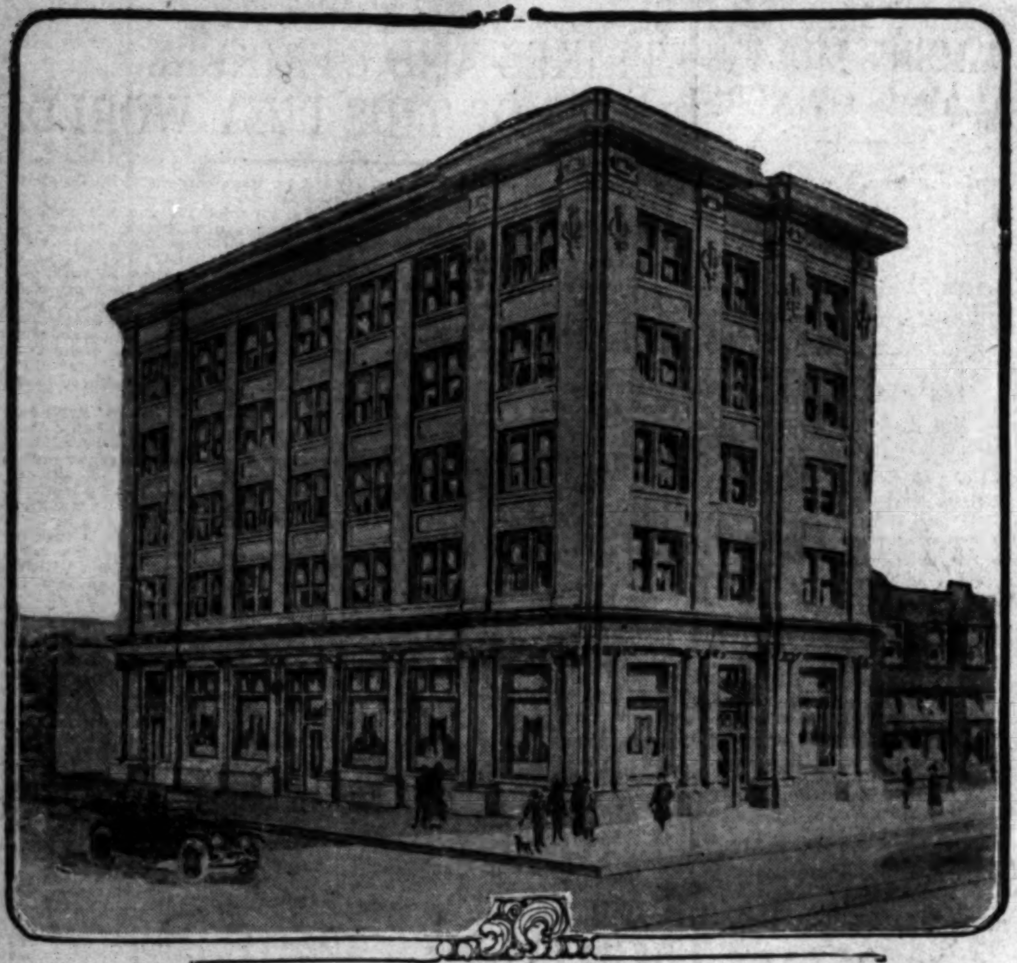
Splendid Improvement for Southland City.



Proposed Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank building at Santa Ana.

BANK WILL BE CREDIT TO CITY.

SANTA ANA INSTITUTION TO BUILD FINE BLOCK.

Structure Will Be Five Stories in Height and Fireproof—Is to Occupy Site of Old Financial House. Los Angeles Concern Now Completing Plans.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 13.—Plans for the splendid fireproof building to be erected in this city by the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank are now being completed by T. Beverley Keim, Jr., & Co., architectural engineers, of Los Angeles. The structure, which is to be the tallest and most modern building yet projected in Santa Ana, will cost approximately $120,000, exclusive of furnishings and fixtures, and will be started early next year.

The new financial house will occupy the site of the present Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank at Fourth and Main, a small brick structure which is to be razed to make way for the larger and more up-to-date improvement. The corner is 50x100 feet in size. The new bank will be of steel frame construction and five stories in height above a basement. The bank will occupy the ground floor and mezzanine.

The building will contain fifty-six offices on the four upper floors and these are to be as modernly arranged and appointed as any in Los Angeles. Among the modern conveniences to be provided will be vacuum cleaning, a hot water circulating system, steam heat, built-in lavatories and elevator service. The office entrance will be on Main street and will be handsomely finished in marble and tile. The bank will have entrances on both street frontages.

The structure will be faced with brick and terra cotta, the base being of granite. Architecturally it will follow classic lines. The quarters of the bank will be richly finished and appointed. Fireproof vaults are to be built in both the bank proper and the basement.

The bank officials believe that Santa Ana has reached the point in its advance where it can consider itself a city and are determined to make the projected building a credit to this place and to Orange county. Those directly in charge of the enterprise are W. A. Huff and J. A. Turner, president and cashier, respectively, of the institution.

Hot Game.

L.A.A.C. BEATS ARDEN CLUB.

But the Englishmen Keep Score Down.

Brandt Makes Seventy-five-Yard Run.

Ardenites Nearly Score on Several Occasions.

L.A.A.C., 8; Arden, 0.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club fifteen had the surprise of their lives yesterday afternoon at Bovard Field, when they lined up against the newly-formed Arden Club. The Athletics only just managed to win by a score of 1 goal and 1 try to nothing.

The score is no criterion of the game, which was fought every inch. The Ardenites not only held the L.A.A.C. in the scrum but out-dribbled them at every stage of the game.

Brandt was the only Athletic to score, making both trys, which won the game. The first was a pretty run for seventy-five yards from a throw-out and which Stan Mitchell converted. The second was made from a scrimmage, but was unconverted.

The first five points came from a lucky run; one which may occur in any football game. With no opposition, Brandt just trotted the required distance, touched the ball in the most favorable spot and Mitchell booted it over the bar.

This is just what the Ardenites wanted. With five points against them, they went after the Athletic like a pack of hounds after a fox. So well did they play, that at half time the L.A.A.C. could only claim a lead by their single goal.

The second half was even better. F. E. Palmer, the English international, and H. Elliott, an All-California player, nearly got over the line on two occasions, but were cleverly tackled a few feet from the coveted line. C. E. Renraw, one of the Arden half-backs, was as nippy as a flea and often failed to pass the ball to the three-quarter backs.

Albers made several excellent "dribbles," but the Arden forwards, by their fast foot work regained all lost territory. Brandt made it eight points in favor of the Athletics just before time was called. So keen were the players to play overtime, that Referee [illegible] [illegible] the game for another fifteen minutes.

STRENUOUS RUN SHOWS PEP OF MOTOR CAR DEALERS

Earle Y. Boothe, Winner on the National, Sizes Up Rest of the Bunch of Consistent Contenders, Each of Whom Finished With Honors on a Run that Meant a Real Get-Together Motorfest.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

THAT the Los Angeles Automobile Dealers' consistency tour was the most successful ever held is the unanimous opinion of the autoists who took part in the run to San Diego. At least half of the participants returned yesterday and others are on their way home today. As a get-together hike it was pronounced a success from the start to the finish.

One of the unique features of this tour was the fact that H. J. Coger, on the Buick, the man who was penalized the most severely, and Earle Y. Boothe, on the National, who won, enjoyed lunch together yesterday at Las Rosas in San Juan Capistrano, with Coger just as happy as the National man who had won the trophy.

One of the remarkable features of a tour that was replete with new ideas lies in the fact that there were no mechanical troubles on the entire run. Not one of those cars was penalized for faults in the mechanism. As a matter of fact, on the entire run of 210 miles only three punctures were recorded.

No man on this tour is capable of giving his opinion of the outing better than Earle Y. Boothe, the winner. The National man, in his resume of the tour, was most anxious to give credit where credit belongs and he accords praise to every driver who had a part in the tour over the hills to the southern city.

BY EARLE Y. BOOTHE.

"Let me not be accused of egotism," said Boothe last night when speaking of the tour. "Yes, I won, but it was not because of any superior ability as a driver, or because I had studied conditions more than any other man. It was because I carried a man who knew how to figure a running schedule and I kept to that schedule and reached the goal.

"This tour was a competition among the drivers and those drivers were either dealers or managers of automobile agencies. It was not a contest of cars. We were penalized according to our running schedules and it meant that we must hit the secret controls within sixty seconds of our time as recorded by the Chairman, Joe McDuffee, who is certainly one of the best managers I ever have known.

"Of course I am glad I won. There would be something the matter with me if I was not, but I have nothing to crow over. Other men drove close to the schedule and other drivers won honors, and the tour itself was so novel and interesting that I consider every man who had a part in this first outing is deserving of great credit.

"When I found that I had missed my two points on that first day it was my desire to do better the second day. This can be said of every dealer on that tour. Look at Cap Ryus, for instance. He was penalized more severely than I was on the run to Riverside, but on Friday he dug in with all his might and proved just as interesting an entry as any on the entire run though, to be honest about it, I don't believe Cap tried to win.

"About all Cap Ryus endeavored to do was to tie L. T. Shettler, and in his desire to line up with the Apperson man Cap overlapped a bit and defeated Shettler. However, he felt so sorry about it that he decided to see the most pathetic play, and the way he wept showed his sympathy for Shettler better than anything he did on the tour.

RYUS WEEPS.

"When we reached San Diego I believe Cap hoped Shettler would be ahead of him. Instead, he found he had again beaten Leon to it. What did he do? Why, he took in another play, and as 'Little Eva' died at his feet, Cap shed copious tears and I heard him murmur, 'Oh Shettler, Shettler, it's too bad, aint it?' Well, he wasn't speaking of the play, but of the tour.

"Then take, for instance, Air-Cooled Ralph. He was certainly a sport all the way through. He drove more consistently the second day than he did the first. What was the result? Ex-Mayor James E. Wadham toasted Ralph as the greatest automobile dealer in the world. No, Ralph would not accept all the honors, but I did notice that the Franklin had a mighty big crowd around it every time we stopped. Perhaps it was through curiosity to see that greatest dealer, but for persistency Ralph is a bright jewel and was there even when he was being roasted."

"Let them talk about fraternity all they please, but it's idle words to say that the dealers of Los Angeles do not understand each other. P. A. Lord was penalized that first day. He had the smallest car, but just glance at his record the second day. When told that he had been penalized only one point on the second half of the run, P. A. was as pleased as a child with a new top. He proved one of the best sports on the entire trip.

"Well, if you want me to size up the whole bunch you have handed me too big a job. I would say that Cap. Ryus holds the record for shedding the most tears, Shettler has the honors for being the most inconsistent driver and Hamlin takes the cake for being the most persistent. The whole bunch are so good that I am up against it when it comes to a real criticism.

HAIL TO M'DUFFEE.

"Just one word more about Joe McDuffee, manager of this entire tour. There is a man who works without asking thanks from any of us. We will be short sports if we do not present to Joe the handsomest

The Honor List.

TWO WESTERNERS NAMED ON CAMP'S ALL-AMERICAN.

Craig of Michigan and Des Jardien of Chicago Are Picked by Great Authority as Best in the Country at Their Positions—Many Other Westerners Are Mentioned.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Only two westerners out of the unusual number of gridiron stars developed in this section of the country during 1913, were honored by Walter Camp in his annual all-American selection which will appear in the current number of Collier's Weekly. "Shorty" Des Jardien of Chicago was the sole "Big Nine" representative and the dashing Craig of Michigan gained first honors among the men west of the Alleghanies. These were the only football players thought worthy of first-team mention by Camp although there were many who broke into the honor roll on second and third teams.

According to the dean of football critics, Butler of Wisconsin and Eichenlaub of Notre Dame were both more than capable players and were but one opinion short of the players placed ahead of them on the first team. Norgren of Chicago, Solon of Minnesota, Halligan of Nebraska, Paterson of Michigan and Rockne of Notre Dame were the other westerners given honorary mention and placed on the third team. Camp says that Norgren undoubtedly more than earned his spurs, but he believes that the Maroon captain was not entitled to more than third rating with the galaxy of stars who played behind the line this year.

SEVERAL MENTIONED.

In his description of the men who played for honors during 1913 Camp mentions any number of western heroes. Besides Solon and Rockne at end he praises the work of Huntington of Chicago, Wilson of Illinois and Ofstie of Wisconsin. At tackles with Butler and Halligan he lauds Pontius of Michigan, Shull and Goettler of Chicago and Kirk of Iowa. Routh of Purdue and Geisman of Ohio State are the only men of this section thought in a class with the guards of the East.

Camp says that Des Jardien of Chicago was the best center in the country. Telling of "Shorty's" abilities he says that the Maroon giant was steady and reliable in his passing, absolutely dependable for his share at line work and that he added greater polish to his work of 1912 without sacrificing any of his efficiency. Paterson of Michigan and Glossop of Purdue got honorable mention.

BACKFIELD STARS.

Behind the line is where the stars are found, says Camp. At the quarter-back job the critic mentions Russell of Chicago, Hughitt of Michigan, Dorais of Notre Dame, Hightower of Northwestern and Ghee and Llewellyn, two Chicago boys playing at Dartmouth. Three easterners are rated ahead of these field generals.

Among the plethora of exceptional half-backs and full-backs found on the gridirons of the country, Camp estimates the work of Craig as equal to any. He says that the Wolverine came into his own with a vengeance and would fill out his first team back field in ideal fashion. The other western backs thought worthy of attention by the critic were Norgren of Chicago, Eichenlaub of Notre Dame, Oliphant of Purdue, Shaughnessy and McAlmon of Minnesota, Gray of Chicago, McGinnis of Iowa and Julian of Michigan Aggies.

FREEBOOTERS BEAT PICKED POLO TEAM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Poloists were surprised at the result of a snappy game of three seven-minute periods on the Chemawa Park field this afternoon, when the Reds, picked for the Pasadena tournament, were defeated by a "Freebooters" team.

The score was 5 to 2. The reason for the defeat of the picked men may be explained on the ground that the opposing team was gingered up during play by change in the personnel of the players. The lineup was as follows: Reds: Robert L. Bettner, 1; H. G. Pattee, 2; W. E. Pedley, 3; H. Lett, 4. Freebooters: G. K. Smith, 1; W. B. Huston, 2; M. Redmayne, 3; Eric Pedley, 4.

JOURNEAY WILL CAPTAIN PENNSY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—Louis A. Young was re-elected captain of the University of Pennsylvania football team last week, resigned the captaincy today and Albert Journeay was elected in his place. Young will be graduated next June, but expected to return to the university for a post-graduate course. He has since found that he will not be able to return next year. Journeay, the new captain, played right guard on the team this year.

Novel Demonstration in Handsome Six-Cylinder.

Heights Explored in Holly-filled Touring Car.

Scenery Unrivaled Is Found on Near-City Jaunt.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

One of the cars that is attracting considerable attention is that 1914 six-cylinder Hudson. Just to find out what the touring car really would do and to be satisfied that what Harold L. Arnold says is not a mere dream, we enjoyed a ride in that six-cylinder to the head of Sycamore Canyon on Tuesday.

Any autoist who enjoys that demonstration in that wire-wheeled, six-cylinder touring car must admit that it is one of the most comfortable cars on the market. The power of that motor was shown to advantage, the springs were tested, there were several jolts where we had a chance to find out what kind of an axle the car has, and as a result the entire load of seven passengers was a unit in favor of the Hudson.

Starting from The Times office, we drove out to Glendale over the smooth boulevards. We had a chance to test the speed of that car on the county highway. Demonstrator Knapp was at the helm, and he knows how to make that motor talk. We reached Glendale, it seemed, almost before we had started, and then we proposed to drive to the summit of Sycamore Canyon in search of holly.

MEET THE PASTOR.

Rev. John Henry Troy, pastor of the Glendale Baptist Church, with Mrs. Troy and Baby Jack, were loaded into that tonneau, and the drive into the scenic hills was commenced. To really understand that trip you should have made it Tuesday in that six-cylinder Hudson. The car took the bumps like a great yacht. Those babies enjoyed the drive immensely and were never in danger of being even bumped out of the extra seats, which, by the way, can be placed out of sight so comfortably that it is easy to make a folding-bed effect of the tonneau of that Hudson car.

The roads in the canyon are not the best, but we found nothing to complain of, as Demonstrator Knapp took us into the hills. We found one stretch of mud which at first seemed bottomless, but the wire-wheeled beauty sailed through the mire, and we soon reached the summit of the

AUTO CLUB SIGNS ROUTE.

Short Cut to Lake Tahoe Is Laid Out.

More Than Eight Hundred Signs Needed.

Will Cut Off Three Hundred Miles.

Panama-Pacific motoring visitors are to be provided with extensive road systems by which to enter and tour the State, according to plans of the Automobile Club of Southern California, which are announced by Secretary S. C. Geary to include material assistance to the State Highway Commission, and the signing of long stretches of roadways throughout the southern counties, and the Owens River route between Los Angeles and Lake Tahoe.

More than 800 signs will be required on this stretch of road, which, according to Secretary Geary is the longest single piece of road ever signed by a motoring organization. This route will make possible a direct run from Southern California to Lake Tahoe of 368 miles—almost 300 miles shorter than the present route by way of San Francisco.

A NEW ROUTE.

As contemplated by officials of the Automobile Club, one of the most prosperous valleys in Southern California will be opened to automobile traffic by the complete system of signs which will guide the motorists to the headwaters of the Owens River.

Southern California will in this way be put upon a direct short cut from the transcontinental Lincoln Highway, which comes into the valley at Big Pine, whence automobiles may turn south and come directly into Los Angeles. The road from Goldfield into Big Pine, a distance of eighty-eight miles, will also be signed by the active organization, which has determined upon a broader scope of service to the Southland automobile owners.

Secretary Geary pointed out that with the growth of the Automobile Club in lines of membership more work of this sort is possible.

"We are receiving testimonials every day from enthusiastic members who are helped out of difficult situations by our sign work," said President Fred L. Baker yesterday, "and these encourage the work of continuing to enlarge our scope of activity. In undertaking the task of signing 525 miles of road in a single stretch we are doing something never before attempted by a motoring organization. We have acted upon this matter as a result of numerous requests from our members and because of the rapid development of the Owens Valley territory.

TO COME SOUTH.

"It will be possible for transcontinental visitors from the East to enter Southern California more directly, as a result of our sign work, since they will come directly south from Big Pine to Los Angeles. The work will take almost a year to accompish, for, although the road is good, our crew will have to wait upon the seasons and take advantage of warm weather when the snow in the North is less troublesome."

According to the road crew's report to Secretary Geary, the scenic route to Tahoe by way of Owens River is one of the most remarkable in the State. It is a farming country for much of the distance, gradually swinging into the immensities of the mountains, glaciers and ancient lava flows. With the work of the Automobile Club in signing the roads, better roads will follow, as they have in the south. The secretary adds:

"It is vitally important to the State as a whole that at least the main trunks of the State highway system be completed by the time of the exposition. Thousands of motorists will come to California with their machines if we can give out the report beforehand that they can travel over a boulevard from San Francisco to San Diego or 'vice versa.' Such report going abroad would constitute the finest advertisement that California could attain and it would be the means of bringing millions of dollars in revenue that otherwise would not come within our borders.

NEED FUNDS.

"State highway work is at present being held up because the State Highway Commission has been unable to sell the 4 per cent. highway bonds in sufficient quantity to pay for construction work arranged for. Four million dollars worth of work is being held up now awaiting for funds with which to defray expenses.

"One reason for the campaign for new members," continued Secretary Geary, "is that we can have a still more powerful organization working for the welfare of the State. Nineteen fifteen represents to California the greatest opportunity to increase her fame and add to her prosperity. The Automobile Club of Southern California has passed far beyond the stage of restricted usefulness, and has become practically a civic body which has not only benefited Southern California and the eitire State of California, but the, entire western coast territory.

"Yet, our work has been accomplished by a comparatively small working body. We have only a little more than 10 per cent. of the motorists in Southern California as members of this club. Of course we should have a much greater per cent. because we have directly benefited every motorist in the community and also have affected many savings and advantages to our members. It is not that 90 per cent. of the motorists deliberately avoid their share of the general expense so much as they do not realise the merit of our work. Even allowing that half of the motorists cannot afford the very nominal expense of membership, surely the other half could well afford it.

"The reason 10 per cent. of the motorists have been so effective in this club's work is because the organization comprises the most influential citizens in the community. These members have done more than supply financial support. They have placed their personal and direct efforts behind the club. Hence, the pestige we enjoy today.

"We now face the need of a great deal of new work, calling for new expense. It means the need of a greater backing by a larger part of the community. We have already spent more than $50,000 in signing the roads, and our signs extend over nearly 10,000 miles of highway. Maintenance of the system we already have has reached a high cost. Between now and 1915 we must sign and maintain several thousand more miles of road. Our visitors must be able to traverse our roads in comfort. There must be warning signs at all needed places. We must arrange so that it will be impossible for strangers using our roads to become lost. This is part of the work we have undertaken."

MAXWELL DISPLAY REACHED READERS.

Maxwell's double-page advertisement shown in last Sunday's Times and a total of sixty-five newspapers from Maine to California, at a total expenditure of $50,000, is said to have been the largest single stroke of advertising business ever performed in any business in one day.

Circulation of the combined journals reached 10,000,000, by means of which the Maxwell Motor Company claims it added 5,000,000 to the readers attainable by any single medium of advertising.

NEW LIGHT, CHEAP CAR ON MARKET.

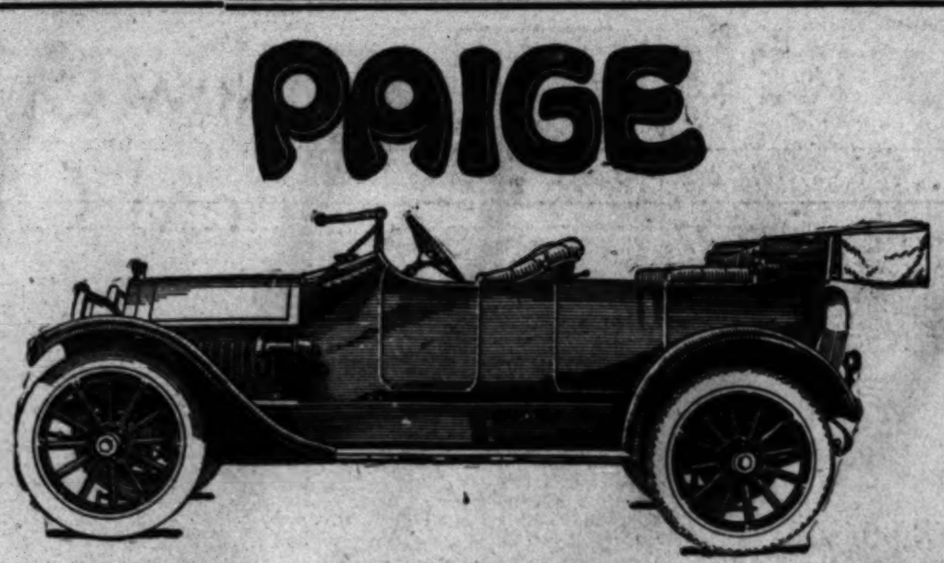
Lavigne has designed a new light car of ninety-six-inch wheel base and fifty-inch tread, which he is preparing to bring out at the price of $425.

Three models are to be marketed; one with seats side by side, a coupe and a four-seated type, all light in weight, and with fine stream lines.

GOODRICH PAYS TAXES.

One-fifth of the taxes levied by the city of Akron, O., are paid by the Goodrich Tire Company, which concern also pays one-eighth of the property assessments of Summit county. The company makes the largest returns of any institution in Ohio, and double that of any Cleveland manufactory.

PAIGE



FIVE-PASSENGER TOURING CAR

These two models, mounted on the same chassis, are designed to meet the requirements of the most exclusive buyers of four-cylinder cars. In fact, we could not consistently recommend the purchase of any four-cylinder car containing more power than is found in the Paige 36. The equipment, which consists of Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System (entirely independent of the Bosch Ignition System), Silk Mohair Top, with Jiffy Curtains, Rain Vision Windshield (latest design), 34x4 Tires (Non-Skid in the rear), Turkish Upholstering throughout, has caused the Paige 36 to be proclaimed THE MOST REMARKABLE CAR ON THE MARKET SELLING FOR LESS THAN $2000. The purchaser of a Paige car is not stamped as a CHEAP car buyer, as the stamp of refinement is to be found on every part of its construction.

WINNER OF THE GLIDDEN TOUR

The Gearless Car—No Clutch to Slip—No Gears to Strip.

The METZ "22" travels from 28 to 32 miles on ONE gallon of gasoline. 1000 miles on ONE pint of lubricating oil, and from 10,000 to 12,000 miles on a single set of tires. It makes from 5 to 50 miles per hour on the high speed, and climbs hills as fast as any regular stock car made.

Competing with cars costing from five to ten times as much, the METZ team of three regular stock cars won the 1300-mile Glidden Tour from Minneapolis to Glacier National Park, and they were the only cars in the tour that held a PERFECT SCORE, without additional allowance or time extension of any kind, during the entire eight days of the contest.

The METZ "22" is a fully guaranteed car, fitted with standard equipment throughout, including 4-cylinder 22½-H.P. water-cooled motor, Bosch magneto, 30-inch artillery wheels, best quality Goodrich clincher tires, etc. Single or double rumble seat supplied, if ordered special. Its gearless transmission entirely does away with gear troubles.

Nineteen-fourteen Cadillac limousine.

One of the new season's beauties. Miss Geraldine Wilcox is alighting from the inclosed car in which she is returning from a spin on the near-city roads on a windy day. The car, according to Miss Wilcox, is about right for any kind of weather.

Hill from a Hudson.

Sycamore Canyon hillsides, and then we began the search for holly.

OH, THAT LUNCH.

Mrs. Maude Troy was the first to spy an immense holly tree. We picked enough to decorate that Hudson, and then it was time for Photographer Litchfield to get busy. With the car covered with holly and with the tonneau filled with the red berries, the camera man got into action, and it was time to return to the parsonage, where Mrs. Troy served lunch. We had the right kind of appetites.

The trip to Sycamore Canyon can be made comfortably of a Sunday afternoon. It is an easy drive and the roads are in shape for the run to the summit of the hilly slopes. There is an excellent opportunity to enjoy the beautiful scenery of Glendale, which is not excelled anywhere in Southern California.

As a novel demonstration, the trip in the Hudson was enjoyable. We discovered a country where motorists may enjoy an afternoon drive on any day and where the view is varied. If necessary the car can be left at the end of the road and a climb of several hundred feet will take the tourists to a vantage point, from where the Promised Land can be seen in all its splendor of orange groves and blossoming chrysanthemum fields.

We found then the little town of Glendale rapidly becoming a city. We drove to the Baptist Church, where Rev. Mr. Troy showed us some of the plans for making Glendale a "go-to-church" town. It was inspiring and the ozone of those hills gave the Hudson tourers the right kind of a desire to do anything that would help motorists to enjoy the sights and the hidden grandeur of that unexplored canyon which Pastor Troy had helped us to reach on that short and interesting tour in the handsome Hudson six-cylinder.

REGAL STARTER AN ADVANTAGE.

Regal cars are now equipped with the Rushmore electric starters, which eliminate the peril of motors "killed" on railroad or street-car tracks, or in other emergencies.

Waiting in line does not require a running motoir, as a touch of the starter will roll the car the short distance usually desired. The starting motor is strong enough to throw the engine and loaded car forward on the instant.

Ready.

STORMS PASS OVER WINTON.

PLANT UNHARMED BY DEVASTATION IN CLEVELAND.

Howard Receives Word from the Front Concerning the Six-Cylinder for the New Year—Cars Are to Be Shipped Here Steadily and Orders Are Being Recorded by Agent.

The devastating storms which recently swept the State of Ohio, causing great damage, did not interfere with the operation of the Winton factory, located in Cleveland, in any way.

W. D. Howard, the local Winton Six agent, has received word from the factory to that effect. The city of Cleveland was practically cut off from the rest of the world for several days in consequence of the heaviest snowstorms ever experienced in that locality. All branches of public service, electric lights, telephones and trolleys were put out of commission and business, therefore, was almost at a standstill.

The Winton factory, however, was not affected in the least by these conditions, and operated throughout this entire storm period. This was made possible owing to the fact that the Winton factory has its own gas well which supplies the fuel to generate the electric power used in the entire works. Furthermore, the greater majority of the employees live near the plant, and were, therefore, not dependent upon the street cars to reach the plant.

Jonathan Hawkins, the man who bred Dexter, 2:17¼, the first great trotting champion of the Hamiltonian tribe, now living in retirement at Monclair, N. J., recently celebrated his golden wedding. He still considers Dexter the equal of any trotter since produced.

MOTOR SALON CALL STRONG.

Twenty-five Exhibitors Estimate of the Committee.

Don Lee to Show Complete Line of Cadillacs.

Pope-Hartford Dealers Plan to Exhibit the King.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

Twenty-five exhibitors is the estimate Walter Hempel has placed on the automobile show that is to be held in the Grand Avenue Rink building the week of January 5. The space is being sold rapidly and the show should be one of the handsomest ever held in the West. There is reason to believe that every foot of space will be disposed of this week.

Don Lee will show nine Cadillacs. The decision of the Cadillac man to make a large exhibit has encouraged several other dealers to sign for space and as a result of the work of the Show Committee, Walter M. Brown has also increased his space and will show the Stutz racer with which Earl Cooper won so many records, and a Stutz roadster and touring car.

William R. Ruess plans to show the entire King line. This car will be exhibited here for the first time, and the Pope-Hartford agent has taken this opportunity to exhibit the newcomer with other of the interesting cars which are to make a hit in the 1914 season. The King is a car in the low-priced division and is in competition with a number of the other popular cars now on the market.

AMERICAN CARS.

Lynn Burton will show a complete line of American cars. The underslung models show off to advantage this year as they are particularly striking in appearance. The 1914 models will be here in plenty of time for the opening of the show, which comes at a time when there is no conflict with any of the eastern exhibits.

With the tour of the Automobile Dealers' Association a matter of history the Show Committee expects to get busy this week. At least a dozen other dealers have been lined up for the salon and as a result of the activity already shown cars of the high and low-priced vintage are to be placed side by side on a floor space that will accommodate a large and classy number.

W. J. Burt will show a complete line of Auburns. The new models have just been received and the Burt Motor Car Company men are planning to make one of the largest exhibits of Auburn cars ever shown in the West. The touring car is attractive this year and the long wheel base makes it one of the easy-riding models of a season replete with new ideas in the motor line.

The Cole Motor Company is planning to exhibit both models of the Cole. Here again is a particularly striking car. The roadster shows to advantage this year because of its roomy front seat, and the striking lines. The touring car is also roomy and the finish of this Cole makes it a particularly pleasing model.

White cars will be shown in all their models, though it will be impossible to exhibit the White trucks. The White motors this year are finished in the same style that gave them such a snappy appearance the past year and the body lines have been improved, though the hood remains the same. The White cars will be shown in the touring car model which is finished in the five and seven-passenger bodies.

ELECTRICS ALSO.

Electric cars are also to be exhibited. There will be no special division for the electrics, but the Borland, the Standard, the Detroit, are included in the list of exhibitors, and it is expected that Volney S. Beardsley will grasp this opportunity to show the Beardsley electric for the first time at any exhibit in the West.

Many of the accessory dealers are planning to make an exhibit. The floor space is limited, but the demand which has already been made, means that the section devoted to the electrics and to the accessory men will all be taken and there is evidence of a large and varied assortment of all that helps to make the heart of the motorist glad.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR TETZLAFF.

TEDDY FORDS GILA RIVER IN FIAT.

J. P. Irish of Savage Tire Company Has Interesting Ride With Tetzlaff Through Arizona, Where They Were Given a Rousing Reception.

"Drowned in the Gila River," was the epitaph jointly composed by Teddy Tetzlaff and J. P. Irish at a dangerous stage of their trip through Arizona, when they thrust the 120-horse-power Fiat into the raging waters, and they now attribute their escape solely to the use of Savage tires. Irish says Arizona is proving a wonderful field for the California-made tire.

"Arizona is certain to be a wonderful State," said Irish. "The growth of the different sections is certainly wonderful. Everywhere we saw signs of the greatest prosperity, and the next few years will see some large cities in that section."

"Great advancement is being made in good-roads work," said Tetzlaff. "Everywhere the people take great interest in the automobile, and I was urged by every city to come back and make some speed records for them. Tucson is arranging for a series of speed events, and some large cash purses will be offered for the big events. I was surprised with what I saw there and hope to go back."

Manager C. de Blin computes that the tires in use would support the earth, basing their resiliency at 250 pounds each, and further deposes that if made into one tube, they would suspend the earth from the moon, provided the moon could stand the strain!

Toronto will give fourteen $400 purses for its light harness ice races meet which opens on Christmas Day.

HUNTER'S PARADISE FOUND BY AUTO ENTHUSIAST.

A HUNTING paradise has been discovered by a Los Angeles citizen. And the beauty of it is that it does not lie on the other side of the continent, or in some inaccessible portion of the globe. The discoverer claims that it exists in two adjoining counties, San Luis Obispo and Tulare.

J. P. Baldwin, president of the Martin Shock Absorber Company, is the discoverer, having made this find on a trip finished this past week. On this trip he traveled about 600 miles, and when he returned he was enthusiastic over it. Baldwin's party journeyed up the coast to Morro Bay, where they had some excellent sport at goose hunting. From there they went to Tulare Lake, in Tulare county.

In speaking of his experiences there, Baldwin said:

"From Morro Bay our party journeyed to Tulare county, over some very fair roads. We stopped on the shore of Tulare Lake, and that night we had a peculiar experience. The place where we stopped was about fifteen miles from our hunting ground, and all night long we were kept awake by the honking noise of the brant.

"Before dawn, we were in our positions at the hunting grounds. Arrived there we dug holes in which to stand, and surrounded them with brush, also putting out our decoys.

"With the first flush of dawn, the brant were on the wing, and I was amazed by their numbers. According to my estimate, there must have been over a million of them, and in all my hunting trips, I have never seen more birds together.

"The brant were exceedingly wild, so that our bag was not as large as if the game had been tamer. Taken as a whole, I can't recollect any hunting trip that I have enjoyed more. The conditions were perfect; the roads were fair; the car ran perfectly; the company was congenial, and the weather was immense. Just cold enough to have that exhilarating tang that whets the hunter's appetite and puts an edge on him.

"While I was away on this short vacation I knew that business affairs were piling up, making such an accumulation of work that on my return I would have to work long hours. But I find that the trip has done me so much good that I can tackle all of the work with an added zest, or better yet, 'pep.'"

NEW GAS MIXTURE WORKS VERY WELL.

Fuel cost has been solved to the satisfaction of the MacDonald Transfer Company of Glendale, which reports to the Garford agency that it has been running their three-ton trucks from six to seven miles on one gallon of mixture, half distillate and half gasoline.

The California Glass and Paint Company, in ordering a second truck, states that it will use the same mixture in the new motor.

CHICAGO ELECTRIC BECOMING POPULAR

Chicago electrics, now handled by the Washington-street electric garage, are practically new cars on this Coast, but have won much popularity in the Middle West. The arched door, horizontal-lever control, and rear drive render the cars especially serviceable for family use.

Deliveries are being made to Mrs. Celia Zimmerman, Mrs. E. K. Sibley, Mrs. Charles Prager, Miss E. B. Stoll and Mrs. R. P. Fanteuch.

Optimistic.

AUTO BUSINESS IS ADVANCING.

SAYS CHAIRMAN OF BOARD OF TRADE.

H. O. Smith of Indianapolis Analyzes Business Conditions Affecting the Automobile Trade. Says There Are Many Reforms to Be Worked Out.

H. O. Smith, chairman of the Indianapolis Board of Trade, in giving an analysis of business conditions affecting the automobile trade, says:

"I do not believe that pessimists could ever have developed the automobile industry, although the results of each year have more than justified the views of the most optimistic. What other of our great industries can show the ratio of gain each and every year over the preceding years for a period of ten years which will compare with the showing of the automobile?

"It would be just as reasonable to expect the abandonment of the telegraph, telephone and other of our modern agencies as to expect the discontinuance of the use of motor cars. We not only have the right to expect the continuance of the use of the motor car, but can be sure that its use and influence will continue to broaden.

"It is natural to expect that there are reforms to be worked out in a business which has grown to the proportions of the automobile business in so short a space of time, but on the other hand I believe there is as much talent and ability in the automobile business all the way from the engineer to the business man as is to be found in any other lines, and the ability of these men I feel will be demonstrated."

It will be many years before the professional soccer players of this country are in a position to secure the money paid for the transfer of the experts playing for the big teams of Great Britain. George Utley, the Barnsley half-back, was recently transferred to Sheffield united team on the payment of $10,000. The Blackburn Rovers are reported to have paid a similar amount to West Ham for Dan Shea, and Chelsea is said to have given more for Tom Logan.

America, Belgium, France, Germany and Holland sent entries to the twelfth annual international show of poultry at the Crystal Palace, London, the other day. The entries numbered nearly 14,000. The prizes amount to $25,000.

Two tire men in action.

AUTOS REDUCE LIVING COST.

HORSES NOW CONSUME FOOD CROPS.

When the Auto Displaces the Horse the Land Now Devoted to Hay and Grain Raising Will Be Used for Potatoes and Other Food-Producing Crops.

President Willys of the Willys Overland Company claims that if horses were displaced by motor trucks 90 per cent. of the land devoted to hay growing could be used for food production. He points out that the $740,000,000 hay crop of this year in the United States is nearly all consumed by horses; that the $234,000,000 oat crop and most of the $2,000,000,000 corn crop also is utilized in maintenance of the horse.

These three crops amount to $3,074,000,000 this year, says Willys, and most of the money goes for feeding horses and mules. If half these animals were eliminated, as they could be by the use of motor trucks, there would be a saving of $1,587,000,000, or an average of nearly $18 for each of the 90,000,000 people of the country.

Potatoes and other foodstuffs raised on the land thus saved for their cultivation would effect a drop in the high cost of living, according to this authority, who finds satisfaction in the fact that his company finds such demand for its car output that freight cars can hardly be found for transporting the 200 daily product of their factories.

The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, in annual session at Montreal recently, reiterated in the most positive manner its position that all organized sport in that country must be, so far as the union is concerned, what the title of that body indicates—amateur and Canadian. Any alliance of the Dominion of Canada Football Association, with the union was declared impossible so long as the soccer authorities recognize or include the control of professionals in their activities, and so long as the Dominion Football Association owes its first allegiance to a foreign international body, the Federation Internationale de Football Association. On the same principle the alliance of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association was cancelled last spring, the latter declaring that they had first to take orders as to their membership and duties from the Union Cyclists International.

H. L. Doherty, the famous lawn tennis player who will return to the game next year with a view of competing in the Davis cup contest for England against America is only 37 years of age. He held the All-American singles championship for five years, and with his brother captured the doubles championship eight times.

Norway is to have a stadium at Frogner, Christiania, that will accommodate under cover, it is said, 200,000 people. There is to be a big athletic carnival on the new grounds next May.

Prepares for Action.

RUESS PLANS TO SHOW PUBLIC WHAT KING DOES.

William R. Ruess will start a campaign this week to boost the King car. This handsome, low-priced model is to be sent out into the field with a strong bid for popularity. The car is one of the most striking models at the price now on the market and Ruess says he will convince his friends that he has a car that is really worth while.

"They've tried to tell me what the King said," declared William R., yesterday, "but now I'm prepared to show them what the King can do. This car is a wonder and all I need to make the sales as numerous as the Pope-Hartford is to give people a chance to ride in the tonneau of one of those touring cars.

"The easy-riding qualities — but there I've started, and if I get on that topic I'll talk all day. There is so much that is good about the King that if I tried to tell you it would take the entire Pink Sheet. I'm from New York and I'll show you, and if you are not convinced when I get [illegible] with the demonstration that I [illegible] then I'll admit that I don't know [illegible] when I see it, and you can tell [illegible] what the King said."

Enthusiasm counts for much [illegible] Ruess has got more than [illegible] thusiasm. While in the East [illegible] studied conditions carefully and [illegible] result he determined to tie [illegible] up to a low-priced car. He made no mistake when he chose the King [illegible] the car has cantilever springs and [illegible] one of the easiest riding of the low-priced models turned out this [illegible]

When it comes to a demonstration Bert Dingley is just the man to make a showing. The car will climb [illegible] hill where it is possible to get traction, and can be sent through sand, driven through mud or [illegible] over the smooth boulevard [illegible] car in its class.

Coming Strong.

MERCER WILL HAVE THREE CARS IN THE VANDERBILT.

Eastern sentiment strongly favors the Santa Monica course for the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races, men having the responsibility of fixing the courses for those events having expressed their desires to George Bentel on his recent trip.

While in New York, Bentel, at the request of Leon Shettler of the Western Automobile Association, had several conferences with the men having the deciding of the location of the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races, and they were all anxious to see California land the prize. At that time the W.A.A. had practically accepted all the terms named, and since then an agreement has been reached.

"The people of the East realize [illegible] the racing situation has been [illegible] handled in the West," said [illegible] "They know the Santa Monica [illegible] is safe and is always well [illegible] The fact that there have [illegible] any accidents on this course has [illegible] it a favorite.

"The race is certain to [illegible] large field, not only of American [illegible] but of foreign makes as well. [illegible] Mercer people have assured [illegible] they will send three cars [illegible] races. These will probably be driven by De Palma, Oldfield and [illegible]

"Regarding business conditions [illegible] can truthfully say they are good. [illegible] the Mercer and Simplex factories [illegible] ahead of this time last year, and [illegible] certainly shows a sound condition."

Different Types.

NATIONAL AUTO SHOW HAS VERY MANY SELF-STARTERS.

Self-starting devices are prominent among the most prominent callers upon public attention in the National Auto Show at New York and Chicago, where most of the cars to be shown in the January exhibits are to be equipped with this important accessory in some form.

Accessibility is now apparent in all later types, whether actuated by springs, air tanks or batteries. The show gives patrons an opportunity of observing and comparing the various makes, and of reaching decisions on the spot.

The electric starters use [illegible] batteries of not large size, into [illegible] a sufficient amount of power [illegible] carried to run a small electric [illegible] for some time. This motor [illegible] the engine in such a way that [illegible] it over, but as soon as the [illegible] takes up the work the electric [illegible] drops out. Finally it recharges [illegible] battery and leaves it again ready [illegible] use.

The other form of starters [illegible] gas or gas-and-air under pressure [illegible] a sufficient amount to cause [illegible] flow into the cylinders, where [illegible] ignited, they take the place of [illegible] proper charge until the engine [illegible] been turned over sufficiently [illegible] in the proper mixture. These [illegible] are slightly less complicated [illegible] somewhat cheaper but the [illegible] seems rather toward the [illegible] which the power is stored rather [illegible] the potentiality.

LYON DISCUSSES USE OF TIRES.

Choice of make of truck [illegible] the buyers' need is but a part of [illegible] duty, as is demonstrated by P. [illegible] Lyon of Chansler and Lyon Co[illegible] agents for Motox tires.

Tires of ordinary make form [illegible] cent. of the entire upkeep of [illegible] the cost being either halved or [illegible] according to the decision [illegible] users.

Double-tread, solid tires of [illegible] Motox type, with their [illegible] slantwise bridges, and non-skid [illegible] dentations, save the life of the [illegible] machine, as well as make its [illegible] easier.

Lee tires, and special [illegible] handled by the firm in its [illegible] tion at Twelfth street and [illegible] avenue, enable buyers to [illegible] the new State law relating [illegible] features. Stringent provisions [illegible] be met after January 1 [illegible] protruding devices and [illegible]

It looks certain that the [illegible] States will have a long [illegible] holding the Olympic games [illegible] president of the International [illegible] Committee, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, says that for the games [illegible] Amsterdam, Antwerp and [illegible] are all making preparations [illegible] Belgium and Austria-Hungary [illegible] in the field already.

Almost Pinched.

ETZLAFF IS ORDERED OUT.

[illegible] Proves Too Hot for Teddy.

[illegible] Fiat Attracts Too Much Attention.

[illegible] of Police Declares It Undesirable.

[illegible]'s big 120-horse-power Fiat [illegible] to be a match for almost [illegible], but on Ted's recent [illegible] Arizona he found more [illegible] match, and at the command [illegible] Chief of Police of Nogales, [illegible] hustled his big red racer out of the little Mexican city [illegible] across the border in a hurry, [illegible] the Chief was afraid the [illegible] gathered about the racer [illegible] too much excitement under the existing turbulent conditions. [illegible] and L. A. Irish, the special representative of the Savage Tire [illegible] who accompanied Ted on [illegible] tour of the Southwest, took [illegible] over to Nogales, Mex., to [illegible] country, and, of course, the [illegible] and its famous driver was at [illegible] center of attraction. Never [illegible] had that city thrilled with the [illegible] of such a mighty engine, and, of [illegible], all the sports gathered about [illegible]. The crowd grew, and some[illegible] the Chief of Police that there [illegible] uprising. He hastened to see [illegible] caused the excitement, and when [illegible] the powerful Fiat he decided [illegible] was an undesirable citizen and [illegible] ordered the Fiat and Tetzlaff [illegible] to leave the city. Both the [illegible] they were being ordered [illegible], but did not know the rea[illegible], as they could not understand [illegible], until they were back [illegible] border; then they were in[illegible] by an interpreter, and both [illegible] peeved when they knew the [illegible] for their dismissal.

The Savage Tire representatives [illegible] a special welcome by the [illegible], fifteen members of the [illegible] of Commerce of that city [illegible] the Fiat about ten miles from [illegible] and escorting it into the city. [illegible] a number of autos in the [illegible], which was followed by a lunch [illegible] by the business men and the [illegible] of Commerce to Irish and [illegible].

To Arms.

BULL PUP III IS CHALLENGED.

[illegible] COAST YACHT CLUB ENTERTAINS.

[illegible] Weather Bureau to [illegible] a Reporting Station at [illegible] to Report Weather [illegible] to Los Angeles Office [illegible] Generally.

[illegible] Voerhauer, owner of Bull Pup III, has issued a challenge to Joe [illegible], the defender of the Frank A. [illegible] perpetual cup, for the [illegible] motorboat race around [illegible] Catalina Island. Joe has had [illegible] all to himself in this [illegible] ocean race, having beaten [illegible] by seventeen seconds in [illegible], also successfully beating Warren [illegible] Iroquois and the Mary A. by [illegible] margins in succeeding races. [illegible] own boat, Mystery, was a [illegible] in the first race of 1911. Bull Pup III is some speedy craft, and it will be up to Joe to protect his hold on the trophy. The race will be under the direction of the South Coast Yacht Club, and as soon as Joe accepts the challenge the details of the [illegible] event will be worked out.

While the racing game is the back[illegible] of any yacht club, the South Coast boys have gone on record in [illegible] cutting down the number of [illegible] next season. Cruising to [illegible], the Isthmus, Portuguese [illegible], or a bathing party off Brighton [illegible], brings out all classes of boats, both the racers and cruisers, the wind-[illegible] and the gasoline "put-put[illegible]," while racing every Sunday [illegible] the racing yachts from many [illegible] cruising events.

With class racing, several prizes for [illegible] event, an arbitrary handicap and [illegible] week's regatta for the yachts [illegible] all of the clubs of Southern Cal[illegible], the racing enthusiasts will [illegible] of sport, while at the [illegible] they will be able to par[illegible] in the cruises of the club.

[illegible] again will the yacht skip[illegible] have any excuse for getting in [illegible] "doldrums" off San Pedro har[illegible], for the United States Weather [illegible] has now established a report[illegible] station at the South Coast Yacht [illegible] at San Pedro. An anemo[illegible] has been installed on a tower [illegible] has been erected on the roof [illegible] building, the wind velocity be[illegible] transmitted to delicate instru[illegible] set up on the main floor of the [illegible]. With the assistance of Com[illegible] Hubbell and Port Captain [illegible], Ford A. Carpenter, local [illegible], made the installation of [illegible] new station the other day. Stew[illegible] will make daily readings [illegible] report of wind velocity and other [illegible] conditions to the Los Ange[illegible] office. Storm signals will be flown [illegible] the ninety-foot flag staff at the [illegible]. Commercial and govern[illegible] shippers will avail themselves of [illegible] new service as well as those sail[illegible] pleasure craft.

A big crowd turned out to see the [illegible]W.C.A. and U.S.C. hockey teams [illegible] for the ladies' championship [illegible] Southern California and the Neil [illegible] trophy at Bovard yesterday afternoon. The "Christians" won [illegible] a score of two goals to nothing. [illegible] forced the play the whole time [illegible], by hard driving and excellent [illegible] up, just romped over the [illegible].

Had the ground been a hard one [illegible] score would have been much [illegible], as it is difficult to make the [illegible] travel on the sawdust field, particularly after it has been dampened.

Miss Oldham scored the first goal of Y.W.C.A., while Miss Lorraine Handyside notched the second. Both these points were made in the first half. Miss Gray's safe hitting and Miss Millier's forward work were noticeable features of yesterday's game.

The line-up is as follows: Y.W.C.A.—Miss Frances Brook (captain,) Miss Marguerite Millier, Miss Lorraine Handyside, Miss B. Gray, Miss L. Trotter, Miss E. Payne, Miss Joan McCall, Miss Willemeyer, Miss Oldham, Miss Aldrich. U.S.C.—Miss Ruth Winiger (captain,) Miss Lois Shidler, Miss Jessie Mauzy, Miss Lois Ely, Miss Ethel Palmer Miss Bessie Hoagland, Miss Aurelia Steward, Miss Esther Welch, Miss Marion Furber, Miss Gladys Rodgers, Miss Lilly Kingcaid, Miss Laura Rowe, Miss Irene Robinson, Miss Valerie Johnston, Miss Grace Ashmore, Miss Bess Murphy, Miss Loretta Murphy.

Earle Y. Boothe, the winner.

The popular National agent in the handsome tourer with w hich he captured first place in the dealers' consistency tour.

FUNNY INCIDENTS OCCUR AT U.S.C.

Two amusing incidents happened at Bovard Field yesterday afternoon. During the hockey game between the Y.W.C.A. and U.S.C. elevens, a bull terrier, the mascot of the varsity football squad, broke loose and insisted on playing for the varsity. After several successful runs, he was finally collared during a hot scrimmage and put in disgrace on the touch lines, where he kept up an incessant barking whenever he spotted the ball nearing the U.S.C. goal.

The second incident occurred during the Arden and L.A.A.C. football game. Albers made a terrific boot to what he thought was safety. The ball, after disappearing almost from sight in the ethereal blue, alighted on the head of an unoffending horse grazing by the roadside. Like a veritable buck-jumper, the horse bolted and scooted down the road as if the devil was after him. The ball was recovered.

Strenuous Run.

diploma trophy, or something of the kind for his management of the best tour in which I have ever participated. The Stearns-Silent Knight man is a prince and I can almost hear the echo from every dealer as he says: 'You are right, I'm dead sure you're right.'"

You will agree that Boothe has a right to say what he thinks of the men against whom he contended. There are some he has not mentioned and in closing let's hear a few brief remarks from an eeyewitness of all that happened on that run.

John Wiese is a great man. In size and in heart he is great. John knows the City Marshal at Escondido and he also knows that it's foolish to try to catch a man who would run around the block three times for 75 cents. Wiese once more scored and the U.S. tire man returned yesterday with another coterie of friends added to his already long string.

Of course, there are men who stand out more prominently than others on this tour. You could not go anywhere with L. T. Shettler without realizing he is one of the leaders among automobile men. He is willing to be joshed and is the best loser I've ever seen in my life. As a consistent loser, he holds all trophies, but in my long acquaintaince with the Appearson agent, I've never known him to crab.

BANZAI SHETTLER.

Let him lose $10,000 in a big race or a 25-cent trophy on a tour, its all the same. L. T. is there a trillion. He may roast you, but when it comes to a friend in need, his entire name is Leon Thorpe Shettler. If you don't believe me ask Harmon David Ryus, our new Motor Chief of Police. He agrees.

Now for another before we close. Louis Victor Starr, pilot of the Overland, is the goods. He is the prince regent among the low-priced automobile dealers. Not that he is in any way cheap, but as representative of a high-grade, low-priced car, that handsome Starr shines in a firmament all his own.

Yes, Starr cried with Ryus at the show, but he did not brag about it. He was also willing to mix with the most grouchy man on the trip without making a complaint. He took the honors also and even when "Cupid" Scott beat him to the finish, Starr was satisfied to slip into third place and in order to celebrate properly he bounced one of the tourers high-priced watches on the marble floor and then offered to purchase a brand new timepiece for the victim. Starr is indeed a sun when it comes to shining.

Charles Du Mars also worked hard to be a good fellow. He did direct us the wrong way, but he accepted the blame though I think to be truthful, little Jimmie Valentine was the man who missed that road out of Pala. There are others, we fain would mention, but time is short and life is fleeting. Kelly, of the Premier, whose initials are so easy to forget. did some vaudeville at several stops, and was seen to smile twice. The tour was a success and even George Adair admitted that fact as he saw Official Photographer Pabst taking snapshots of the tired group at the finish of that strenuous run.

RIFLE SHOTS WILL GATHER SOON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Twenty-eight clubs representing twenty-seven cities, will contest in this season's indoor rifle shooting matches of civilian clubs for the Interclub Rifle championship of the United States, a trophy which has been presented by the War Department. The matches will begin the week of December 22 and continue throughout the winter under the auspices of the National Rifle Association of America. This year the clubs, instead of being divided into eastern and western leagues, will be in "A" and "B" classes, class "A" representing clubs which have shown the highest percentage of efficiency in previous matches.

An individual gallery championship will be shot immediately after the close of the club matches.

BEARDSLEY ELECTRIC
The New Long Mileage Car—America's "Best"
Ready For Holiday Delivery

THE first electric built on the Pacific Coast will soon be ready for delivery—an electric built in California—by a California company—with California capital—especially for California roads and climate.

But it needs no sentimental support. We feel it is a better car at less price than is offered anywhere else. This is made possible by our concentration in one of the greatest markets for "electrics" in the United States — by the freight saved in having the material shipped here unfinished—and by our not having to maintain a national sales organization.

Some of the Reasons Why
THE BEARDSLEY IS "AMERICA'S BEST"

Westinghouse motors and Gould storage batteries—especially built and guaranteed for the "Beardsley!"

High-duty ball bearings throughout.

Wire wheels, of course. These cost double the price of wood, but are more resilient, stronger, lighter, and afford longer mileage.

All parts carried at home, instantly available. Your guarantee of service is backed by a reliable company located at your very door.

And—here's something to think about—50% of the money used to produce the Beardsley Electric goes to home mechanics and will be spent in California.

Fully equipped, $3000. Other models: 3-passenger Roadster, $2500; 4-passenger Victoria (all seats facing forward.) $2750. One year guarantee.

There Are Reasons for Every

Hupmobile

¶ Small bore, long stroke block motor—the design now being widely adopted in America and Europe—and its great pulling power.

¶ "Streamline" body, without break between hood and cowl—a design only now being adopted by the highest priced cars.

¶ The low, racy lines of the body and the added comfort of the low body suspension.

¶ The fact that no essential of design or construction has been altered for two years—that this car has fully proved the correctness of our ideas as embodied in it.

¶ Simplicity of the separate Westinghouse generator and starting motor; and the extreme simplicity of their wiring.

GASOLINE ROW GOSSIP.

BY BERT SMITH.

WHO brought the Vanderbilt cup race here? After careful investigation, the honors are awarded to L. T. Shettler. Who gave us the Grand Prix? Once more, after another careful gumshoe act, L. T. is the man. But what matter? The race is ours and it's up to us to see to it that the Vanderbilt this year is not the fiasco it proved last year. I'm strong for Shettler, even though he says that I am trying to get his angora.

Harmon David Ryus, motor chief of police, is tired of his job already. Don't blame him one bit. How can a man make an arrest when his brother dealers laugh right in his face. It's enough to realize you are a joke without having some ordinary automobile dealer tell you about it. Captain is a winner when it comes to a Baldy race, but as a speed-bug annihilator he is not a howling success.

Earle Y. Boothe says it is easy to win in a National. As a speed fiend, Earle is at least reasonable. He lets the handsome four-cylinder out only where it is possible to get seventy miles an hour without endangering the life of anything but a jackrabbit. The car is one of the easiest-riding machines in which it has ever been my pleasure to ride.

Charles du Mars, official checker of the automobile dealers' consistency run, is a worker. He was on the job every minute dodging in and out of those secret controls like a cottontail. He worked every minute and deserves all the publicity he got out of the run. (Rah for Fisk tires.)

Joe H. McDuffee is a champion. If you don't believe me, look over the records of the first Vanderbilt cup race. Joe won the trophy. Of course, it was not in a race with Nazzaro, or with Cedrino, but he won the honors, and, when it comes to driving, there are few dealers who could hold their own with Josie. Did you note that he was not in the contest. Why, even Ralph Hamlin would have had no chance with the Stearns Silent-Knight man. Joe is a real champion gymkhana hero who pulled off a successful tour and has all the honors we can heap upon him.

Cap Ryus is planning to write a book, entitled "The Trials and Tribulations of a Speed-Bug Annihilator." That story will be thrilling. Compared with the Baldy race, killing the speedster has thrills that were never known to the winner of the mountain climb. The book will be a hummer and will be started something like this:

"Three times I won that Baldy race." Then Cap will pause. The first item will be the arrest of L.T.S., and that one chapter will be worth the entire price of the book. The taming of L.T. will be twice as thrilling as the fiercest Shakesperian drama.

An automobile tour teaches us many things. One of the most important is that cars are even better in 1913 than they were in 1912. The Times tour to Lakeside showed us what wonderful machines we are producing in this country. The automobile dealers' consistency run proved that we need not take our hats off to the best engineers that Europe can produce.

Will the Automobile Club be able to kill that license act? It's a thousand-to-one shot that the club will win. The forces are lined up for a fight to the finish, and every autoist who pays that license should do so with a protest tacked to the edge of his check.

We need better roads in two counties of Southern California. One is Riverside county, where we have many miles of sandy stretches that should be improved, and the other is Orange county, where the roads are anything but sweet. Hope those Riverside bonds carry, and I also hope that the good-roads work begun in Orange county will be finished right quick.

We have no use for the speed fiend. There is not a dealer in the industry who would not do all in his power to chase the ever-present joy-rider into prison. But when it comes to making arrests by the wholesale, the dealer is stepping out of his bounds, and he has taken upon himself a task that he cannot complete.

How could a dealer arrest a prospect who was about to purchase a car? How could he arrest two prospects and expect to make a sale? What would be the result if a man who had just paid you a check of $5000 should ask you to drop the case against him? Of course, you would not drop it, but suppose he had just brought you in another prospect? Well, let's not multiply the complications. They are many, and too many for any dealer who expects to make good in 1914.

Let the police do the work. They have started, and with the help of the dealers, will finish, but it's too great a stretch of the imagination to see ten, a score or a hundred dealers chasing some poor, little scared prospect, preferring charges, and then following him to prison. Then suppose he should demand a jury trial and several dealers should be sworn in as jurors. Horrors! What a mess. Let's pursue this subject no further.

Official Photographer Pabst holds the record for trying to have his picture taken oftened than any other man on the tour, except Chief Sign-Shifter George Adair. Charles du Mars runs the two a close second, but Waller Chanslor has them all beat when it comes to taking the honors as an after-dinner speaker. Waller is the goods, and was there a million at the noon and night controls, especially when the meals were served.

Geoff Taylor, stroke of the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto 1913 English Henley eight-oared shell crew who entered Oxford University is rowing No. 5 oar in the Oxford No. 1 trial eight. His latest reported weight is 189½ pounds which tops anybody in either of the trial eights. The next heaviest is a 182-pound man in the other trial crew, and these two are the only men over 180 in the whole sixteen crewmen. From the two crews will be selected the eight to row against Cambridge next March.

Material entering into the construction of an American cup defense sloop of seventy-five-foot waterline, of Tobin bronze with steel frames, is not a large part of the total cost. Bronze may be had for approximately $6000 in sufficient quantity to plate the hull. Labor is the chief item, particularly in working out multiplicity of details of construction. A cup sloop may cost as little as $75,000 or as high as $120,000, depending on the building plant.

Extensive changes to the Casino grounds, where the annual lawn tennis championships annually take place, are being made at Newport, R. I. The acquisition of a plot of ground directly south of the present courts will almost double the playing area. Other improvements contemplated are an increase in the capacity of the stands and additional entrances and exits.

Rochester is to have a boxing club that will accommodate 3000 spectators, while Brooklyn is to have a structure that will seat 2500.

What Mackey Says.

FOUR-CYLINDER CARS ARE THE HIT ACROSS THE SEAS

"DEVELOPMENTS abroad are still of great importance to our domestic motor industry," said Charles Mackey, of the Bentel-Mackey Company, in speaking of the recent foreign shows.

He further said: "It was on the other side of the Atlantic that we first found the basic principles which our engineers have elaborated to the effect that America now leads the world in motor-car construction.

"The Paris Salon and the Olympia Show in London developed some interesting details and statistics. It is pleasing to note that the foreign engineers seem to have reached the pinnacle in mechanical construction, for actual changes in the more important units of motor car assembly were few. They have followed the lines of our engineers, and worked for ease of control, silence and comfort, as is made possible by deep upholstery and excellent spring work, unbroken body lines, and the flexibility of the motor.

"Four-cylinder cars are still predominant in Europe. This is particularly the case in every country [illegible] although the six-cylinder [illegible] prominent in England than [illegible]. However, at neither of these [illegible] mentioned shows were [illegible] cars enough in evidence to [illegible] more than bare mention. [illegible] sixes were shown this year [illegible] year; if anything, they were [illegible] and but one firm in all Europe [illegible] duces sixes exclusively. From [illegible] facts it can obviously be deduced [illegible] this type of motor construction [illegible] no signs of becoming the popular [illegible] of car.

"The majority of motorists are [illegible] than satisfied with the efficient [illegible] ices that can be had out of a [illegible] in fact, the fuel economy [illegible] and others, are quite powerful [illegible] to prevent all desire to add [illegible] cylinders.

"Transmissions are receiving [illegible] detailed consideration now [illegible] The four-speed gear box is [illegible] more and more into the [illegible] and the buying public are [illegible] this number of gear changes [illegible] heavier cars. Undoubtedly, the [illegible] er cars will also in the near [illegible] be equipped with this number [illegible] speeds."

In the New Model.

CADILLAC HAS EFFICIENT NEW LUBRICATING SYST

ONE thousand miles and over to a gallon of oil, is the record made by a 1914 Cadillac, using a lubricating system originated by its makers.

A quantity of oil is placed in the oil pan of the crank case which is divided into four compartments. An oil reservoir is located alongside the engine, cast intergral with the base. In this reservoir is located a double-acting force pump, the supply from which may be properly regulated to take care of the engine's requirements. The oil is forced from the reservoir up to, and drops through the sight feed on the dash. From there it is forced to the crank case, maintaining the supply there. By means of splashers at the end of each connecting rod, which dip into the oil at each revolution of the crank, the oil is thrown completely over [illegible] all the inside working parts [illegible] engine, inclosing main bearings [illegible] inders, etc.

With the Cadillac system [illegible] does not collect in either end [illegible] crank case as the sloping [illegible] the side distribute it from one [illegible] partment to another, maintaining [illegible] uniform and constant level [illegible] regardless of road conditions [illegible] grades.

There is another prime advantage [illegible] There is not a multiplicity of [illegible] to watch that may become [illegible] up and result in burned out [illegible] On the contrary, there is but [illegible] if the oil is shown by the sight [illegible] be feeding properly there is [illegible] assurance that all bearings [illegible] of by this system are being [illegible] lubricated.

In many cars more trouble [illegible] from improper lubrication than [illegible] any other one cause.

What He Says.

CALIFORNIA WILL HAVE BEST ROADS NEXT YEA

CALIFORNIA'S State highways will be the finest system of roads in the world, within the next year. Such is the opinion of Charles H. Thompson, who last week made a trip from this city, via Ventura and Santa Paula, to Santa Barbara, and return.

Thompson is well known locally as the distributor of the Jackson car, and made the trip in the interests of his business.

"When the San Francisco and San Diego expositions open their doors in 1915 to the world, and visitors come to California, we shall have a system of roads that are roads to show them," said Thompson.

"In some sections, I have heard that the road work is not being handled as quickly as it should be. [illegible] is the case we, as good citizens [illegible] State, should make every [illegible] forward the work to its [illegible] Let us show the world that [illegible] finest developments are not [illegible] confined in buildings, but that [illegible] built lasting monuments [illegible] practical and helpful for the [illegible] tions to come. Our slogan [illegible] 'More roads, better roads and [illegible] more roads!'"

Referee W. W. Hill who [illegible] trip from his home [illegible] Australia, to referee the [illegible] Rugby game between the [illegible] of California and Leland [illegible] has started back home. [illegible] to arrange for a visit of [illegible] Rugby squad to the [illegible] next season.

WELTERWEIGHTS WHO POSE AS LIGHTWEIGHTS.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

THE welterweights of today are posing as lightweights. The boxing fans pay their money to see lightweights in action and as a matter of fact they are bulled into the belief that they are getting what they pay for.

The welterweight poundage is 142 pounds. The lightweight limit is 133 pounds.

Any boxer who weighs over 133 pounds is a welterweight and this goes for them all.

Going back for twenty or twenty-five years we find such men as Tommy Tracy, the great Australian boxer; George Dawson, Billy Gallagher, Shadow Maber, Young Griffo, Matty Matthews, George Green, Danny Needham, Tommy Ryan, and easily twenty others of the first class that were of the highest class at that time.

George Dawson won the welterweight title of Australia. Tommy Tracy, Shadow Maber and Young Griffo were included in the first class of the Australian boxers.

Dawson and Tracy defeated Gallagher, Griffo defeated Frank McConnell, Green and Needham fought one of the fastest fights I have ever seen. Later Needham was also beaten by Ryan, who is now the boxing instructor of the Chicago Athletic Club.

Each and every one of these boys was scientific and of the highest class. Ryan and Needham fought one of the hardest fights ever seen in this country; this was a long time before Ryan developed into a middleweight.

Of the present-day welters, we have Jack Britton, Packy McFarland, Bud Anderson, Leach Cross, Willie Ritchie, Mike Gibbons, and several others who are trying to break into the lightweight class. But you do not see any of these boys making the lightweight limit. They are all weighing in at [illegible] pounds several hours before the time for entering the ring. But never a one of them are making the lightweight limit at any time.

The only legitimate lightweights that we have in the country today with any class, are Ad Wolgast, Tommy Murphy, Freddy Welsh, and Joe Rivers.

There are a lot who claim to be classy boys, but they have not shown anything to prove this, unless we might include Joe Mandot in the list.

George (Kid) Lavigne met Dick Burge, the English champion, at 138 pounds.

When English Jimmie Carroll met Jack McAuliff for the so-called lightweight championship they weighed [illegible] pounds. Still this was advertised as a lightweight championship, and each man had a hard time to make [illegible] pounds.

There was no lightweight championship involved in this match. It was simply a match between two welterweights and nothing more.

Packy McFarland is the recognized welterweight champion of this or any other country. But, he has kidded many lightweights to meet him. This should take nothing from Packy's reputation. If he is clever enough to get away with this stuff and make the fans believe it, he should be given credit for being a clever matchmaker.

These so-called lightweights are a joke.

Harry Thomas, who met Frankie Conley several years ago, is back in town from Australia, where he met with considerable success. He had seven bouts and only lost one to Jimmie Hill, the champion featherweight of Australia.

He is looking for a match here and has been offered a match up in San Francisco, but it was only for four rounds and he did not accept as he is looking for a twenty-round go if he can get it. He is still under the management of Jimmie Johnson.

Jimmie Clabby is in town looking the picture of health, and is on a vacation with the Venice baseball team. He is a guest of Happy Hogan and leaves this morning with Hap in his automobile for a trip to San Diego, where he will spend several days with the ball players and enjoy himself. Clabby is one of the high type of the modern boxers. He is a clean-cut looking chap, bright and a gentleman. In fact, he is about the last man in Los Angeles to be taken for a fighter.

Jimmie is a member of the Elks and one of the few fighters that were ever initiated to this grand order. Ad Wolgast, Billy Papke, Al Palzer, Bud Anderson and Clabby were the only professional boxers who were ever taken into the organization. Jimmie is proud of his membership.

NEW CASE CARS HAVE ARRIVED.

Zell Henley, local manager for the Case, is preparing for a strenuous campaign. The new 1914 Case cars are here and the demonstrator is one of the handsomest machines at the price now on the market. The Case has figured in automobile racing as a winner and has consistently smashed road and track records. This year the car, it is expected, will be entered in the Vanderbilt and the Grand Prix races here.

"It is my desire," said Henley yesterday, "to show the public what an excellent car the Case is for touring. We have outlined our campaign and the Case is to be known better than ever in 1914. When it comes to consistency we can prove what we say by showing the records of Case cars in all kinds of contests. Now we are out for a selling period and we expect to continue as winners."

Coulon Signed Up.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, was matched today to meet Young Sinnett of Rock Island, Ill., at Racine, Wis., January 12. The men will make 116 pounds ringside.

Bush Has a Hunch.

W. E. BUSH, who handles the Pierce-Arrow for Southern California, believes that the latest addition to the Pierce truck line will be extremely popular. The new truck is of two-ton capacity and its specifications in brief are as follows:

The general design of this new truck is along the same lines as that of the five-ton truck which has been so successful. Such minor refinements and improvements which practical experience has demonstrated as being necessary have been incorporated in both models. The motor has four cylinders, having an S.A.E. rating of 25.6 horse power, and develops over 30 at 1000 revolutions per minute. Cylinder castings are T head type, and all bearings are extra large. Lubrication is by large rotary pump delivering the oil under pressure to hollow crankshaft and sprayed on cylinder walls. Ignition by means of Bosch high tension single or unit. The carburetion is taken care of by standard Pierce-Arrow carburetor modified to truck conditions, automatic type, easily controlled. Cooling of the motor is secured by powerful centrifugal pump and a large vertical tube radiator. The clutch is of the leather-faced cone type with extra large surfaces. Transmission is of the three-speed selective type and reverse; all shafts being mounted on annular ball-bearings. This offers a maximum speed of sixteen on high, eight on second, four miles on low and three and one-third on reverse. The final drive to the wheels is by a stout propeller shaft and the noted Pierce-Arrow worm drive. Two sets of brakes are used, both of extreme power.

The frame for the chassis is of ample depth and strength. The motor and transmission are carried on a subsidiary frame, all the frame members being special steel heat treated. All springs are semi-elliptic, made especially long and strong, giving the maximum of easy riding and forging.

In speaking of the truck Bush said: "The factory have endeavored to minimize the oiling and greasing troubles to a minimum by eliminating wherever possible grease cups and substituting a special type of self-lubricating bearing. All bearing surfaces are ample. Care in this and other parts of the construction has been taken to insure a long and reliable life to the chassis. I have every confidence that it will successfully perform those duties for which it was designed."

Aubrey Webster.

The first of the big sectional tenpin tourneys, the Middle West series at St. Louis attracted entries that footed up $6335. Of this amount $2725 was from five-men teams; $1810 in two-men teams and $1760 in singles.

Duffy Lewis, left-fielder of the ex-world's champion Boston American team will take lessons from an athletic trainer in the art of sprinting.

Some Class.

BOYS ARE EXCITED OVER TIMES SPECIAL COASTERS.

"JUST three days to win a 'Times Special' safety speed coaster." "The people fairly eat up the orders," were the words of Aubrey Webster, a lad from Huntington Park, as he presented his last bunch of Midwinter orders to the clerk at The Times office.

That's going some for a boy, isn't it? Aubrey has only worked during his spare time of those three days, but he meant to win a "Times Special," and he did. Although a great many have turned in part of their orders and a lot more are holding their orders until they have secured the full fifty, young Webster holds the honored position of being the first boy to win a speed coaster.

Who will be the next lucky boy? There are plenty of coasters here, one for every boy. Only it's great to be among the first to finish. These coasters cannot be bought. They must be won by the one and only Times Midwinter plan.

Every boy in Southern California who turns in fifty orders for the 1914 Midwinter edition of The Times will be given one of The Times' handsome special speed coasters.

The Midwinter edition is published on the first of January, and will be mailed to any part of the United States for 15 cents per copy. Everybody will want to send five or six copies of this great booster number to their friends back home.

It's awfully easy, boys. Aubrey won his in just three days. Get started now. Come in or write for illustrated circular. Address your letters to The Times, Coaster Department.

Willie Kolehmainen, the professional runner, has gone to England. He will run in the Powderhall Marathon race at Edinburgh on New Year's Day.

New York Public Schools Athletic League has undertaken the gigantic task of teaching 55,000 boys of the elementary schools how to swim.

COLD SHOULDER FOR PATTERSON.

California League Is "Agin" Him for Manager.

Three Directors to Oppose His Appointment.

Cross-Anderson Match for New Years Cinched.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

The California League will not stand for Ham Patterson as manager of the Stockton club.

This startling declaration was made by one of the directors of the league when it was learned that Patterson had been tentatively slated to succeed Jack Thomas as manager of the Millers.

Henry Berry, owner of the Fresno club; Tom Stevens, owner of the San Jose club, and J. Cal Ewing, who controls the Vallejo franchise, are all opposed to Patterson for a managerial berth in the league. President Baum's sentiments are not known, but it is believed that his attitude is the same as the three men mentioned.

ALL "AGIN" HIM.

Even without Baum taking a hand, Ed R. Maier would be hopelessly outnumbered if the Patterson matter should be put to a vote.

Should Maier insist on placing Patterson in Stockton it may result in the finest kind of a little upheaval. However, there is no reason to believe that he will do this against the wishes of his associates.

Patterson's extreme aggressiveness is the ground on which three of the directors are opposing his appointment.

"If Patterson is made manager of the Stockton club there will be no California League next year," said Henry Berry. "I am not speaking for myself alone, but for Stevens and Ewing as well. Patterson's case was thoroughly discussed at the annual meeting of the league, and at that time it was decided that he is not the man for the place. Understand me, there is no personal enmity against Patterson. We simply fear that he would overdo the aggressive business. The umpiring is none too good in a league of that class, and I think that it would be hard for Patterson to restrain himself under these conditions."

Patterson formerly managed the Pueblo club and is said to have made a success of the job.

Anderson-Cross Match.

Barring a busted beak, fractured tibia or cracked magnum ulna, Bud Anderson and Leach Cross will renew their grudge at Vernon on New Years.

The poundage or meat question was settled Friday—135 two hours before entering the ring.

Yesterday, after much frenzied financial sparring, ground and lofty mental tumbling and other managerial gyrations by Messrs. Donald and Wallach, a satisfactory agreement was reached regarding the money end of the argument. This sordid feature of the affair being settled, it is now assured that the men will meet on January 1, barring the possibility of some of the contingencies citied in the opening paragraph.

Both boys will display their boxing samples at Doyle's this afternoon, each boxing six rounds. Anderson will have the stage first, starting at 3 o'clock and will be followed immediately by the fighting dentist.

All Want to Be Bosses.

What to do with Patsy O'Rourke is a problem confronting Hap Hogan.

Patsy wanted to re-blossom as a manager, and Maier and Hap gave him permission to scout around for a vacant berth. That O'Rourke will be able to land is by no means certain. There are about sixteen applicants for every job. The woods are animated with good baseball men trying to find a managerial niche.

When Hogan was in Columbus he labored far into the night trying to locate a vacancy for O'Rourke, but he couldn't make the riffle.

"Patsy believed that it would be easy to get a position as manager, and asked that we give our consent for him to look for a place," said Hogan. "I guess that he didn't realize the scarcity of jobs. There are any number of big-league men who are now rounding out their days as players and looking for managerial nests. Bill Sullivan, Topsy Hartsel, Bill Bernard, Larry Schflay and a dozen other good men that I could mention, were at Columbus angling for jobs. It looks as though Patsy would have a hard time horning his way in."

Poor Little Willie.

Chames Buckley, manager of Tommy Murphy, says that Ritchie is afraid of Tommy. That ought to settle it. Let the controversy cease.

Tinker Is Willing.

Joe Tinker says that he will play in Brooklyn if they give him that $10,000. Needless remark. Joe could hardly afford to do otherwise.

Howard Still Coming.

Del Howard did not arrive yesterday as scheduled. In a letter received by his father-in-law, H. C. Suttle, Del explained that he had changed his plans a bit and would tarry at Paso Robles two or three days on his way down, to inspect some acreage there of which he is the proud proprietor. Thus the feverish anxiety over the Overall matter continues unabated.

Packy Kidding Again.

Packy McFarland's offer to make 135 pounds for Willie Ritchie three hours before entering the ring violently agitated the risibilities of one Samivel Wallach.

Boxing fans here generally construed McFarland's remarks as a bit of verbal sparring to enable him to work his way out of the corner into which the public clamor for him to meet either Clabby or Gibbons has crowded him.

"McFarland knows his own welfare too well to attempt to make 135 three hours before," said Wallach. "If he did that he would be but a mere shadow of the real McFarland."

McFarland still persists in claiming that he is a legitimate lightweight. Don't think for a minute that Packy is trying to kid himself into thinking that he is. He is just kidding the deah public. Packy is a wonderful fighter; no doubt about it. But even so, he has always taken occasion to appear to the best advantage by picking out opponents who are his inferiors in weight. Because of his drawing powers, McFarland is able to do about as he pleases when it comes to matchmaking, and he never fails to safeguard the McFarland interests. If Packy ever gets his personal pulchritude marred it will not be through unwise matchmaking.

Buffalo will hold the annual American bowling congress championships next March. Philadelphia will stage the eighth annual national tournament in Atlantic City next Easter tide.

Koji Yamada, the Japanese billiard player, is expected to be the next challenger of Willie Hoppe, the champion, at 18:2 balkline style of play. The contest will probably occur in New York in January.

Club Signs Should Beckon Always Westward!

Sidney L. Briggs, who has [illegible] completed an auto journey from Chicago to Los Angeles, with his [illegible] his daughter Margaret and Miss [illegible] H. Burdick of Johnstown, N. Y., [illegible] the party, gives an interesting [illegible] count of the pleasures of the [illegible] its scenery, comforts, people [illegible] adventures.

Coming at leisure, the party [illegible] at will whenever inclination [illegible] rest or exploration, finding [illegible] able quarters in hotels along [illegible] route. Everywhere they stopped [illegible] bers of the party were besieged [illegible] inquiries about Los Angeles, [illegible] with statements that the [illegible] tend coming here as soon as [illegible] are provided. "Make the roads at [illegible] must," said Briggs. OXY FOOTBALL CARNIVAL LASTS UNTIL NIGHTFALL

Brooks of L. A. High Wins Two First Places—Davidson of San Diego Punts Well and Wallace of Santa Ana Also Shines—Pascoe of Whittier Shows Burst of Speed.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

WELL, THE Oxy football carnival is over, no new records were set, except for general chaos, and nobody knows whether the Rugby is better than the American game or not. Because the crowd seemed to overlook the fact that bleachers are made to sit in, the field was rather congested, to say the least, but the striving young men from the various high schools managed to get off a few stunts as per schedule.

The Rugby place kicking contest was about the most spirited event of the day, because Brooks of L. A. High, Richardson of Hollywood and Tipton of Poly, got all tangled up in a tie, harder than a four-strand knot. The deadlock was at last broken by the failure of Richardson to hop one over from the 45-yard line. Brooks and Tipton then battled manfully for some time, finally Tipton making a boot and Brooks gathered the gold medal, although he was nearly dead.

Malette of San Diego was the other star, when in the forward pass he scored nine out of nine for 1000 per cent.

The team-play events were called off because the daylight failed.

RESULTS.

Rugby kicking to touch—Gilman first, Manual Arts, 32½ yards; Fishburn second, L. A. High, 38½ yards; Nevil third, Manual Arts, 27 yards.

Distance, the average of five kicks.

Takes a Chance.

DEL HOWARD FILES CLAIM TO FIVE BIG LEAGUERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Manager Del Howard filed claim today on five players who were drafted into the major leagues last fall. They are "Big Bill James," who goes to the St. Louis Americans from the Portland Coast League Club; Jimmy Johnston, from San Francisco to the Chicago Nationals; Heilman, from Portland Northwest to Detroit; Barham, from Atlanta to Cincinnati, and Mollwitz, from Green Bay of the Wisconsin-Illinois League to the Chicago Nationals.

The Seals' skipper is taking a gamble with other class double A clubs in getting material when the big leagues start to weed out. Every major league manger has the right up to February 1 to file claims, but the class double A's have first pick. The club from which a player is drafted, however, is given the preference. This will hold good in the cases of Bill James and Jimmy Johnston. If St. Louis decides to turn "Big Bill" loose, Portland can secure the player and the Seals will accordingly get first crack at "Speedy" Jimmy. In the cases of Howard's other three claims he has an equal chance. If more than one claim is filed for a player he is drawn by lot and it is then up to a manager to demonstrate how lucky he is.

It does not look as if there is much chance of either Johnston or James getting out of the fast company, but Manager Howard thinks it is well worth while trying. If a claim is successful all that is needed is the furnishing of the draft price, which in the cases of Johnston and James is $2500.

Much Argumentation.

JOE TINKER'S CASE SEEMS BY NO MEANS SETTLED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joe Tinker is still on the outside of the fence. In fact, it might be said that since Friday night when his sale to Brooklyn was announced, he has backed farther away than ever from Charles Ebbet's proposition. Today the ex-Cub and former star stated that he does not want to commit himself as yet, but added emphatically that he is not in favor of going to the Dodgers.

"I do not want to play ball in Brooklyn," quoth Joseph Belasco.

While Tinker was answering queries in the above fashion, Charles Webb Murphy of the Cubs was absorbed in how to solve the problem whereby he can get Tinker back to the Cubs.

It is so hard to believe the Dodger offer has no strings attached that Tinker will await official word from the Brooklyn club. He refuses to believe that Ebbets, after parting with $25,000 will continue to be liberal and offer a contract calling for a figure equaling what Joe received for manager of the Reds. This is said to be anywhere from $7500 to $10,000.

A $7500 contract will hardly attract the former Cub star. This figure, with the $10,000 tempting him to sign, will net a paltry $17,500 for five months' work. It isn't enough to play in Brooklyn, however, unless the contract calls for three seasons at least. He will not consider one year unless the salary is $10,000, and even then might refuse.

The Timer.

C. E. HALLIWELL RETURNS FROM LONG TRIP NORTH.

C. E. HALLIWELL, vice-president of the Halliwell Company, has returned. For the past two months he has been dividing his time between the San Francisco, Seattle and Portland stores of the Halliwell firm.

In speaking of recent business developments, Halliwell said: "The local [illegible] which manufactures the [illegible] dry battery recently made such [illegible] changes that they might double their output. We are the exclusive sales agents, and even with the additional output, we have not yet been able to receive all that we could sell. Last week, we made a large shipment of these batteries to Honolulu, where they are in great demand. Their popularity there as well as here seems to lie in the fact that they are fresher and can stand shipment metter on account of their long life."

The Knight Tire Company, whose product he represents in this territory, announce a new price list which reduces the prices on all of its goods by 11½ per cent. less than heretofore. This reduction is in keeping with the reduced prices on all tires owing to the decline in price of raw rubber.

WHEN an automobile and a railroad train race for a crossing the odds of the betting, if any were given, would be in favor of the train, but that the taker of the short end has some chance to cash in was demonstrated recently at Beaumont, Tex., when a heavy passenger train was derailed and main-line traffic of a leading railroad of that district held up for three hours as a result of a struggle at a crossing between the engine and a Marion "Bobcat" roadster. Details of the clash were received yesterday by "Larry" Symonds, who handles the Marion cars in Southern California.

T. R. Ligon was the motorist who piloted the auto in its battle with the locomotive. As he approached the crossing at a speedy gait he realized that there was sure to be a crash. To the left was a deep ditch, turning into which meant certain disaster. To the right the road bed was wide enough to permit of the running of the car beside the track. The auto was swung into the stretch a few feet ahead of the locomotive. Not far away was a switch stand. This the car struck and came to a stop without further mishap.

Not so fortunate, however, was the train. Striking the switch stand the motor car had thrown the points of the switch. The engine left the track, tearing up the roadway for a distance of twenty-five feet on the main line, although the sudden application of the brakes prevented the wrecking of the train.

While an army of men was clearing the roadway the motorist and his Marion roadster, that had been the unwitting cause of destruction, drove away, credited with a signal victory over the mogul.

FRESHMEN WIN TRACK MEET.

POMONA PEA GREENS EASILY GRAB VICTORY.

George Green Starts by Winning Quarter and Half-Mile Runs in Good Time—Charles Green Gathers [illegible] Points in Four Events. Meet Develops Good Material.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The freshmen walked off with the first annual "scrub" interclass meet here today, scoring 52 2-3 points. The junior class 20 points [illegible] were their nearest competitors. In order to bring out the new material, all track letter men were barred from the meet. This gave the freshmen a great advantage for many of the freshmen entries were last year star High School performers, and will undoubtedly win places on the varsity in a few months.

The meet was a great success from the standpoint of the new material developed. George Green, a freshman from Long Beach won the 440 in 55 flat and the 880 in 2:15, both very fast time considering the condition of the track which had just been plowed up. Charles Green, another freshman from Riverside, won both hurdles, and took second in the shot and broad jump. Both of these men will be heard from later. [illegible], the star freshman weight man, was unable to compete on account of blood poisoning or the freshmen's score might have been higher.

The freshmen took the relay through the fast work of Green and Given, two promising candidates for the sprints. The meet was held under the auspices of the College Y.M.C.A. and freshmen are now in possession of a handsome trophy cup in token of their victory. The score by classes was: Freshmen, 52 2-3; juniors, 22 1-3; Sophomore, 18; seniors, 13.

GOLF GOSSIP.

The forty golfers of the Los Angeles C.C., who comprised the team captained by F. D. Hudson in the match play yesterday against an equal number captained by R. H. Ingram, won their match with the score of 18 to 16.

Ingram's team provided a stag dinner to the winners last night and, of course, it goes without saying, that the dinner was a most jovial affair.

L. T. Bradford and A. G. Gage tied for first in the golf ball sweepstake, their scores being 4-3-1 and 7-6-1, respectively. J. A. Jevne was second with a score of 4-1-3 and F. H. Edwards was third with 7-1-6. There were eighteen entries in the sweepstake play.

The match play against par at the Midwic C.C., attracted a great deal of interest yesterday, the scores being in almost every case good ones. The players being allowed ¾ of their handicap allowance. The event was won by W. J. Wallace in 2 down, his handicap being 6.

Other scores turned in were as follows: J. V. Eliot, 1-3 down; R. P. Flint, 12-3 down; Alexander Keigan, 6-3 down; H. G. Chaffee, 6-3 down; G. A. Weber, 12-4; E. D. Washburn, 6-4 down; Ralph Harris, 9-4 down; N. M. Murray, 15-4; C. S. Eaton, 5-4; F. O. Wood, 9-4; G. C. Drake, 18-5; J. D. Cravens, 4-6.

The four-ball best ball match between E. S. Armstrong, one of the best-known amateur golfers in the State and Frank Peebles, the Midwick professional, versus Bob and Jim Simpson, the eastern professionals, which was played at Midwick yesterday afternoon was won by the Simpson brothers, in 2 up and 1. Rob Simpson made the course in 74. Making a brilliant 36 for the last nine. Peebles score was 78, while Armstrong and Jim Simpson were each 79.

The match between the Simpson brothers and the Martin brothers, professionals of the Los Angeles C. C., now seems an assured fact and has created no little interest in golf circles. The Martin brothers are very popular among the players of the Los Angeles C. C., while the Simpson brothers have made many friends since their arrival here. The Simpson boys have announced their willingness to play the Martin brothers on any two golf courses in Southern California, of course excepting the Martin boys' home course—the Los Angeles C. C. links. The match will probably be played on December 22 and December 29. One of the matches will undoubtedly be played over the Midwick course, as several of the Midwick players have asked the Simpson brothers to play their half of the match over the Midwick course. The Simpson brothers are of course used to turf links, but both boys say they will be, in a measure, used to the California links by the time the match is played. Bob Simpson holds the Western open championship, which he won first in 1907 at Hinsdale, Ill., and again in 1911 at Grand Rapids, Mich., at which match his brother, Jim, won the low qualifying score. Bob also represented America against England in the international match held in Mexico City, winning the match, while Jim is now the champion professional of Wisconsin. The Martin boys are both crack players and the match between the four boys will prove a splendid attraction where ever staged. Jim Simpson is backed by considerable Wisconsin money and it is said there will be a good-sized bet on the side between the boys. However this is not for publication.

The second round of the December tournament will be completed Monday, three of th efour matches having been played off yesterday. R. C. Gartz and W. K. Jewett won from H. J. Fish and F. R. Harris, 4 and 3; H. Newby and C. H. Biggar won from V. G. Kleinberger and J. Ball, 2 and 1; E. M. Mackey and A. S. Ormsby won from H. S. Vandyke and C. S. Fleming, 3 and 2. The last match will be by Frank D. Tatum and W. D. Card against C. H. Bentley and C. S. Byington.

There were nineteen entries for the golf ball sweetstake at the Redlands C. C. yesterday, the event being won by M. S. Severance with a net 70, his handicap being 14.

The afternoon tea which has become sopopular with the CountryClub set was presided over by Mesdames S. Y. Wynne and O. T. Higgins. Over a hundred guests were served.

For Owners.

COLE MAN HAS IDEAS OF OWN.

SERVICE DEPARTMENT PREPARED FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

New Concern Is Ready to Help Cole Owners Who Are in Need of Anything that Can Be Supplied by the Motor Trade—Some Novel Ideas Are Advanced.

"Most people feel that the addition of a part here makes little real difference in the maintenance of a motor car," says E. B. Lacer, expert mechanic in charge of the Service Department for Cole Motor Company.

"This is absolutely wrong," he continues. "Nothing could be further from the truth. The tendency in all good manufacturers is to reduce every piece of machinery to the fewest possible units. If anyone could, under any conditions build an automobile in a single piece it would absolutely never wear out. There would be no friction—there would be no pieces against which this piece could rub—which means that there would be absolutely no wear.

"Of course, this would be an ideal plan, but ideal plans are never practical. The only thing left, therefore, is for engineers to reduce automobiles to the simplest form possible; meaning to the fewest number of parts. And, get this point—a machine made of three parts is vastly more than three times as complicated and bothersome as a machine made of one part. In other words, the addition of parts doesn't increase trouble in exact numerical ratio, but it compounds trouble. It's a good deal like the old horseshoe story, where you double the cost, beginning with 1 cent on every nail driven in. On this basis it costs over a million dollars to shoe a horse.

About Right.

HARBOR ROAD WHAT WE NEED.

Boulevard for Pleasure Cars but Not for Trucks.

Eight Railroad Tracks, Two Highways, a Dream.

Reasons Why We Need Commercial Turnpike at Once.

BY W. F. WOOD,

President Motor Truck Dealers' Association.

The future of Los Angeles, in a commercial way, will be controlled largely by the accessibility of our harbor. The Panama Canal was built for us—for it will benefit Los Angeles more than any city on either coast. The water frontage of our port at one time was controlled by certain corporations. This monopoly was wrested from them, in an endeavor to create an open harbor. The port of Los Angeles must be open to every shipper for the handling of freight with the means which are best suited to his business—whether this means shipping by steam, electricity, or by motor truck. If this privilege is not extended to the merchant, the manufacturer and every man who uses our port, then our commercial supremacy will be handicapped and restricted by means beyond our control.

Three years ago next month the City Council authorized the employment of Bion J. Arnold of Chicago to lay out a complete terminal system for our harbor.—After practically one year's work, Arnold submitted his report to the city, together with the plans and surveys asked for. This report opened as follows:

THE REPORT.

"After a careful study of the situation, I would suggest the following plans:

"1. Secure a right of way from Slauson avenue in the vicinity of Ascot Park—direct south along the line of easiest grade—to Wilmington. This right of way should be at least 250 feet in width in order to provide for eight railroad tracks and two automobile highways. The automobile truck is being developed rapidly and it is not unreasonable to expect that a large part of the tonnage between the harbor and local delivery and collection points will be handled by means of the auto truck.

"The cost of handling freight at the terminals is the largest part of the cost of transportation when the distance is comparatively short. It has been claimed that, with our ordinary railroad facilities, after the cost of loading and unloading freight has been taken care of, the additional cost of transportation adds such a comparatively small amount to the total cost that it is practically immaterial whether the goods are transported one mile or fifty miles. The cost of moving goods between any point in Los Angeles and the harbor terminal will be made up largely of the cost of handling at both ends rather that the cost of actual transit. The use of the auto truck will make it possible to deliver from wharf or warehouse direct to store or factory and thus eliminate the expense of intermediate transfers. The already extensive use of freight automobiles in this vicinity is proving the practicability of this proposed arrangement."

THOSE OPTIONS.

Developments have proved that somebody blundered. We secured options on a right of way; they are now worthless. The paramount idea seemed to be a municipal road. The time of our officials and the taxpayers' money have been spent, the people voted down the project, and we are today no nearer a solution than when we began. The three thousand motor trucks that are today working in and out of our city are owned by business concerns that will all have more or less shipping at the harbor. By their buying trucks, they have proved their preference, yet we are practically compelling them to ship their goods by rail by not building a suitable highway to the harbor.

Our present Harbor boulevard is inadequate. It was not intended for heavy traffic and consequently will not stand up long, even under the light traffic that present shipping offers. It has a macadam base. This will carry pleasure car traffic, but even then requires constant maintenance, as macadam has no tensile strength. When this boulevard is closed for repairs—as it inevitably will be at frequent intervals—our only means of reaching our port, other than by rail, is closed.

Chief Engineer Joyner of the Highway Commission, besides a number of our heaviest shippers, see what will inevitably result and all favor a commercial highway to the harbor and this highway should be built before any more boulevards are planned to the beaches. We must have a highway to the harbor that will be open to and stand motor truck traffic. Otherwise our port will be what it always has been in the past—controlled by a few.

MURPHY WOULD OUST J. EVERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] From its baseball editor, who attended the National League meeting in New York, the Republic prints the following:

Upon his arrival from Ireland, Charles Webb Murphy, president of the Chicago National League club, it is reported on reliable authrity, inadvertently let it slip that he was intending to dispose of Johnny Evers as manager of the Cubs.

It is said that Murphy and Evers did not team together well last season and that the termination of Evers's regime was predicted on Murphy's ability to secure Joe Tinker.

Wilbert Robinson, the new manager of the Superbas, stole a march on Murphy when he went to Garry Herrman with a cash offer for the services of the little shortstop.

Clifton B. Herd, winner of the national interscholastic lawn tennis championship at Newport, is now a student at Cornell University.

America will be represented by a soccer football eleven at the 1916 Olympic games at Berlin.

AUTO CLUB TO RESCUE.

Opposes the Motor Vehicle Taxation Act.

Legal Department Will Be Swung in Line.

Club Enrolls Hundred Fifty New Members.

Opposition to the motor vehicle act, which is believed to tax unconstitutionally owners of automobiles, is proving so deep that motorists to the number of 150 joined the ranks of the Automobile Club of Southern California during the past week, and many more are coming in to assist the cause.

"These motorists have joined the ranks of the organization not alone to foster the good roads movement and to aid the Automobile Club to carry on its work, but to aid the club in fighting the motor vehicle tax," said Secretary Geary. "Their sentiment in opposition to the tax has been expressed forcibly in every instance, and in every case has justified the stand we have taken in the matter.

"The Automobile Club of Southern California, following the announcement that its legal department would be swung into a fight against any attempt at unjust taxation, has been materially strengthened by the addition of new members who are enthusiastic in aiding the work.

"At all times we are behind any movement for a completion of the State highways, and will direct our activity with equal enthusiasm along those lines."

PAY, PROTEST.

Protests printed in legal form are rapidly being distributed at the club headquarters, Eighth and Olive streets, and each member of the organization is provided with one. Club officials are advising each member to pay the required tax, with an enclosed protest.

"Our headquarters have been crowded all week by motorists interested in the defeat of the tax," said President Fred L. Baker yesterday, "and it is from the thousands who have applied to us for aid that we have learned of the general sentiment throughout the southern part of the State, and it is, of course, the majority which we will represent in our action.

"New members have come in from all sections, and they bring with them reports which show the opposition is widespread. More than 8000 protests from our members alone will be sent into the State offices following their receipt by them, and these will indicate the sentiment of the automobile owners of the State."

COMING SUIT.

E. G. Kuster, head of the legal department of the Automobile Club, is actively engaged in preparing the action which will be directed against the State tax.

"We are representing not only the Automobile Club members in this work," said Kuster yesterday, "but the entire motoring public as well. They seem to have realized this, for I notice that the membership rolls are rapidly filling up, denoting an eagerness on the part of those who had not yet put their shoulders to the wheel in the interest of better roads and legislation protecting the motorists. It is gratifying to learn that such a general support is accorded to the Automobile Club."

Tom White, a well known Australian trainer of greyhounds, is now in England with the team sent from Australia by Oscar Asche. Over Always, the greyhound, with which Mr. Asche won the Rosy Dawn cup in the summer, was to have formed one of the team but he broke his neck two days before he was due to sail. The team which is in England includes Ena's Delight, winner of the South Australian Oaks and the Waterloo cup; Capt. Wood, who has the Victorian Derby and the Victorian cup (seventy-eight dogs) to his credit, and Black Pan, runner-up in the last stake. They will compete in various events in Great Britain.

Ray and Varden, the English professional golf players, have returned home. Their trip through this country extended slightly over three months. In addition to the championship, tournaments and practice games, they took part in nearly forty thirty-six-hole matches. They received $400 for each thirty-six-hole match and have received nearly $12,000. In the old days even the best professionals would be content to play a match for $25 a side. But in the old days the professional did not rank much above the first-class caddie. Now the leaders, at all events, are regarded as almost infallible authorities on the game.

Zbszko, the Polish wrestler, who is competing in an open tournament in Paris, has been offered one of the largest guarantees ever made to a wrestler other than a world's champion to return to America to take part in elimination matches planned by Promoter Tuchey of Boston. Foreign stars now here include Gustaf Fristensky, the Bohemian heavyweight; Ivan Mamutoff, a member of the Czar of Russia's body guard, and Alex. Aberg, the Finland champion. So, with Zbszko and Mahmout, the Bulgarian, these men constitute the most prominent of the contenders for the crown held by Champion Frank Gotch, who has retired.

Cleveland golfers now have an indoor course to practice on.

ELSINORE.

ELSINORE, Dec. 13.—A Mexican, Rafageo Lara, was killed Thursday afternoon at the Alberhill mines, by the discharge of dynamite with which he was working.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sitton has just returned from Riverside, where she attended the funeral of her uncle, James F. Jenkins, who for twenty-five years has been a well-known and greatly respected resident of Elsinore. He was born in Tennessee, spent his boyhood in Missouri, and in 1854 started to California by wagon, making the long and perilous trip with oxen. He settled in Tulare county, where he remained until he came to Elsinore, then in her pioneer days. His death occurred December 10, in Riverside, where funeral services were held Thursday.

Almost every auto of the hundreds that pass through Elsinore daily, bears an immense, "Vote for Good Roads" banner. The election will be held December 17. The Elsinore precinct board consist of P. C. Graham, inspector; N. J. Burton and Mrs. Lizzie Ellis, judges; Mrs. Isadore Bolting, clerk.

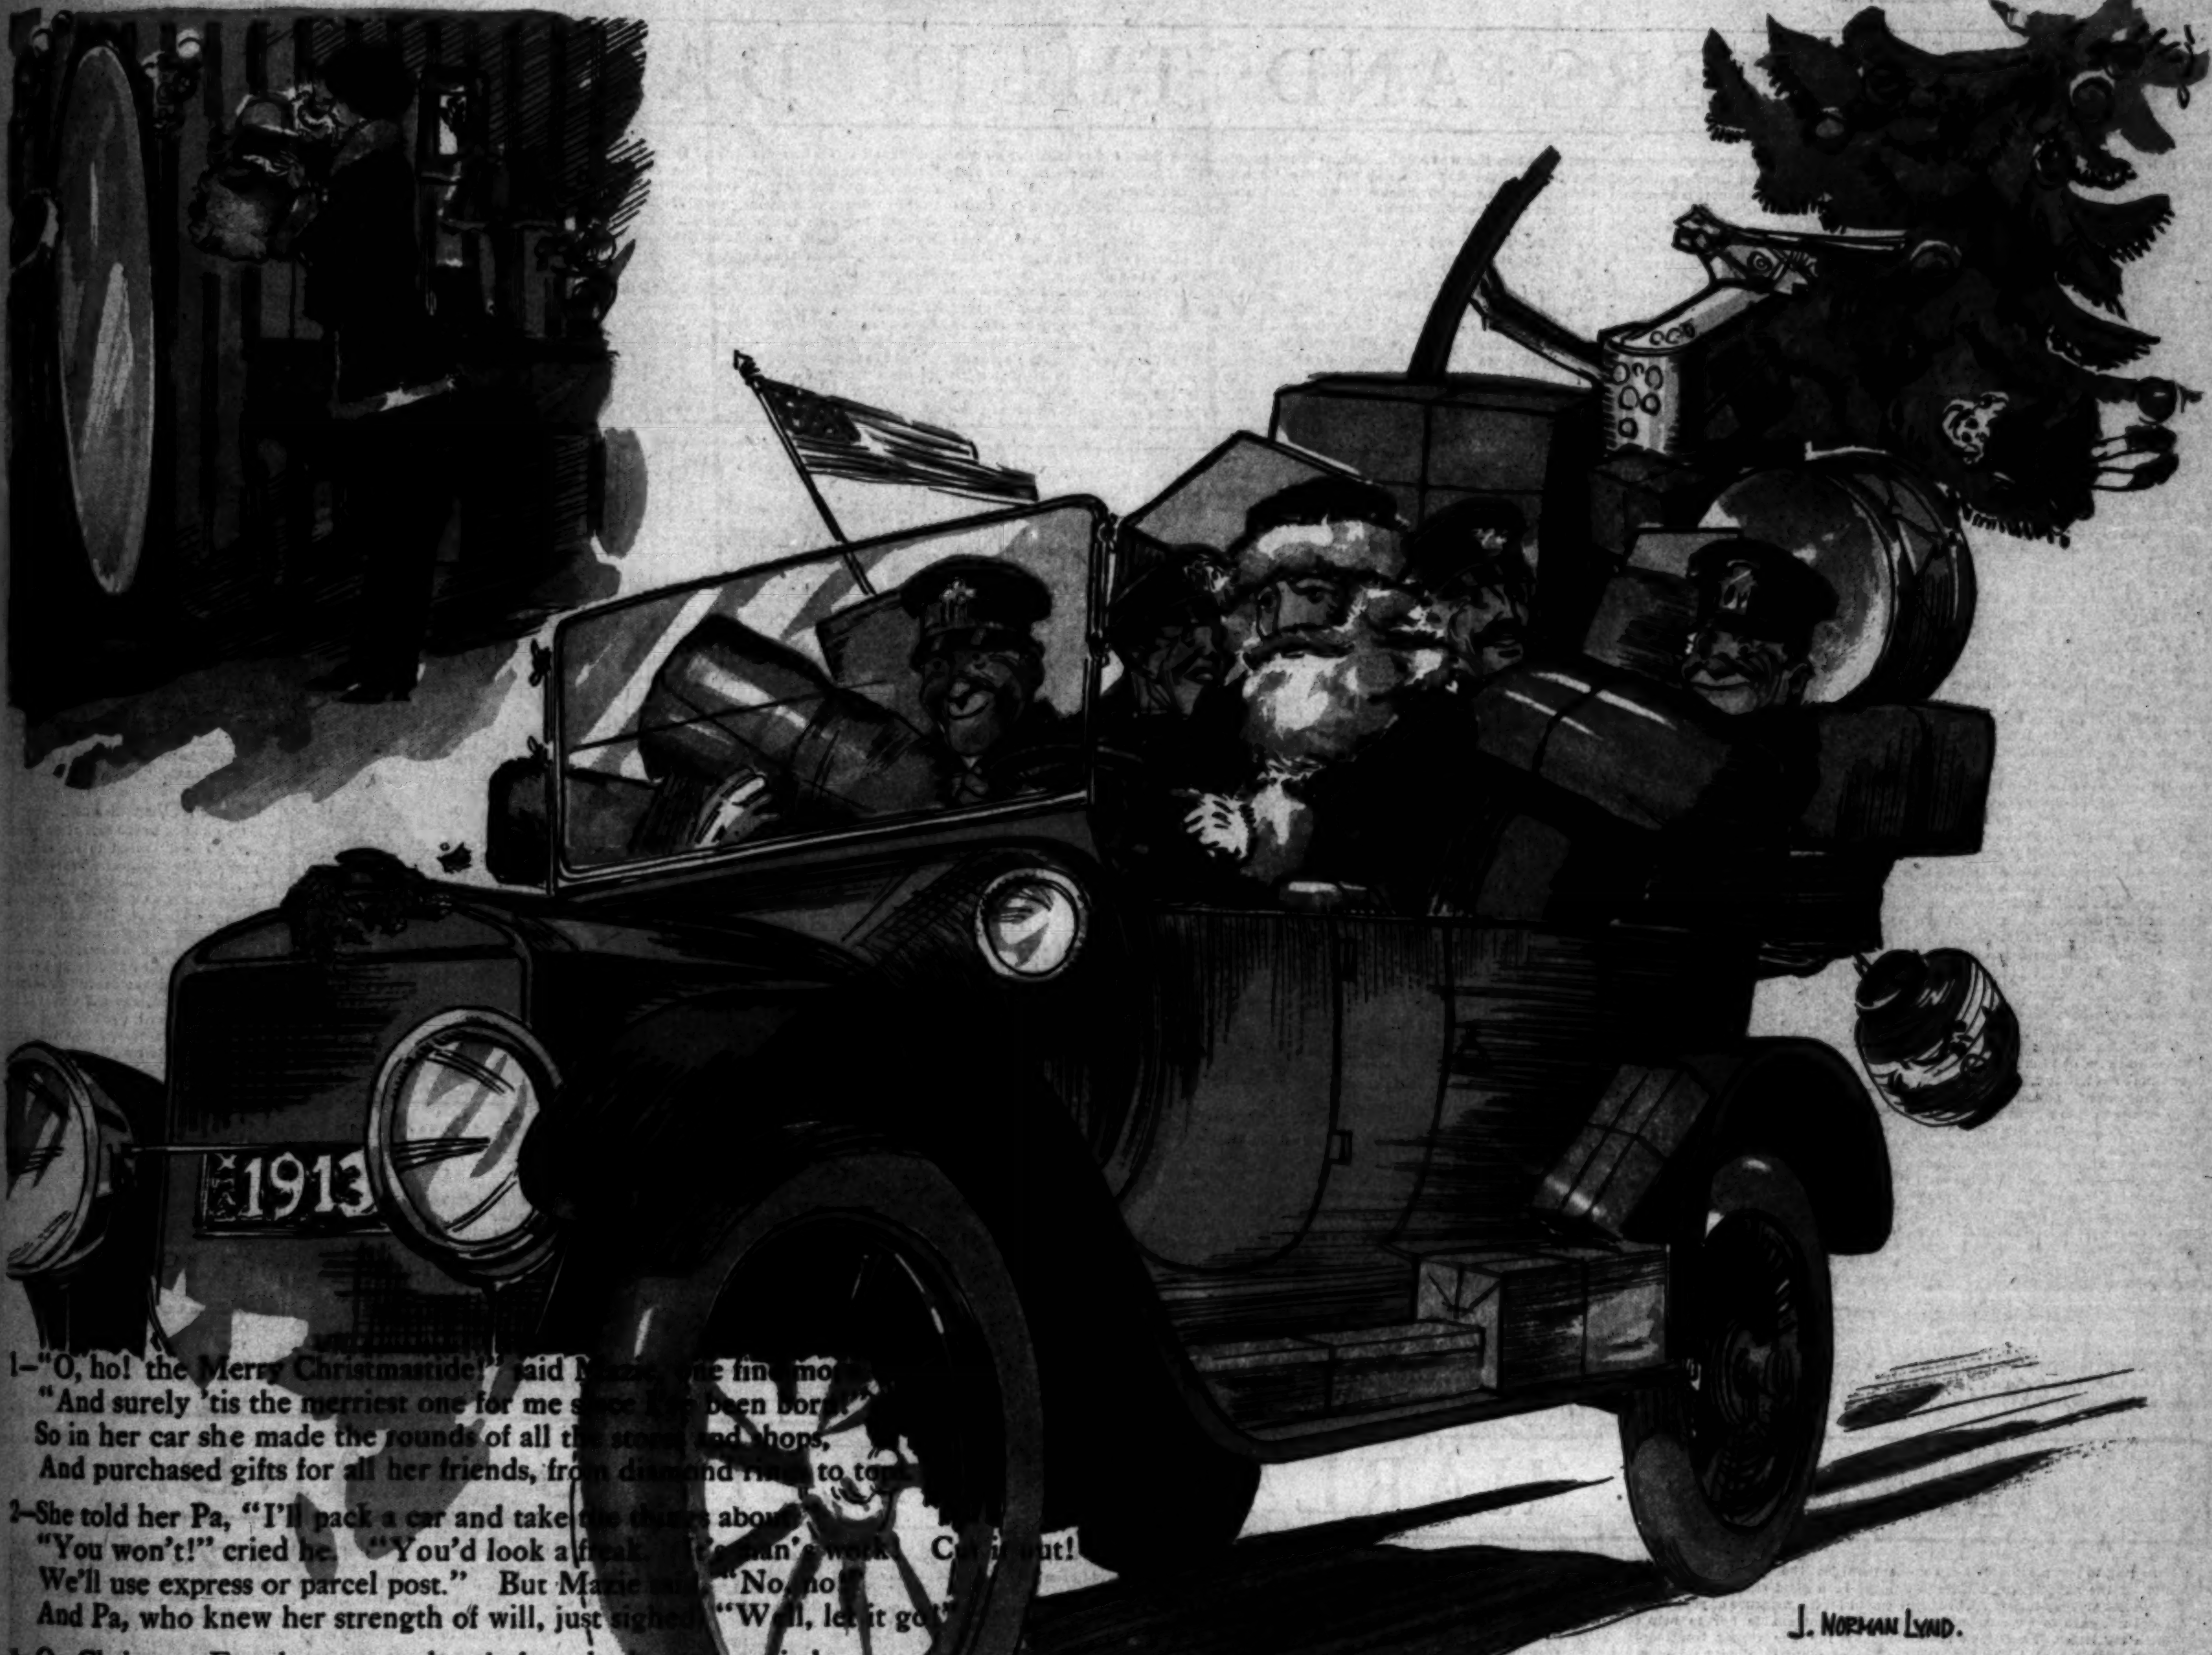
MAZIE THE MOTOR MAID

Verses by Paul West ⊠ Illustrations by J. Norman Lynd



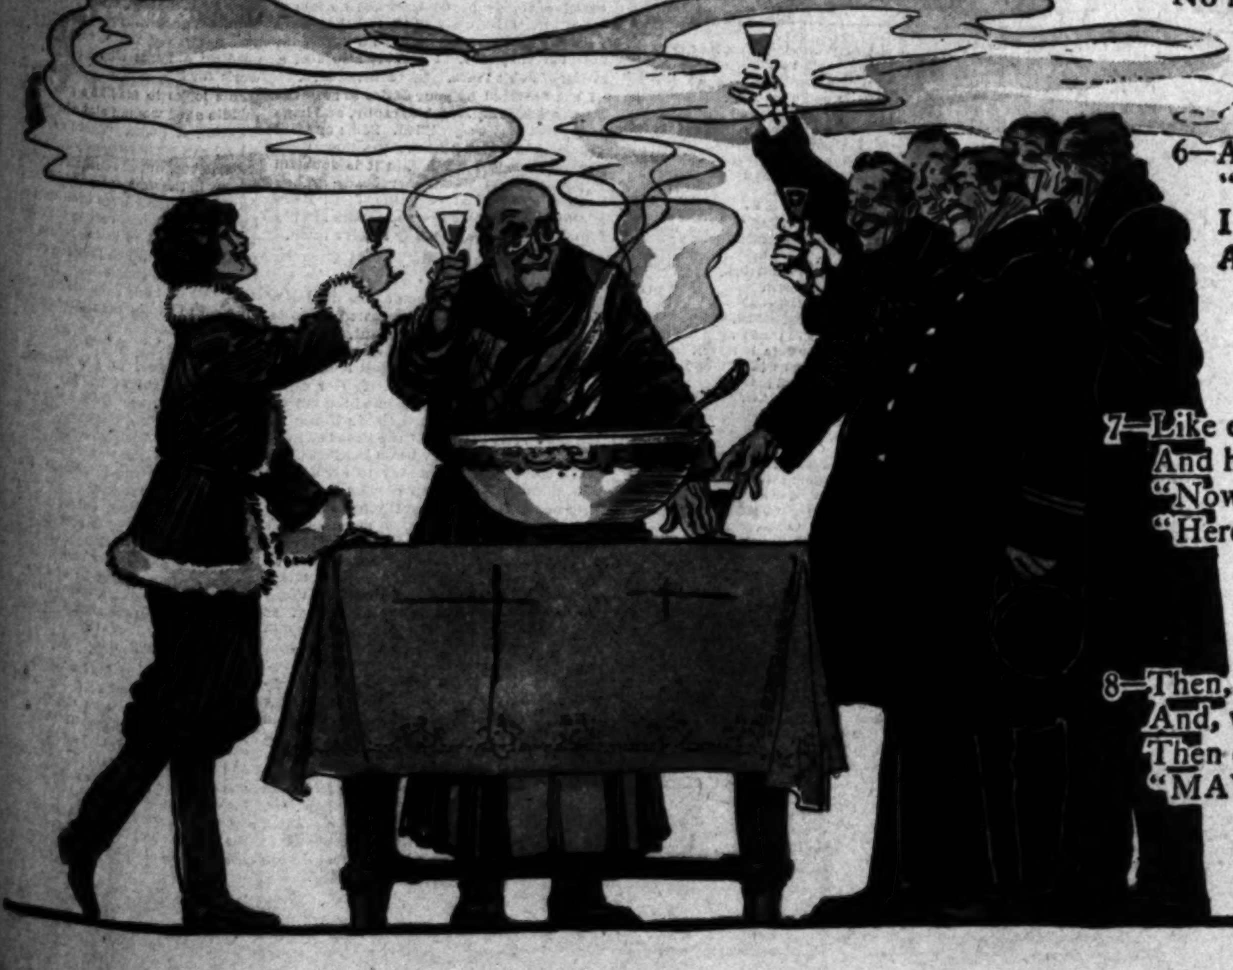
1—"O, ho! the Merry Christmastide!" said Mazie, one fine morn,
"And surely 'tis the merriest one for me since I've been born!"
So in her car she made the rounds of all the stores and shops,
And purchased gifts for all her friends, from diamond rings to tops.

2—She told her Pa, "I'll pack a car and take the things about."
"You won't!" cried he. "You'd look a freak. It's man's work. Cut it out!
We'll use express or parcel post." But Mazie said, "No, no!"
And Pa, who knew her strength of will, just sighed, "Well, let it go!"

3—On Christmas Eve, however, when before the house he spied
Her biggest car packed like a van, he bristled up with pride
And schemed a scheme. He slyly 'phoned the Traffic Squad:—"To-night
My daughter's speeding all round town. Look out!" They answered, "Right!"

4—But, ah! Fair Mazie overheard. Smiled she:—"'Tis as I feared.
But watch me foil those Traffic Cops!" She donned a snow white beard,
Fur cap, a suit like Santa Claus, big mittens, flaming red,
And, with a merry, tooting horn, away she swiftly sped.

5—On rushed the gift-packed Christmas car. A Traffic Guard cried, "Stop!"
But when he saw the white haired Saint he blushed:—"Beg pardon, Pop!
I thought at first 'twas Mazie's car; but since you're Santa Claus
No limit holds you back. Speed on! A Saint can break no laws!"



6—A wild idea seized Mazie then—a scheme she knew was crazy.
"Ride round with me and leave these gifts, then we'll go hunt for Mazie!
I know exactly where she'll be!" A dozen Cops cried, "Great!"
And in the car with "Santa Claus" they rode round town in state.

7—Like errand boys, they left the gifts wherever Mazie said.
And heedless of the speeding laws, about the streets they sped.
"Now," said the Cops, "We've done our share. Where's Mazie to be found?"
"Here!" Mazie cried, and doffed her wig and, laughing, looked around.

8—Then, ere the Squad could get its breath, she homeward rushed the bunch,
And, waking her astonished Pa, they brewed a Christmas punch.
Then out she took her little book and read this greeting true:
"MAY CHRISTMAS BREAK ALL SPEED LAWS, FRIENDS, IN BRINGING JOY TO YOU!"

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

MOTHERS AND THEIR DAUGHTERS.

THE following letter will interest other mothers besides myself:

"I am in great distress about my daughter. She has a happy home, but she has a longing to leave it. If I say the least thing to her that does not suit her she says she will go away. So I feel that I must let her do just what she wants, be out late at night, be impudent, extravagant, or anything else so as not to give her an excuse for leaving home. I have been a widow for years and I worked night and day to give my daughter her education, but now I am old and in poor health and not able to work. She has a good salary, but all that I take is her board. I know several girls who left home, as she threatens to do, and they have all turned out badly. I tell her it is a disgrace to leave home, but she says it isn't, and I know the reason she wants to go is that she will be independent and able to do as she likes. Of course, if she was away no one could interfere with her dressing or anything else she did. What can I do to make her feel differently?

"HEARTBROKEN MOTHER."

With all the sympathy I feel for this correspondent, and her case is cruelly hard, I cannot offer her much encouragemnt. She has waited too late to get her daughter into habits of obedience and deference to her wishes.

In some cases it is natural and right for a girl to leave her home. It need by no means be a disgrace, as this mother evidently thinks it is. When a girl has her living to make, no matter in what line it is, she cannot always stay with her father and mother, much as they would like to have her do so and anxious as she may be to remain at home. Sometimes her path is made hard for her, and the fact that in this day and generation the custom of young women is to make their own way in the world about as much as it is for their brothers is not appreciated fully. Marriage is the only valid excuse with many.

Inconsistency of Criticism.

A case of this came my way not long ago. A girl had the desire to study nursing, and to do so she was obliged to leave her home town and go a two hours' journey to the city. There she had to take a two years' course, during which period she had but one leave of absence to return home. Her parents and family visited her frequently and, to do them justice, I heard no complaint on their part, although friends made enough adverse criticism to offset the consideration of her near kin. The latter justified the young nurse's action by stating that there were the father and mother, a brother, and a sister still in the home nest, but this did not check protest.

After the nursing course was over and the student had married into a home of her own within a few months subsequent to her return, the sister married and went away on a five days' journey with her new husband, leaving no daughter behind her to stay and comfort her parents. Did the relatives and friends criticise this? Not in the least! The inconsistency of blaming the one sister and accepting the departure of the other as a matter of course is an amusing commentary on the view held to this day relative to the work of women outside of their home.

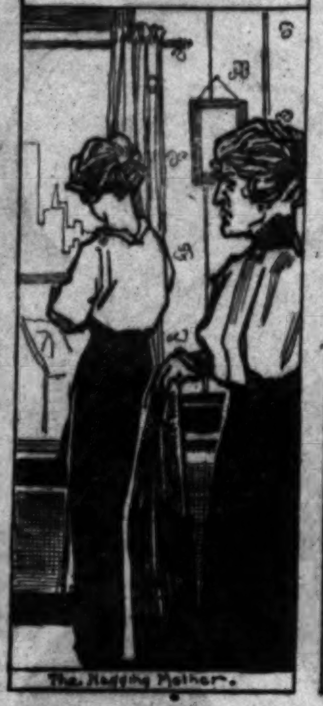
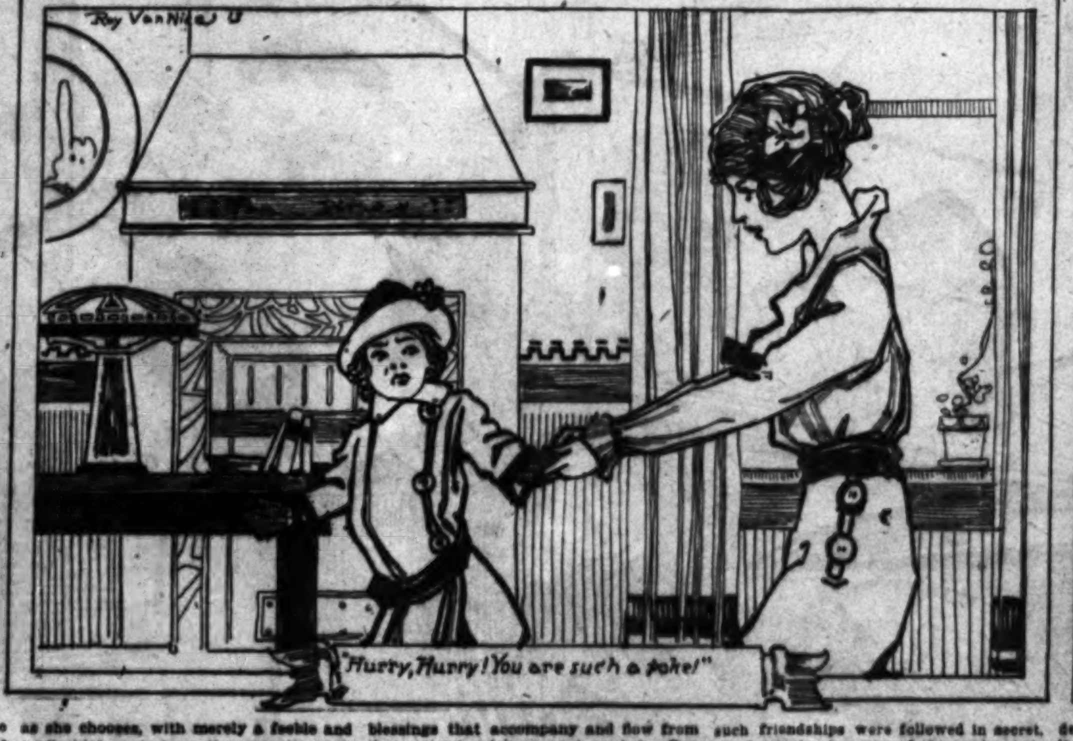
Lack of Early Discipline.

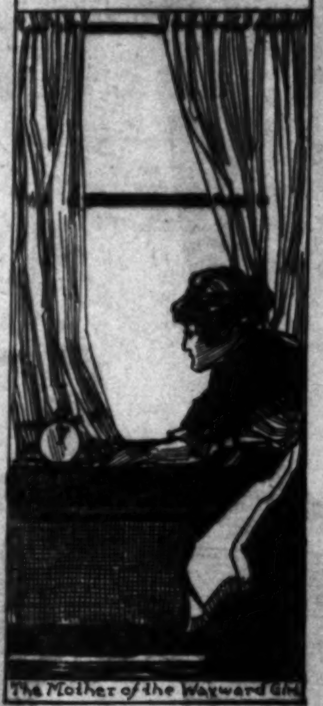
Personally I am still sufficiently old fashioned to prefer that a girl should stay in her own home until she marries, if this is in any way possible, and yet we have to recognize the fact that when she has a business or a profession and is obliged to leave home to follow it this is in no sense a disgrace.



The Nagging Mother.



"Hurry, Hurry! You are such a poke!"



The Mother of the Wayward Girl

The case is absolutely different with the girl of whom my correspondent writes. She is apparently able to pursue her work and earn her salary without leaving home. The trouble with her lies below the surface and to judge simply from what her mother says, she is a cold hearted, undutiful daughter with tendencies to willfulness which may well provoke anxiety. The ingratitude she displays to the mother who, to quote her words, "worked night and day to give her an education," shows something radically wrong lies at the root of her character. This fault, I am inclined to think, is due to the failure on her parents' part to inculcate the habit of strict obedience, duty, and respect while she was a child. A girl does not fall into the way of being out late at night, extravagant or impudent and intolerant of restraint suddenly. Overindulgence and lack of discipline in childhood have prepared the way for insubordination and impertinence.

Storing Up Future Trouble.

This is a point on which I feel it is necessary to lay stress. Hardly a day passes that I do not see an example of the way in which mothers are permitting their children to develop habits of willfulness which will one day make trouble. The small girl is allowed to do as she pleases, to speak as she chooses, with merely a feeble and ineffectual protest on the parent's part. Only a few days ago I was in the room with a mother who was getting her little daughter ready for the street. The child was in a hurry to go out and join her companions, and all the while her mother was fastening the coat and adjusting the hat the child kept up a fretful protest against her mother's slowness. "Hurry, hurry! You are such a poke!" she said. "I'll never be ready if you don't look out. Clumsy fingers!" while I sat by, fuming inwardly and twitching with the desire to take the unruly youngster in hand and discipline her. When a girl or boy has been allowed this kind of behavior no one can wonder if in later life disobedience and disrespect are shown.

So I would say to the mothers of daughters or sons that you cannot begin too early to teach them to obey. The process should be started as soon as they are born and kept up unremittingly. If there is occasional rebellion it should be checked immediately, although a favorite theory of mine is that if a child is taught obedience from earliest infancy the idea of revolt will never present itself as possible.

Yet there is something to be said on the other side. If you wish to keep the love and confidence of your children and the blessings that accompany and flow from these, strict rules are not enough. You must do all you can to make your sons and daughters love their home and believe in the identity of their interests and yours.

Jealous of Daughter's Friends.

When I read my correspondent's statement that her daughter has "a happy home" I wondered just what she meant by it. Seldom do you find children who care to leave a home where they feel free to do as they like, subject to the rules of the household, to bring their friends, to have their entertainments. I wish I knew if this were the sort of happy home my correspondent has for her daughter. Does the mother ever show jealousy of the girl's friends? Does she fail to interest herself in the concerns of the young people? Does she put her own inclinations under foot when it comes to a choice between her whims and convenience and the daughter's enjoyments?

Constantly I notice the mothers who seem to forget that they were ever young, that then they lived their lives and followed their own way, and that the children have a right to similar privileges. I have known mothers who had so much feeling against their children's intimacies with perfectly reputable and excellent associates that such friendships were followed in secret, clandestinely, because of the unpleasantness it would create in the home if the meetings were known. In one family especially the daughter has to conceal the fact of taking an afternoon walk with another girl against whose character there is nothing to be said. The mother objects to any bond between her child and a friend from sheer jealousy. She forgets that youth seeks youth as naturally as one drop of water blends with another, and that if she protests against harmless intimacies she is opening the way to deceit and subterfuge, and is at the same time weakening her own hold on her child.

I have quoted before the story of a woman who as a girl was never permitted to have friends at her home because of her mother's peculiarities. "I made up my mind then that if ever I had a home of my own and children, their friends should come there, and that they would not be obliged to run to the houses of others for their good times," she says, and she has lived up to her resolve. She has no trouble about keeping her girls at home. They have better times there than anywhere else, and they recognise the fact. "Many a time I have had my dinner eaten at luncheon because of the people who happened in," she laughs. "But I have just sent out and ordered something more for dinner. Nothing is of so much importance as the girls being happy at home."

Habit of Nagging.

Naturally, all mothers cannot afford the time or the money for this sort of thing, but they can follow the same principle, even although along different lines. The exact course is not the important matter so much as giving your children the knowledge that home is the best place in the world, and that they are sure always of the mother's understanding and indulgence.

Another fault often to be laid to the mother is the habit of unnecessary fault finding, in a word, of nagging.

"One reason the mothers have so little influence with their daughters is the habit of insisting on nonessentials," declared a woman to me last summer when we were discussing the always absorbing topic of bringing up children. "They make a fuss about trifles and lay down the law on points which are of no consequence—like the kind of stockings or gloves the girls must wear—and then when there is need of protesting against some really wrong course they have used up all their force on unimportant details and their words carry no weight with their children."

Does this sound inconsistent, in view of my statement that you must insist upon obedience in your daughters? The two are not in the least incompatible.

"The best thing about my mother is that when she raises a row it is done when it is finished," I heard a boy say once, and he went on to elucidate. "I mean that when she gives me a scolding she says all there is to say about it—gee! Sometimes she takes the hide off!—and then it is all done with and everything is as serene and pleasant as though nothing had happened. We never have hangovers after a scolding."

That kind of thing is appreciated as much by the daughters as by the sons. No one relishes a "hangover"—a lingering of clouds after the storm, gloomy looks and depressed tones when a fault has been criticised, a punishment inflicted, a penalty enforced. I know of few things more likely to make home unhappy than such prolonging of family "rows."

Children Often at Fault.

To go back to the case of my correspondent. I don't mean to say everything is [illegible] and of the mothers. The daughters are often in fault, too. No matter what their home trials, they should recall that after all a mother is more than all the world, that she has suffered more, done more, loved more than any one else; that the daughter owes a measure of devotion and duty, no matter what the conditions, and that, do what she can, she will always be in debt to the mother.

In view of that, I repeat the remark I made a while ago, that there is something radically wrong with a girl who can turn against the mother who has sacrificed comfort and ease for the sake of making an education possible for the daughter, and can threaten to leave a home in which she is needed and loved. No matter what the provocation, conditions should be endured sooner than she should be guilty of any course going so far counter to the mother's reasonable wish as to be bound to produce unhappiness.

This is a matter which should interest the mothers of sons as well as of daughters. Will not some of them write and tell me of their experiences and observation along this line, and state what they would advise in the case of such a mother as my correspondent quoted at the beginning of this talk?

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"IN writing to you some time ago concerning the adoption of a little girl I did not give my full name, because I did not care to have it published with my letter. There is no reason for secrecy except that I do not wish to make the fact public, although many of my most intimate friends know of my desire to adopt a little girl. Should any one reply to my communication I would be pleased to have you give them my address. I trust in this way I may be brought into touch with some interesting little orphan girl. MRS. H. E. G."

If you will observe the letters we have printed you will see that the Corner never gives and never has given a private address. Not a day passes that I do not receive a request from some one, "Do not print my name." This is an unnecessary appeal, for it is never done. The fact you desire to adopt a little girl appears, but with no signature beyond initials or any name you may ask to have put at the end of your letter. Your private address is filed and given only to one who wishes to reply to your inquiry or request. I trust that you and the "interesting little orphan girl" may be brought together through the agency of the Corner.

Spots on Paper.

"Can you tell me how to remove grease from wall paper? A. G. W."

I know of no better method than to rub French chalk well into the greased spot and leave it over night. The next day brush it off and if any traces of the mark remain repeat the process. This will take out the spot if anything will.

Wants to Earn Money.

"A cow girl from the cattle range is coming to your Corner to ask a favor, not for herself, but for a little girl who lives near. She is one of nine children of a poor family and has a bad throat disease, which she is trying to earn money to have treated, as her parents cannot afford this. Her only means of getting money has been by selling pictures taken by herself. Last month she broke her camera, and she is heartbroken over it, for now the treatment will have to be given up. Now for the favor: Has any reader of the Marion Harland Helping Hand a camera which is not wanted and that can be sent to this little girl? It must be a good one, taking clear pictures at least postcard size. If any one has such a camera and will send it to me I will see that the child gets it. I will pay all charges, in advance or otherwise, and will reward the giver with a set of western pictures, mountain scenery, round up, bucking horses, etc. WILD ROSE."

I sincerely trust this appeal may touch others as it has me, and that the camera may be sent soon. In these days, when nearly every one is taking photographs and when it is an every day matter to get a larger camera or a different make, which supersedes the earlier instrument, there must be a good camera somewhere which would fill the measure of your little friend's desires and enable her to help earn the money for her throat treatment. Your offer of pictures should tempt some one, even if the chance to do a kindness does not prove irresistible. Thank you for the recipes. They will appear in another place.

How to Prepare Swiss Rice.

"Can any one tell me how Swiss rice is prepared? MRS. V. C."

The dish which I know under that name is prepared as follows: Boil a cup of raw rice in three pints of hot water, slightly salted; at the end of fifteen minutes drain off the water and add a generous tablespoon of butter and a pinch of cayenne. When the rice is all done the water should be absorbed and each grain stand out swollen and whole. Let it dry out for five minutes, shake the saucepan lightly, not to break the rice, and stir into it with a fork three tablespoons of Parmesan cheese. Turn into a deep dish and serve. If this is not the recipe known to other housekeepers as "Swiss rice" I would be glad to receive and print another.

To Banish Roaches.

"To banish roaches, tell Mrs. L. H. to get a dime's worth of poke roots, steep them thoroughly, and mix them with molasses. Place this on a shallow platter and leave it overnight wherever the pest abounds. I have been told that this never fails to effect a cure. MRS R. E. P."

Thank you for this remedy. I hope it may prove efficacious for the correspondent who asks for help and for others similarly afflicted.

Requests for Musical Instruments.

A number of requests for musical instruments have come to me, and I group them together.

"I would like so much to have a violin or guitar for my little girl to practice on. She is attending school and studies so hard I would like something to take her mind off her books for a while. She is not quite 8 years old, but is in the third grade. I have been told she has quite a talent for music. About two years ago I said I would sell my fingers to get a musical education for my daughter, and I still feel like that, so you may judge if I am eager for it or not. I would pay express charges on the instrument, or call for it, if it is in the city.

"MRS. G. O'H."

"Please ask any one who has a banjo or other stringed instrument and a hammock which is no longer needed to send for my address. The hammock is wanted for a man whose strength is broken and the banjo for a little boy whose love for music has never been gratified. Both are worthy and I will gladly furnish their addresses.

"MRS. J. L. K."

"I am teaching a small country school, which is situated in the woods, and would like much to start a Sunday school, but there is no organ, and it seems hard to have Sunday school without music. It seems such a sin to have Sunday come and go without the children having any thought or reverence for the day. Anything you could do to help us would be greatly appreciated by me and by the parents of the district. R. M."

These three letters appeal to different interests. The first writer wishes the instrument for the sake of diverting her child's mind and incidentally laying the foundations and awakening the desire for a musical education. The second correspondent asks for the banjo in order to gratify a love for music, which apparently already exists, and the third writer is moved by the desire to lead children into the paths of righteousness and religious training. I hope that the cravings of all three may be gratified, and also that the hammock may be forthcoming for the man. Let me say for the benefit of the school teacher that, while I grant that an instrument of some sort is a great help in starting a Sunday school and in making it popular, I have known of classes successfully conducted when the singing was unaccompanied. If she begins such a school with only vocal music it may be that later the organ may be found.

Name of a Home Finding Society.

"Will you kindly tell me the name of the woman's society of Los Angeles, Cal., which makes a specialty of finding good homes for children? G. M."

This is a question I must refer to our members. Can any of them give the needed information?

Writer Omitted Signature.

"I have some colored paper dolls such as come with some of the woman's magazines and would like to give them to some small child to help pass away the rainy days. Do you know of any business firms that would like to have letters and circulars addressed? I would like something of that sort to do at home, as it is impossible for me to leave home to do outside work. Please answer through the paper and I will then send my name and address and the dolls? N. K."

Probably your offer of the dolls will bring forth requests for your name and address which I shall be unable to supply, as you did not add it to your letter. This omission also makes it impossible for me to give any reply to your inquiry as to other addresses, since business firms, etc., cannot be named in the paper. In any event I am afraid you would have difficulty in getting this work to do at home. Still, I print your request and if you will send me your address I will give it to those who ask for it. Do not send the dolls to this office, but wait for the name of the child who wishes them, and let them go directly to her.

An Offer of Magazines.

"I would very much like a copy of the Marion Harland Autobiography if I could get it. I have one year's subscription to a couple of magazines for any one who would like them. I wonder if any of the Helping Hand sisters has a string of the old genuine amber beads that she no longer cares for. I have always heard they were good for goiter. It makes no difference how old they are. I would also like a string of Job's tears. MRS. C. M. I."

I am flattered by your desire to read the Marion Harland Autobiography, and hope your wish may be gratified. Some one will doubtless be glad to have the magazines you offer, but I am afraid it is doubtful if you can get the amber beads. They have a good deal of value if they are genuine. The Job's tears are more readily found, and I hope you may receive them.

Needs a Typewriter.

"I want to write to you of the need of a woman in whom I am interested. She is highly educated and competent, has spent years in kindly works, has traveled about the world, and speaks several languages, is a fine musician and writer. Her short stories are excellent. She has been cut off from making an income by an illness of ten years, which most of the time has kept her helpless. She can be on her feet little and holding a pen is agony to her after a few minutes. To keep hunger away she sold her typewriter several years ago. Now she is able to use one again, can operate it rapidly, and I feel sure she could earn a good income had she a machine. She is sunshine itself, never frowns or complains, and sweetly does all she can to help those about her to see life in the right way. If some one could supply her with a typewriter I will see that she gets paper, etc., and she could do typing as well as story writing. I cannot get the machine, however. She knows nothing of my writing to you; it is my own idea, but she has told me it is her greatest wish to get a machine. If you should be able to help her, write to me for her address. J. T."

Hardly a week passes that at least one application does not come for a typewriter, and I can not assure any one of a granted request. I print this letter in the hope that some one will see it who can meet the apparently genuine need described and will seize the opportunity. Few things are harder than the desire and the ability to work and the lack of means to make use of them.

Home in the Country.

"Can you tell me of a good, reliable, settled woman, who wants a quiet, comfortable home in the country? I am anxious to get a woman to live with me. There are only my husband and myself in the family, and as my husband is a physician he is away from home a good deal. I want a woman who can sew and do general housework, and be useful. I do my own work, as help is scarce here. The nearest town is six miles away. We have a daily mail, Methodist and Baptist churches two miles away, and at the town there are Baptist, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches. I am an Episcopalian myself. We have good wholesome fare and plenty of eggs, chickens, milk, butter, fruit, and vegetables. I have thought that by writing freely to you you might put me in touch with a woman needing a home who would be willing to work for it. MRS. R. H."

This looks to me like a good chance for a middle aged woman alone in the world and wanting a home. There are many women who have perhaps money enough to clothe themselves, but not enough to support them except in the most meager fashion, and who, having all their lives been used to housekeeping and housework in their own homes, would be glad to find a refuge where the occupation to which they have been accustomed would enable them to live in comfort. Should any such see this letter I will be glad to supply the address of Mrs. R. H. on application.

Wants Wheel to Do Errands.

"I am a boy of 10. My mother works hard and is away from home a good deal. I have lots of errands to run and would like to get a small boy's bicycle. Have any of your readers one to give away or to part with for any consideration? I would be very glad to have one. A. G."

I print this letter, but even as I do so I wonder if the child is at school and if the errands he runs are done out of school hours. If any of our readers knows of a bicycle which might be of service to this child, he may find a chance to be of help and encouragement.

Makes an Excellent Dish.

"If any one is fond of chili con carne why trouble to make it? Buy a can of one of the good brands on the market, empty out the contents, rinse out the can with a cupful of water, and add to the contents and put with the contents of a good sized can of green corn. The addition of this corn makes an excellent dish. E. W. J."

I am grateful for this suggestion and for the other valuable counsel sent by this correspondent.

For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

For Nursery Bibs

Designed by E. J. Buckman

IS THERE any little tot that is at the nursery stage—and therefore the bib stage—that is on your list? If so, these designs have been drawn in order that you can work them up in a very short time and can give something that will delight the little folks and the mothers as well. The combination of appropriate beauty and practical worth is too good to ignore. Here they are in the three bibs before you.

A piece of material about ten inches wide and thirteen inches long is all that is required for one bib. Out of a little over a yard of linen, duck or any of the coarsely woven crashes from three to six bibs can be made, depending on the width of the goods. When cutting from these patterns allow for the narrow hems. In the case of the cross-stitch borders, continue the sides of the pattern up until it is twelve inches long. At the top allow for the neck line by cutting in the center a semicircle that is two and a half inches down from the top line.

The little Dutch sister and brother are very effective in delft blues on a white linen. You see that this design is simple outline work and in its simplicity will appeal to every little boy or girl that will have the good fortune to wear it. If you wish, you can make this in two colors by working all the upper part in blue and using yellow for the wooden shoes. Any color will give pleasing results, and if the nursery or the children's china be done in a special color, it is a good plan to match it when working the bib. Solid work can be done on the hair if you care to give more time to this appropriate gift. Finish the edges by hemming and attach blue linen tapes to the top. Place the bib in a pretty box, and if you have time trace the design on the box and color with crayons. Tie with ribbon and you may be sure that there will be a delighted child when the box is opened.

In the border that has Christmas trees there is a fine suggestion for the use of green and any other bright color. The trees should be done in green cross-stitch as shown in the design. On the tube that hold the trees there can be introduced any color at the band at the top indicated by heavier lines. Bright yellow, red or blue will delight any youngster. The same color should be used at the top of the basket in the center. The little animals can be any color that you wish. Try one of yellow and one of red.

This bib is finished in the same way that the first bib is. Try one of these Christmasy bibs so that the child will feel that a thought has been spent on him that refers to the holiday season.

The time that will be required for the completion of this bib will be so short that I am sure that you will have another begun before you know it. A quickness in working will come as the design is repeated, and there is no reason why you should not make them by the dozens.

If you have ever watched the squirrels and the numbers of delighted children looking, you will see how pleased a little boy or girl will be at the gift of the squirrel bib. This is worked in cross-stitch. The outline has been drawn in and all you have to do is to fill in the design below. The squirrels should be done in brown. The side border can be done in any shade that you wish. Do not forget that a high bushy tail is the final flourish of the animal. Gray is also a good color for the squirrels. Introduce a bright color in the border besides the green, for a mixture of colors is pleasing to a child and the conventional cross-stitch design allows of this treatment.

Have you any treasured gift that a thoughtful friend or an auntie worked for you in the sweet days of childhood? Do you recall the joy in pictured living things that you took? These bibs will be donned in great glee and remembered long after they have faded beyond recognition. It is an easy matter to transfer according to directions given on the page, and it will be throwing away an opportunity to make a child happy. In fact, I think that a little club of needlewomen should make these bibs in great numbers for little children who will not have very many hand-made gifts that will appeal. The time required is so little that many can be made in a few days. There is yet time to make the little ones happy by giving something different.

Fill in With Cross-Stitch

Presents for Embroiderers

Embroidered doily case
Embroidery scissors
Workbag
Needlecase
Linen case for silks
Emery bag
Ivory eyelet punch
Silver-case tape measure
Stamping outfit

OF COURSE, these presents are suggested for Christmas. What other kind of presents is any sane creature thinking of at this date? Woe to the unfortunates whose birthdays come between now and Christmas! For it's thinking we are that it's slighted they will be more or less.

The doily case is suggested because one who embroiders is not quite like the cobbler's children, who never had any shoes to wear, for the embroiderer usually manages to keep a few nice pieces for herself. Consequently, the embroiderer would appreciate a case for her doilies. Take a piece of pique a yard long and three-quarters of a yard wide, and mark the edges with penciled or stamped scallops. Pad and buttonhole the scallops and then fold in one end of the wrong side of the cover a pasteboard mailing tube. The end of the cover goes about the tube once, and this end of the cover is caught to the wrong side of the cover with basting stitches. Before placing the tube in the linen cover, cover the two open ends with circles of the pique, lapped about an inch over the edges and tied fast to the tube by thread wrapped about them and the tube. White tapes or ribbons are then fastened to the other end of the cover or case, so that when the case is rolled it may be tied fast to keep it from unrolling. The ribbons should be about fifteen inches long. Tack them by their centers to the case, so that each piece has two flying ends. At this beribboned or taped end a monogram or decorative spray of flowers may be embroidered about an inch above the scalloping. The case is unrolled and the doilies placed smoothly upon it, and the end containing the tube is then rolled so that the doilies are wrapped smoothly about the tube.

There are many kinds of pretty embroidery scissors, but those in which the blades are formed by the long bill of a stork are very attractive.

The workbag can be made after any one of countless pretty designs, but a particularly effective bag that is easily made is the round bag, with a circular pasteboard silk-covered bottom that is afterward stitched into a round sweetgrass basket. Make the bag complete, and then fit it into a grass basket about six by six and about three inches high. The bottom of the bag serves as the lining of the basket.

The linen case for silks is made by stitching two pieces of tan linen together with bright-colored silk. Take two pieces of linen, each twelve by twelve, and scallop the edges by buttonholing them in colored silk. These are then stitched together by hand, curving the stitches close to the scalloping on all four sides. The sewing machine is then brought into use, and rows of colored stitching to match the silk used in the scalloping are run lengthwise on the linen. Eleven rows of stitching are made, the rows being an inch apart. This makes twelve long pockets, with openings top and bottom. The holder will now accommodate twelve skeins of silk. The skeins of silk should be cut to the length desired, and then the skein is run through a pocket, the cut ends of the silk projecting from both ends of the pocket, ready to be pulled strand by strand as the embroiderer wishes.

Emery bags can be bought so cheaply that it is hardly worth while to take the trouble of making them, and ivory eyelet punches are more buyable than makable, while silver-cased tape measures and stamping outfits come under the same heading. Stamping outfits are the handiest things imaginable for the embroiderer, saving her much expense, and one should be able to purchase them at any art needlework store or art supplies shop.

When She Goes A-Visiting

NOW that the gift season is rapidly advancing, the needleworker must spend her spare moments in fashioning dainty articles for her friends.

For the girl who enjoys visiting, make a nightdress case, and sachet to match, of white handkerchief linen or sheer lawn.

For the nightgown case, embroider an empire wreath of rambler roses and foliage in tones of rose and green on a strip of sheer linen sixteen inches wide and thirty-six inches long.

Seam up the sides neatly by hand and hem the ends. Line the case with a pad fashioned by covering a strip of cotton wadding of slightly smaller dimensions than the case with pale pink, blue or white china silk. This may be removed when the cover is laundered.

Slip the lining in place and tie a two-inch band of ribbon, to correspond in color with the lining, about the case.

Make a small sachet to match the case, to be slipped among the folds of the nightgown.

If you do not admire articles of this sort embroidered with colors, use white mercerized cotton and combine satin stitch with eyelet embroidery.

Embroidered Tray

NOW is the time to make beautiful embroidered trays for Christmas presents. The trays, which resemble picture frames, can be bought at the stores, already fitted up with handles. These trays have thin wooden backs, which are removable, but are pasted over with a piece of green felt. This felt can easily be removed and repasted after the piece of embroidery has been inserted. Ecru linen, worked in tapestry colors, is very suitable for these embroidered trays, but an even darker background may be used if preferred. Cream linen worked in apple blossoms is effective in a mahogany-rimmed tray with dull brass handles. If one has an old piece of rich tapestry, or a particular piece of cretonne, it is quite unnecessary to go to the trouble of embroidering a piece for the tray. The tapestry and cretonne are quite as appropriate, and every bit as effective.

A Christmas Idea

FOR several Christmases there has been a custom of giving embroidered lingerie blouses to one's girl's friends—that is, the embroidered material for the making of a blouse. To break the monotony and to be a little more up to date (for lingerie waists have lost first place this season), why not embroider a crepe de chine blouse as a gift for some appreciative friend or relative? Crepe de chine, it is true, costs more; but sometimes remnants are to be had quite cheaply. A beige or biscuit-colored crepe de chine embroidered in pastel shades is beautiful and makes a most welcome gift. As most of the crepe de chine waists are being made with the opening in the front, instead of embroidering a one-piece front, two sides can be embroidered. To still further elaborate the waist, embroider the collar and cuffs.

Embroidered Sautoir

THOSE convenient ribbons now used to hang tiny watches about the neck are a delight to the soul of women. Heretofore they have been severely plain. Why not introduce an innovation by embroidering one for a Christmas gift? Take a piece of grosgrain ribbon about a half inch wide and a yard and a quarter or a yard and a half long and embroider it in tiny daisylike flowers about an inch and a half apart. The whole flower, petals and center, should be embroidered in a good quality of gilt thread or gold-colored floss silk. As the ribbon is so narrow, it is best to omit foliage. Do not join the two ends of the sautoir, as the watch for which it is intended will have to be first strung upon it.

This embroidered sautoir would make a charming little gift, and would no doubt be much appreciated by the recipient.

An Embroidered Cardcase

THERE'S a nice little calling gift to make for the woman who carries an embroidered linen bag in the summertime. It is the linen cardcase. It may be of white linen, of brown linen or of blue linen—any color, in fact, that one desires. It is made of one piece of goods, 8½ inches wide by 7 inches long. The extreme ends are embroidered in scallops. One end is embroidered straight across with scalloping, while the other end is cut and scalloped to a point, so that it may be used as a flap. The straight end is turned up 2½ inches, and two little side seams are made on either side to form an envelope. This little pocket, thus formed, is then turned inside out, so that the seam edges are concealed within. The pointed scallop flap is then brought over and buttoned to the pocket with a crocheted button. On the upper part of the flap is worked the monogram of the one for whom the little gift is intended.

Embroidered School Bag

WHAT about making an embroidered school bag for the little chap—not a fancy one that he will call "fussy," but a neat little affair in brown felt, with his monogram embroidered upon it? It wouldn't be a bad idea to have sister make it for the boy as a Christmas present. Make it envelope shape with a flap, much as the ready-made ones are fashioned, and bind the edges with brown braid or tape. Work upon it the monogram in a lighter shade of brown. Patent clasps should be put upon the flap. To relieve the strain on the bag, if it is carried over the shoulder by a strap, first put a strap about the center of the bag and then buckle the shoulder strap to that. The bag can, of course, be made from any material preferred, but the felt makes the prettiest bag.

A Practical Lounging Robe for Cold Weather

ONE of the exclusive shops noted for its varied selection of handsome negligees is displaying a pretty lounging robe that is decidedly practical for cold-weather wear. Rather an unusual combination, you will think, for, as a rule, the dainty creations of silk chiffon and lace are of no practical use, so far as warmth is concerned. This model, however, possesses this desirable quality and is so simple in construction that any woman who sews can easily duplicate it.

It is a long, loosely fitted garment, made over lines similar to a bathrobe, so purchase a reliable pattern of this type.

The quantity of material required for your size will be designated on the pattern.

Choose a quilted lining of a soft china silk, of a medium weight, in a delicate tint of pink. This lining comes in many lovely designs, but be sure to select one of a good quality and of a pretty design.

After the sections of the robe are cut out join the seams by stitching them on the machine. Line the robe with white china silk and border the entire garment with inch-wide Dresden ribbon in tones of pink.

Slash the wide sleeves five inches from the bottom and on both sides of the slash embroider eyelets, using heavy white silk thread. Lace these together with narrow black velvet ribbon and tie the ends to form a pretty bow.

About the waist is knotted a girdle of inch-wide black ribbon velvet, to the ends of which are sewn silk tassels of a medium size. Three eyelets are then embroidered at each side of the neck line, which is unfinished by a collar and simply outlined with the ribbon, and through these are laced a tie of narrow black velvet.

If you are searching for a comfortable, warm, elegantly simple lounging robe, this one will end your quest, for it cannot help pleasing the most critical taste.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.
